Many New Year Parties
Planned in Rogue Valley

Gala parties, large and small and in both homes and clubs, are planned in the Rogue valley for New Year's eve and day. Many families hold traditional open house events either on the closing day of the old year, or the first day of the new year, and various clubs are holding annual dances to "ring out the old and ring in the new."

One of the largest of the club parties is the annual New Year's eve ball planned by Medford Elks lodge at the temple, Mr. and Mrs. George Garner are chairman of the host committee. Both floors of the temple will be open for the gay event, and about 400 guests are expected.

An innovation will be a chuckwagon breakfast at 1 a.m. to replace the usual midnight supper.

Another traditional event at the club is the annual Tom and Jerry party New Year's day. It is scheduled from 12 to 4 p.m. at the temple and is for lodge members and their house guests.

Another large party will be the annual New Year's formal dance at Rogue Valley Council 12.

Speaker Announced
Kurt Singer, considered by some to be the nation's most famous expert on espionage, will be the guest speaker for Rogue Valley Knife and Fork club at their next dinner meeting Thursday, January 12.

Mr. Singer is an international veteran of wide espionage experience in several countries. He was born in Vienna and for a while during the war operated an underground newspaper in Germany a deed which caused the Nazis to issue a warrant of high treason against him.

A prolific author, Mr. Singer has written several books on his favorite subject, and his biography of Goering resulted in his being held temporarily in Sweden where he had "migrated" while the Germans cooled down after demanding confiscation of the book on the Luftwaffe chief.

Each member was asked to send a hand-written letter to her congressman urging legislation covered in two resolutions passed at the national convention held in October in San Antonio, Tex. The resolutions protested the entry of obscene literature into this country from foreign lands, and the sale of certain drugs without prescriptions.

The group planned a dinner in February, honoring husbands. Mrs. Oscar Minnick was named publicity chairman.

It was reported that Christmas wreaths and decorations had been made and delivered to three Central Point nursing homes. They were made by Mrs. C. L. Morehouse, Mrs. Charles Jantzer and Mrs. H. W. Brittain.

Mrs. Morehouse, entertainment committee chairman, led the group in carols and games. Mrs. Hill had decorated her home in the Christmas motif.

Next meeting of the club will be January 16 at the home of Mrs. Oscar Minnick, 145 Alder street, Central Point. Cohostesses will be Mrs. George Rainey and Mrs. R. B. Langston.

New York—This fashion sketch which appeared on the front page of Women's Wear Daily reportedly shows a Paris ensemble for Mrs. John Kennedy, the new First Lady. The caption reads "Ordered in New York but made in Paris, this reversible charcoal grey flannel three-piece ensemble by Bob Bugnan for Mrs. John Kennedy, was sketched in Paris." The long torso dress (at right) is topped by a hip-bone length side-closing jacket which can be worn with skirt or dress. Waist stitching details are on all three pieces. Mrs. Kennedy Changing Roles for Inauguration

By PATRICK YOUNG
United Press International
Washington—Mrs. John Kennedy will watch her husband take the oath of office as the 35th president of the United States on January 20, only eight years after she covered the first inauguration of President Eisenhower as a combination reporter-photographer-artist.

Her name was Jacqueline Bouvier then and she was working for the Washington Times-Herald.

A warm winter sun flooded the inauguration day crowd as she moved through the streets, recording her impressions with ink drawings. The following day, her story and art work appeared and graphically captured the inauguration day spirit. Her drawings included a woman eating a box lunch, a dancing Indian and a dignified, homburg-wearing diplomat buying a hot dog.

"Jackie" was only 23, but in the year she had been working for the paper, her "inquiring camera girl" feature had become well known in the capital.

It seemed strange that the girl who had been voted the "most beautiful debutante" of 1948 in Newport, R.I., and New York, would become a cub reporter.

But Jacqueline wanted to become a writer, even at $42.50 a week.

As inquiring photographer, she asked some questions which were to become important to her in later years. They included: "Should a candidate's wife campaign with her husband? Do you think inauguration day should follow closer upon election day? How does a candidate's looks influence your vote?"

Among the people she interviewed were Vice President and Mrs. Richard M. Nixon, Mrs. Morris Caltrix, Washington hostess, two of Mamie Eisenhower's nieces, and the man she later married, Sen. John F. Kennedy, the Senate's then most eligible bachelor.

Her camera and note pad recorded the views of Nixon and Kennedy in 1953 when she asked them about the Senate pages. The also asked the pages about the senators.

"I would predict that some future statesman will come from the ranks of the page corps," Vice President Nixon told Jacqueline Bouvier. "I notice that they are very quick boys, most of whom have a definite interest in politics."

"I've often thought that the country might be better off if we senators and the pages traded jobs," Kennedy said.

Said Jerry Hoobler, a page, "Senator Kennedy's always being mistaken for a tourist by the cops because he looks so young. The other day he wanted to use the special phones, and they told him, 'Sorry, mister, but these are reserved for senators.'"

