

GENE AUTRY, BOB REYNOLDS GET LOS ANGELES FRANCHISE

By NORMAN MILLER
 United Press International
 St. Louis—Gene Autry, the cowboy star turned baseball owner, rides into Los Angeles today, come hell or high water, with the grudging approval of "sheriff" Walter O'Malley.

So instead of the threatened showdown at high noon, the major leagues were expected to settle their expansion by means of a compromise in which O'Malley would permit Autry to invade his rich Los Angeles territory.

The American league thus would complete its 10-team expansion program and solve the most strife-ridden squabble in baseball history.

Autry, the famed radio, movie and TV singer, and his partner, radio executive Bob Reynolds, were granted a Los Angeles franchise Tuesday and said they were "ready to go" as the "Los Angeles Angels" in 1961.

Meets With O'Malley
 Reynolds, 46-year-old former Stanford football tackle, met with O'Malley in secret session Tuesday night in an attempt to reach an agreement that would dispel the influential Los Angeles Dodger owner's last remaining objections to AL invasion of his backyard.

Unprecedented separate league meetings, designed to resolve the final details of the compromise, were scheduled today prior to the start of the regular joint meeting of the two leagues at 11:30 a.m. (EST).

No Games Televised
 According to a National League source, here are the concessions that were to be made to O'Malley:

The AL Los Angeles team would not televise its games; it would play at 22,000-seat Wrigley Field in 1961, and then would become a Dodger tenant for at least the next three years in the $15 million Chavez ravine stadium now being built.

In addition, the new club would have to pay O'Malley $400,000 in indemnity.

The reason O'Malley insists on these demands is that he wants another profitable season of operation in the Los Angeles Coliseum so that he can ease his financing position for the Chavez ravine project.

Not all American league owners were anxious to make those concessions to O'Malley, however. Boss Bill Veeck of the Chicago White Sox represented a group incensed at Frick for not supporting the AL expansion program and for being too solicitous about satisfying O'Malley's demands.

Autry and Reynolds said that Fred Haney, former Pittsburgh Pirates and Milwaukee Braves manager, will act as director of player personnel for the new team. Haney will select the players from the pool made available by the other AL clubs.

Would-Be Bank Robber Holds Off Arrest Long Enough To Call Mother

Los Angeles—(UPI)—"Mom, I'm in California and I'm in trouble again," said Edward P. Cosgrove, 23, by long distance telephone to his mother in New Jersey.

Cosgrove and an accomplice, Henry Johansky, 25, were in a bank Tuesday holding 14 employees prisoner at gunpoint. Outside were about 50 policemen and FBI agents armed with riot and tear gas guns, ordering the men to surrender.

Cosgrove, realizing the game was up, forced an employee to tell him how to make the long distance call on the bank telephone so he could wish his mother in Patterson a merry Christmas and tell her "everything will be all right."

Then he and Johansky laid down their guns and surrendered.

They had forced their way into the Security First National Bank branch shortly before opening, but while they wasted their time futilely attempting to open the vault and cash boxes, a silent alarm summoned lawmen.

"Merry Christmas," Cosgrove said to bank employees as he and Johansky were led away. They were booked on suspicion of attempted robbery.

Heart Attack Can Occur Without Painful Symptoms

Chicago—(Science Service)—An estimated 10 per cent of 15 per cent of heart attacks among urban, middle-aged men occur without causing any signs of distress, four Chicago doctors reported here.

Their estimate is based on three cases of heart attack found among 20 middle-aged men who did not have any distress.

In a comprehensive study of 756 medical case records of a Chicago utility corporation's employees during a four-year period, 41 new cases of coronary heart disease of all types were diagnosed. Of these, 20 definite cases of myocardial infarction were verified by electrocardiograph, but three, or 15 per cent, were without symptoms. A total of 756 men from 30 to 59 years of age were studied, of whom 667 had no evidence of heart disease.

Drs. H. A. Lindberg, D. M. Berkson, J. Stamler and A. Poindexter, all of Chicago, reported their study in the American Medical Association's Archives of Internal Medicine. They made the investigation with the cooperation of the Chicago Board of Health, the Heart Disease Control program and the Department of Medicine, Northwestern University.

Painless Attacks
 Autopsies have previously shown "silent," painless or unsuspected cases of myocardial infarction that have escaped detection but the physicians said there are few reports describing totally asymptomatic cases during life.

They said that routine periodic electrocardiography would uncover "a significant number of cases which would otherwise go unrecognized." This is particularly important at the present time among adult men, they reported, when effective "secondary prevention of coronary heart disease may be a real possibility."

About half the American tourists traveling abroad go alone, one-third travel in family groups, and the rest with friends or business associates.

MEDFORD MAIL TRIBUNE SPORTS

Voit Award To Kilmer
 Los Angeles—(UPI)—Bill Kilmer, UCLA's star senior halfback, today was named winner of the W. J. Voit memorial trophy for 1960 as the outstanding football player on the Pacific Coast.

The Voit Trophy is awarded to the player selected by vote of the Pacific Coast sports editors and sportscasters. The Helms Athletic foundation, which conducted the balloting, reported Kilmer received 16 first place votes out of 33 cast.

Kilmer last week became the nation's total offense leader with 1,889 yards to his credit. He previously had been selected to the United Press International All-Coast team and missed by only a narrow margin becoming the fourth back on the UPI All-America team.

Gold Footballs To Be Handed To SM Players
 Members of the state Class B champion St. Mary's high football squad will receive the gold football emblematic of the title this evening in informal ceremonies at the school gym.

