

Headresses To Feature Christmas Charity Ball

When m'lady is planning what she will wear to the Ball, it will include not only a gown and slippers but also a headress—if she is going to the Junior Service League's Christmas Charity Ball.

This annual event is to be held at the Rogue Valley Country club on December 16. For the past several years the women have worn fancy headresses and highlight of the evening is announcement of who has been named Queen of the Ball for wearing the prize-winning headress.

In past years the headresses have been beautiful, exciting and imaginative. They have been made from such varied materials as Christmas tinsel and tree trimmings, fresh flowers, children's stuffed toys, and real deer antlers. Some have been replicas of ski slopes, miniature merry-go-rounds or bird cages. The accent on space has resulted in imitation "Sputniks" that gave off signals.

Reservations are still open to those who have not yet responded to their invitations. Cocktails will be served from 8 to 9 o'clock with dinner and dancing following.

The proceeds from this party, as from all Junior Service League events, will go to the support of the kindergarten for hard-of-hearing children.