Jacqueline also interviewed Nixon's daughter, Patricia, shortly after her father was elected vice president.

"What do you think of Senator Nixon now?" was the question.

"He's always away," answered Miss Nixon, then six. "If he's famous why doesn't he stay home?"

Jacqueline ended her reporter career shortly before her marriage to Kennedy with coverage of Queen Elizabeth's coronation in June, 1953.

She returned to the United States and on September 12, 1953, she married John F. Kennedy in one of the biggest society weddings of the year.

A short time ago, a reporter asked Mrs. Kennedy if she had really written the column herself.

"Listen, I wouldn't sign my name to anything I didn't write," she said flatly.

Californians Visitors Here

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Anderson and three sons, Virgil, Russell and Jimmy, San Bernardino, Calif., have left for their home after spending Christmas here with Mrs. Anderson's mother, Mrs. Opal Cox, and her two sisters, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Parrack, 1305 Woodland avenue, and Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Gemachlich, 402 North Ross lane. Mrs. Cox makes her home with the Gemachlichs.

This was the first time in 20 years that the family had been together for Christmas. The reunion was enlivened by the sudden illness of the Anderson's oldest son, Virgil, who was taken to Rogue Valley hospital late Christmas night and underwent emergency surgery.

"Preserve or Be Engulfed"
Anthropologist Declares

By GAY PAULEY
UPI Women's Editor
New York—(UPI)—To some, the bulldozer is a symbol of progress. To Leonard Outhwaite, anthropologist and explorer, it also is a symbol of what's happening to "America, the Beautiful."

Outhwaite has no quarrel with progress, nor for that matter with the bulldozer—

Full Skirts Gaining For Spring

United Press International
Full skirts are gaining for resort wear but slim ones still lead. Women's Wear Daily reports. Favorite ways of working fullness: pleats, soft and unpressed, knife or box; some gored; and Lanvin's teardrop influence. Other important skirt shapes: rounded fullness starting from long torso back; back wraps, circular cuts; side buttonings; wraparounds. Waistlines are wrapped, buckled, tied, sashed.

New resort versions of play-dresses are short, above-the-knee and unfitted, sometimes with dropped waistlines. Many follow lean lines.

Weightless fabrics provide the impact in swimwear, permitting some of the most delicate and feminine silhouettes imaginable. The relaxed mail-look looks outstanding in silk knits or silk-like synthetics. Some swimsuits feature drawing waistlines which soften bodices. Others are styled like rompers and are tied casually with string belts.

Velvet and corduroy have moved into the fashion forefront. In Paris, corduroy suits are top of the list for popularity. In London, it is velvet suits and evening coats with fur trimming.

Shirt-style sweaters are a new addition to the British shops frequented by our style cousins. The sweaters button half-way down the front and reach to hip level.

The covered-up look is new for evening, balanced by new ways to the air-conditioned look. In the cards are lots of straps, sleeves, stoles, capes, and sheer jeweled, sweater-like jackets. Bodices often are high at front, low at back.

Montana Family Leaves for Home
Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth B. Black and children, Marie, Kenneth Jr. and Paul, left Wednesday for their home in Helena, Mont., after spending the holidays here with Mr. and Mrs. F. L. Keene, 528 Fairmount avenue. Mrs. Keene and Mr. Black are brother and sister.

Other guests of the Keenes for Christmas dinner were Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Black, Mrs. Keene's parents, and Mr. and Mrs. M. W. Black Jr., Ashland.

Buffet Supper Given by Couple
Illinois Valley - Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Brown entertained a group of guests at a buffet dinner December 25.

Their guests were Mr. and Mrs. Howard H. Taylor and daughter, Torrance, Calif., Mrs. Sanford Cohen, Hollywood, Calif., Pfc. Lanny Taylor, who is an admiral's orderly on the USS Essex; Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Brown, a sister of the host, Mr. and Mrs. Howard L. Taylor, Roger Taylor and son, Bert; and Mrs. Dana Gathwright, all Medford.

Holiday Visitors At Renfro Home
Illinois Valley—Ronnie Renfro arrived in Cave Junction December 23 to spend the holidays with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harlan Renfro. The young man is stationed with the Army at Fort Riley, Kan., and came to Portland by jet plane. His parents met him in Grants Pass.

Also visiting the Renfros is a nephew, Harold Renfro, Hayward, Calif., a former resident and star basketball player at Illinois Valley High school.

Good For Holiday Ham
A variety of material may be used to glaze the ham which is a favorite food for New Year's eve and day parties. The glaze should be put on during the last half hour of cooking.

For a honey-orange glaze, mix ½ cup honey or light corn syrup with one cup brown sugar and ½ cup orange juice.

Another glaze uses one cup honey with ½ cup orange marmalade and a dash of Tabasco sauce.

An apricot-pineapple glaze may be made with one cup brown sugar, ½ cup canned apricot nectar, ½ cup pineapple juice. Cook until thickened.

For a cranberry glaze, use ½ cup light corn syrup with one cup canned whole or jelled cranberry sauce.
