Investigating officer Robert Hayes said that Chamberlain was visiting friends who live across the street from the Ghiglioli home. He went out "for a breath of fresh air" and went over to the victim's home. He already knew Mrs. Ghiglioli and Sandra since they had been baby sitters for Chamberlain's two children.

When Sandra answered the door, Hayes said Chamberlain tried to kiss her and invited her out to his car. She ran into the bedroom, where her mother, father and sister were sitting.

Chamberlain walked in right behind her. He pulled out the weapon, which had been concealed in his coat, and began firing without saying a word. Ghiglioli was killed outright and the daughters wounded. Mrs. Ghiglioli hid in a closet and was not harmed.

Chamberlain then went out to reload his weapon, according to Hayes.

Morgan, an airman at Hamilton Air Force Base, drove up, Chamberlain walked over to him and fired. Morgan turned and fled, blood dripping from his wounded arm.

Sheriff's deputies arrived moments later after neighbors had reported a family row.

Chamberlain was found sitting in a tree across the street from the Ghiglioli home. He had his gun pointed at unsuspecting sheriff's officers Ted Ries and William Weyl, but he tossed it down and surrendered without a fight.

Two Men Sought For Shooting on Street in Salem — Salem police were seeking two men in connection with the gunshot wounding of Beauford Amburgey, 24, Salem, on a Salem street early today.

Amburgey was shot in the stomach with a small caliber bullet and was in surgery late this morning for removal of the bullet. His condition before surgery was described as satisfactory.

Police said Amburgey and a companion, Richard Lee Arnold, 25, Salem, told this story:

The two were leaving a dive-in restaurant in east Salem shortly before 5 a.m. and as they drove away they saw two other men in another car whom they thought they recognized, and they waved.

The other car pulled out and followed them and about eight blocks later both cars stopped on State st. and the four got out and talked.

A man identified only as "Chuck" suddenly pulled out a gun and Amburgey was shot in the stomach. Arnold said he fled but turned and saw the other two leave in their car. He returned to Amburgey, took him to the hospital and the hospital notified police.

Additional dances have been tentatively scheduled for the near future, Lyons said, and the dates will be announced later.

How Students Are Honored Is Studied

McMinnville—Since scholarship has become important to secondary schools in the past decade, a recent recipient of the master of education degree at Linfield college undertook a study of how high school students with high grades are honored.

Annie Pates Six, McMinnville High school teacher, found that schools, education professors, parents and high school graduates "agreed" that other recognition apart from membership in a society should be and is being given to honor students.

Such possibilities as honor roll lists, banquets, tapping ceremonies, formal initiations, gold seals on diplomas and recognition through local and school newspapers were mentioned as additional ways of honoring top students.