The event is set for 7 p.m. Letter awards will be made to the gridlers and the state title trophy will be presented to the school.

A movie of one of University of Oregon's football games will be shown.

Brown Chosen Best Lineman
 New York—(UPI)—Tom Brown, a Minnesota lineman in the tradition of Leo Nomellini and Ed Widseth, was an overwhelming selection today as the "Lineman of the Year" by the United Press International.

A 6-foot, 225-pound guard from Minneapolis, "Terrible Tom" received 147 of the 422 ballots cast for the honor by sportswriters and broadcasters participating in the annual voting. End Mike Ditka of Pittsburgh was a distant second with 45 votes and center E. J. Holub of Texas Tech was third with 44 points.

Oregon-Made Putter Sent To Eisenhower
 Portland—(UPI)—An Oregon invented and produced golf putter was sent to President Eisenhower Wednesday by Gov. Mark Hatfield.

The putter, entails a new theory—the golfer swinging the croquet-mallet type putter between the legs as opposed to the old-style 90-degree approach to the ball and line of putt.

The putter—named "The Dude"—was invented by Portland pro Bob Duden and manufactured by Duden and Portland businessman Chet Patton.

PORTLAND COACH
 Portland—(UPI)—Ray Katt, former major league catcher, has been assigned by the St. Louis Cardinals of the National League as a coach with Portland of the Pacific Coast league.

BRUTON TRADED
 St. Louis—(UPI)—The Detroit Tigers today traded second baseman Frank Bolling to the Milwaukee Braves and obtained outfielder Bill Bruton in a six-man player deal which had been "more than a year" in the making.

In addition to Bruton, the Tigers obtained second baseman Chuck Cottier, catcher Dick Brown, and rookie right handed pitcher Terry Fox. Along with Bolling, Detroit turned over to Milwaukee a minor league player to be designated on or before March 1, 1961.

Supreme Court To Tackle Problem of Sunday Blue Laws

Washington—(UPI)—The Supreme Court begins hearing arguments today on Sunday "blue laws."

These are state statutes harking back to colonial times which restrict retail sales on Sunday.

For many years the high court shied away from attempts to test their constitutionality but an unusual combination of commercial and religious interest has succeeded in lining up four cases for high decisions.

Two are from Pennsylvania, the others from Massachusetts and Maryland. Jewish merchants and a cut-rate department store chain are the contestants.

The religious argument is that blue laws constitute an establishment of religion—that is, the religion of those Christians sects which observe Sunday as their holy day—in violation of the religious freedom guarantee in the Constitution.

The contention is that they violate the religious freedom of such groups as Jews, Seventh Day Adventists and Seventh Day Baptists, who keep Saturday as the sabbath.

This approach was taken by Crown Kasher Super Market of Springfield, Mass., which won a ruling in a lower federal court overturning the Massachusetts blue law. This case, appealed to the high court by the Springfield chief of police, is the first one up for argument.

The non-religious argument is that the blue laws discriminate in favor of certain types of sales and certain sellers against others.

For instance, the lower court noted that the Massachusetts law, which has been amended 70 times, permits digging for clams but not dredging for oysters. Although stores like Crown Market must close after 10 a.m. on Sunday, news dealers and druggists may sell milk and tobacco all day. Bakers also may stay open.

Those who favor the laws argue that the states under their police power may decree a "day of rest" for the welfare of all the people.

The National Retail Merchants association told the high court in a brief that if Sunday becomes "just another business day," the additional expense of keeping open seven days a week will drive marginal retailers out of business and possibly increase prices.

Casey Stengel Still Undecided
 St. Louis—(UPI)—Casey Stengel, the man who the new Los Angeles club wants for its manager, said today he is "undecided" whether or not he will return to baseball next year.

Cowboy star Gene Autry and Bob Reynolds made it plain they would like to have the 70-year-old Stengel manage the Los Angeles team which was approved as the American league's newest member Tuesday.

Livestock Market Changes Suggested
 Salem—State departments of agriculture have some responsibility for accelerating needed changes in livestock marketing work, according to a report brought back from a national marketing service workshop by Paul Rowell, State Department of Agriculture.

Rowell, chief of the market development division of the state department, took part in work groups on promotion and livestock at the November meetings. The promotion group agreed that trained information specialists are necessary to marketing programs; commodity groups should finance information for consumers; and producers should accept some responsibility in the movement of agricultural products from the farm to the consumer.

WESTERN LEAGUE
 United Press International
 The Calgary Stampede stayed on top of the Western Hockey league standings Wednesday night by staging a last-period rally to defeat the Edmonton Flyers 6-5. The loss dropped the Flyers to third place.

In other league action Vancouver stayed in second place with a 3-0 victory over Winnipeg.

United Press International AMERICAN LEAGUE
 A tie game usually leaves both teams dissatisfied, but the Rochester Americans are a happy exception today.

Although the best they could do was to hold the Quebec Aces to a 3-3 tie Tuesday night, they gained a point and moved up to fifth place in the American Hockey league.

How does a one-ton truck chalk up against a Volkswagen?

We admit it. A standard one-ton truck carries 170 lbs. more than a Volkswagen Panel Truck—which carries 1,830 pounds.

But look what a difference a VW can make. You'll be driving a nimble truck that knows how to keep out of traffic jams. You can operate two VW Trucks for what it costs you to operate a single standard one-ton truck.

You can park your Volkswagen in places that the average one-ton has to forego. A VW is three to five feet shorter.

Tires, depreciation, insurance—they all cost you less.

If you never take a load under 2,000 pounds, no use talking. But if you do, come in and see us. We'll show you operating cost figures.
