Two Court Cases Are Continued

The case of Terrance Raymond King, 1211 West Main st., Medford, was continued in Circuit Judge James M. Main's court yesterday afternoon to obtain a pre-sentence report.

King had waived right to a grand jury hearing and pleaded guilty to charges of obtaining money under false pretenses. He is being held in the county jail in lieu of $1,500 bail.

King is charged with issuing a false check for $30 in a Medford store Dec. 28.

Judge Main also continued the case of Howard Wolfinger, 38, of Grants Pass, to allow him to consult with an attorney. Sidney Ainsworth, Ashland, was appointed to represent him.

Wolfinger is charge with giving a false check for $60 to an Eagle Point firm July 28.

Quotes From the News

BY UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL Cincinnati—Wyatt Williams, 60-year-old sharecropper living in a tent city of jobless Negroes who claim they were fired for registering to vote: "We never had a bit of trouble before we registered."

Park Forest, Ill.—Jerry Ransford, 20-year-old brother of Marine Cpl. Butch Ransford who invited 32 buddies home for a visit: "Butch is a nice guy. He just doesn't have all his senses."

Bayonne, N.J.—John Lewandowski, who lives across the street from the scene of explosions and fire in a petroleum company plant, on seeing a man running in flames from the plant: "I can't forget his back. It was on fire."

Tampa, Fla.—E. A. Rasdale, president of the armored car company whose vault was robbed of $400,000: "They knew just what to take. They grabbed the 'heavy' currency bags—the ones with the cash and checks."

Grange Notes Weather

Eagle Point Grange A potluck dinner and a program of Christmas carols and readings preceded the Dec. 20 meeting of the Eagle Point Grange. A Christmas gift exchange and a treat of popcorn balls brought the lecturer's hour to a close.

During the business meeting, the charter was draped in memory of Holly Swingle, a member who died recently. C. C. Hoover, agricultural chairman, reported on the last county agricultural meeting at the courthouse. Harold White, from the experiment station, was the speaker. He recently returned from a meeting at Corvallis, and said that the trend in farming was toward fewer but larger farms, that family sized farms were on the way out, they were not economically feasible to operate now.

He also said that the trend in beef cattle was to the less fatty type of animal. To those interested in gardening, he said a new variety of tomato would be made available, one which would be an earlier bearing kind.

On dairy, Cliff Moore said milk prices were about the same but that Klamath hay delivered here had raised $2 a ton.

W. E. Davies gave a report on the Jackson county Stockman's meeting held recently at the Central Point Grange hall, talking on some of their problems and possible solutions of them.

Mrs. Lester McFall, HEC chairman, announced the next HEC meeting would be at Mrs. C. C. Hoover's with Mrs. C. C. Hoover as cohostess. On community service, C. C. Hoover said a new shipment of trees was expected during the following week and that they would be the blue spruce variety.

Mrs. Hazel Atkins was introduced. She was a visitor from Central Point Grange. Mrs. Steve Wilson was reported as having been ill but was improving.

Mrs. C. C. Hoover asked that anyone having sales slips to bring them to the next meeting since she has to turn them in at that time.

Mrs. Delton Stephenson, lecturer, announced that the Indian dancers from Rogue River would be featured at the Jan. 3 meeting of the Eagle Point Grange. It will be an open house program, and the public is invited. The program will start at 8 p.m. The dancers were shown here earlier in the year and a return engagement was asked for at that time.
