There's always something new for Christmas. This year we received a package, which came from a New York City department store, tied with red and gold elasticized ribbon. Stretch ribbon was a new idea to us, and we think it's a good one. As for Potpourri, we couldn't wrap or decorate packages without cellophane tape.

A woman who lives in Jacksonville was absolutely flabbergasted over one of her gifts. It is a beautiful, hand-engraved, sterling silver measuring cup. She was a bit flattered, too, for the engraved inscription hailed her as a good cook. She is, too.

Pal Peg drew our attention to an advertisement in the New York Times which listed "we'll bet you didn't know about this" presents. One article was false eyelashes for pooches.

Mrs. L. D. Inskip knows for sure that the wishes of today's children are in tune with the times. Her eight-year-old grandson, Jules Albert Prevot, begged his mother for a real, live baby buffalo. One of Mrs. Inskip's granddaughters asked Santa Claus for "rocket shoes."

Last week was a most hectic one for the society gals, inundated with large and important wedding stories. But we still had time to enjoy funny stories. Mrs. Kirkland West, answering questions about her family, offered a story told by her daughter, Mrs. Christopher Williams, Seattle. Mrs. Williams was outdoors to take her small son for an airing when a group of small children gathered around.

"What's the baby's name?" inquired one youngster, and Mrs. Williams replied "Ben."

"Ben Hur?" asked the youngster whereupon a girl burst out, scornfully, "Can't you see it's a boy? It's Ben him!"

A young girl we know telephoned an adult to thank her for a gift. "How nice of you to call" said the adult, somewhat at a loss for conversation. "Oh, it was mother's idea" said the girl, with refreshing candor.

Happy New Year!—O.S.

Women of World Write Major Chapter in History

By MARCIA MILANOWSKI United Press International Chicago—(UPI)—Women wrote a major chapter in the history of 1960.

The names that stood out as the first year of the new decade ended included Jacqueline Kennedy, Princess Margaret, Pat Nixon, Queen Elizabeth, Barbara Powers, and Queen Farah Diba.

They are central figures in election campaigns, in royal births and marriages, and in international incidents.

There were pageantry and simplicity, hope and the walk down the aisle of Westminster Abbey for Britain's Princess Margaret. The girl just about everyone had relegated to spinsterhood married a commoner and former photographer, Antony Armstrong-Jones.

Escapades of heiress debutantes sparked the flame of romance in adventures around the world. Gamble Benedict and ex-chef Andre Porumbescu, 35, finally said "I do" in a North Carolina town after a hide-and-peek elopement to Paris and a tug-of-war battle with Grandmother Benedict, the power behind the Remington typewriter fortune.

Nanette Wallace married her soldier from North Carolina with the blessings of her mother, but only after an elopement from Frange to Germany. Miss Wallace's mother, Mrs. Patricia Wallace Vanderbilt, is the ex-wife of millionaire Cornelius Vanderbilt, Jr. Prince Born Queen Elizabeth gave Britain its second royal prince, the first to be born to a reigning British monarch in more than a century. Queen Farah Diba of Iran presented the Shah with his first son, and the throne with his next heir.

Princess Michiko of Japan gave birth to her first child, also a boy.

King Baudouin, the bachelor monarch of Belgium, surprised royal matchmakers by taking a Spanish bride, Dona Fabiola de Mora y Aragon. The beloved Princess Suga of Japan married a commoner.

America's queens made headlines, too. Skating star Carol Heiss won a gold medal at the Winter Olympics and later her fifth world figure skating title. Neenan, the new queen in women's track, taking three gold medals in Olympic contests in Rome.

A lovely queen from Montague, Mich., took the Miss America crown. She's 18-year-old Nancy Anne Fleming.

In politics, Pat Nixon launched a campaign of her own for First Lady, but lost out to 31-year-old Jacqueline Kennedy. In November, Mrs. Kennedy gave birth to her second child and first son, John F. Kennedy, Jr.

Women Elected

Maurine Neuberger won her late husband's senatorial seat in Oregon. She'll be on the opposite side of the aisle from Margaret Chase Smith, Maine Republican, who was re-elected after a historic race with another woman, Mrs. Lucia Cormier. It was the first time in history two women competed for a Senate seat.

In Ceylon, Mrs. Sirima Banderanaike, was elected premier, the first woman in history to hold such a post. She succeeded her husband who was assassinated.

May day, and a fateful mission, the haunting story of a pilot's wife—Barbara Powers, wife of the U-2 pilot sentenced to 10 years of hard labor in Russia after being convicted of espionage. The 28-year-old Georgia woman was plummaged into an international spotlight that dimmed only when the goodbyes were said in a dark and bare Moscow prison.

Space news took a woman's turn with adventurous Jerrie Cobb. The slender 29-year-old blonde from Oklahoma underwent a series of physical and psychological tests, similar to those taken by seven male astronauts.

Ceremony at Strom Home Marries Medford Couple

Miss Mavis Evelyn Strom became the bride of Dennis Ronald Lundgren in a home wedding December 26 at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Perry A. Strom, 1464 Dixie lane. Mr. Lundgren is a son of Mrs. E. V. Franklin, 1224 Stewart avenue, and the late Ronald Lundgren.

The Rev. Edward C. Bush of the Free Methodist church officiated at the 6:30 o'clock evening rites attended by 35 relatives and friends. The double ring service was held on the 43rd wedding anniversary of the bride's maternal grandparents.

The bride wore a ballroom length frock fashioned with fitted lace bodice, long sleeves and front skirt panel and overskirt of satin. Her elbow length veil was held by a band of staphanotis and she carried a bouquet of calla lilies. She wore a gold and pearl necklace which had been a wedding gift to her grandmother by her maternal grandfather. Mr. Strom gave his daughter in marriage.

Miss Loretta Caldwell attended the bride. She wore a red satin dress and her head-dress was of staphanotis. She carried white chrysanthemums. Little Cindy Franklin, sister of the bridegroom, was flower girl. She wore a red velvet frock with a matching headband and carried white chrysanthemums.

Merrill Stemberge served as best man and Clair Varney acted as ring bearer. Barry Brown served as ring bearer. White tapers and red poinsettias decorated the fireplace for the ceremony.

Mrs. Strom chose a Kelly green taffeta dress and Mrs. Franklin a blackberry colored wool dress for the wedding and reception which followed. Their corsages were red and white carnations.

Mrs. Merrill Stemberge cut and served the wedding cake and Miss Linda Wicker poured punch and coffee. Miss Marjorie Wonderly was in charge of the guest book. Miss Loretta Myers also helped serve. Miss Caroline Knaack was at the gift table.

Sentiment played an important part in the wedding and reception. The knife used to cut the cake was a wedding gift to the bride's maternal great grandmother from her husband 77 years ago; the table linen had been used by the great-grandmother of the bridegroom 75 years ago and the Christmas bells arranged on the serving table had been collected year-by-year for the bridegroom by his mother. The bridegroom's cake was baked by the grandmother of the bridegroom in Saltcoats, Saskatchewan, Canada, and sent for the ceremony.

The couple traveled to San Francisco on their wedding trip the bride wearing for traveling a white wool dress with red and black accessories. They are making their home at 342 Summit avenue.
