Millinery Industry Said 'Brimming Over' for 1961

By GAY PAULEY UPI Women's Editor

New York — The millinery industry is just brimming over with news for spring 1961.

As Sally Victor, Mrs. Dwight Eisenhower's milliner, puts the new trend, "Brimms finally are coming into their own."

There are wide, skimmer brims, ripple brims, brims rolled up and away from the face in a variety of styles, and brims with brims almost big enough to conceal the girl beneath. Some milliners like brims unadorned; others soften them with scallops, pleats, bows, scarves or layers of veiling.

The trade promotion committee of Millinery Promotions, Inc., recently asked 10 leading New York designers to participate with six trend-setting hats each in a show of what's ahead for spring. All did their own forecasting as samples were modeled.

The 10 firms were Sally Victor, Mr. Arnold, Hattie Carnegie, Chanda, Lilly Dache, Emme, Walter Florell, John Frederics, Irene of New York and Mr. John.

Mrs. Victor's collection was the most diversified, including her famous wig-hat, which is a mass of flowers completely hiding the hair, saliors with brims in narrow to extreme widths, and brims with the brims rolled high away from the face on one side, pulled down, slouch-fashion, on the other.

"Collars and necklines are not too important for spring," said Mr. Arnold. "So from the neck up a woman is on her own. We see hats set straight on the head, and well down on the brow. There will be some cloches. All hats will be light and airy looking."

Mr. Arnold featured one white straw cloche decorated all over with imitation fruit, dubbed "cottage cheese and fruit salad, or our answer to metrecal."

"We see hats moving to the front and side," said Claire Carnegie, spokesman for the Hattie Carnegie firm. "We like colors — yellow and fuchsia pink."

"The bouffant look has been taken from hair and translated to hats," said Chanda, who showed mushroom and tower-

Camp Fire Girls Participate in Many Activities

Talent—Members of the Crater Lake group, Camp Fire Girls of Talent, have had many activities during the month of December. Besides meeting every Monday after school, members have spent Saturdays on various projects.

December 3, they gathered two pickup loads of used and broken toys in Talent and delivered them to the Ashland Fire Department to be repaired and distributed to the Ashland-Talent area by the Ashland American Legion. The girls were taken through the fire hall in Ashland, toured the kitchen and sleeping quarters and allowed to slide down the fire pole. They were also shown the four fire trucks and all the equipment, which was of great interest to the girls.

On the tour were Vicki and Cheryl Taylor, Elizabeth Beebe, Jeanne and Judy Yates, Cherie Wright, Barbara Schleper, Karen, Trina and Pamela Engberg, Mrs. Ray Burnette, guardian, and April Burnette, assistant guardian. Pickups were furnished and driven by Mrs. Jim Engberg and Mrs. Harry Hamilton. Refreshments were served the girls at the home of their sponsor, Mrs. Mae Lowe, upon their return.

December 10, Crater Lake Camp Fire Girls were taken to a woodlot where with permission of the owners, the girls gathered enough cedar and fir boughs to make swags for their doorways. Clarence Wilson gave the girls pine boughs and mistletoe. After a sack lunch, the girls spent the afternoon making swags for their homes. Taking part were Vicki and Cheryl Taylor, Jeanne and Judy Yates, Elizabeth Beebe, Barbara Schleper, Alice Lockwood, Eileen Young, assistant guardian, April Brunette. The girls were accompanied by Mrs. Ray Burnette, Mrs. Clayton Miller and Mrs. Mae Lowe.

Members met last Monday after school and finished making final plans for the annual Christmas party held at the Talent City hall December 17. They went caroling first and then returned to the city hall for a gift exchange and party to which mothers were invited.

Hold Yule Party

Murphy — At their recent December meeting, the King's Daughters, women's group of the Murphy Chapel, dispensed with business and work and held a Christmas party. Members exchanged homemade gifts.

With Mrs. Clarence Rosa as hostess for the evening, refreshments were provided by each person bringing her favorite "finger food" and the recipe for making it to share with the others present. Spiritual thoughts and devotions in connection with the true meaning of Christmas were given by some of the women attending.
