Amendment Also Would Require Judicial Work

Washington — (UPI) — Sen. Herman E. Talmadge introduced a constitutional amendment today which in effect would kill the Supreme Court ruling that Negroes may not be barred from white schools on racial grounds.

The Georgia Democrat also offered a bill which would prevent federal courts from enforcing integration of southern schools.

In a speech prepared for delivery in the Senate, Talmadge linked his proposals with the integration crises at the University of Georgia and in New Orleans, although he did not cite them specifically.

He also introduced measures to demand that Supreme Court justices have at least five years of substantial judicial experience, force the Supreme Court to accord full hearings to all parties before acting on lower court rulings and require jury trials in all contempt cases arising from disobedience of lower court decisions.

Talmadge previously has introduced this legislative package with little success. But he vowed to keep pushing his proposals.

Committee Chairman J. William Fulbright (D-Ark.) said he knew of no objection to the appointment. Treasury Secretary-designate Douglas Dillon outlined his fiscal views Wednesday to the Senate Finance committee and completes his testimony Friday.

Teamsters: Teamsters President James R. Hoffa's appearance before a new Senate investigation of his union appeared likely to be postponed until next week. Chairman John L. McClellan (D-Ark.) of the Senate sub-committee on investigations said he hoped the inquiry would show that New York Teamsters locals are dominated by racketeers despite Hoffa's promise to clean up his union. Subcommittee investigators attempted to show Wednesday that "dummy" officers were placed on the payroll of New York Local 239 to divert union funds to hoodlums. Five officers of 239 took the Fifth Amendment.

Authorities Press Investigation Into Portland Slayings

Portland — (UPI) — Authorities pressed their investigation today into the Peyton - Allan murder case in hopes of coming up with a lead that would locate the slayers of a Portland State college student and his pretty coed girlfriend.

Officers said there were some people they wanted to talk to but indicated there was nothing to link them with the case.

One, authorities said, is a sailor from the Tongue Point Naval Station near Astoria, who obtained a 48-hour work and pass for Nov. 26 and 27 and has not returned to the base.

Editor May Be USIA Director

Palm Beach, Fla. — (UPI) — President-elect John F. Kennedy is considering the possibility of naming the liberal North Carolina editor and author, Jonathan Daniels, as head of the United States Information Agency, it was learned today.

Daniels, editor of the Raleigh News and Observer, is one of three men under active consideration for the USIA post and his name figured in a conference today between Kennedy and Gov. Terry Sanford of North Carolina, according to well informed sources.

Kennedy has not made up his mind about a final selection, but these sources said Daniels figured prominently in the president-elect's deliberations. A public announcement was expected before the Jan. 20 inauguration.

Daniels is a veteran at government service. He served on the White House staffs of Presidents Roosevelt and Truman. The USIA post has been vacant since the recent resignation of George V. Allen.

EATING HABITS
Washington — Consumption of food on a per capita basis in the U.S. amounts to 1,600 pounds in a normal year.

Another is an ex-convict who obtained his release from the Portland city jail in December. Police said he did not satisfactorily explain what was believed to be a bullet wound in his arm.

Larry Ralph Peyton, 19, was found stabbed to death in his car in a lover's lane here the night of Nov. 27. The body of Beverly Ann Allan, 19-year-old coed from Washington State, was found Monday near the Sunset Highway about 40 miles west of here. Police said she had been strangled.

Authorities went to Tongue Point Wednesday and said an abandoned car found in the general area where Miss Allan's body was discovered had been satisfactorily explained.

WHALE REMOVED — San Francisco port authority workers haul the carcass of a dead whale away Thursday after it was pulled out from under Pier 50 on the waterfront where it had been trapped when it could not escape and succeeded only in badly injuring itself by battering against the steel hull of a ship. The 4,000-pound, 20-foot long carcass will be processed for cat food in Richmond, Calif. — (UPI Telephoto)

Wayward Whale Now Cat Food

San Francisco — (UPI) — San Franciscans sniffed the air cautiously today and breathed a sigh of relief — the body of the wayward whale of Pier 50 was gone.

The carcass of the 20-foot grey whale was removed from the maze of pilings below the pier Wednesday and towed away to become whale oil and cat food.

late Monday night and was badly injured trying to free itself. It was shot by the humane society Tuesday, but there was a delay in the decision about what should be done with the carcass.

The SPCA said its responsibility ended when the whale was put out of its misery, the Coast Guard maintained it was no "peril to navigation" lying under a pier, and the state fish and game people said it was no concern of theirs.

The American President Lines, which rents Pier 50, argued that it was "not a good situation."

The aroma of dead whale tends to detract from the romance of beginning a cruise to the South Seas.

The Port Authority came up with the solution. It maintained that if the carcass was dragged from under the pier and into the bay, it would become a peril to navigation, and therefore the responsibility of the Coast Guard.

Advisors Say U.S. May Have to Delay Spaceman Program

Washington — (UPI) — Advisors to President-elect John F. Kennedy have suggested that the United States might have to switch missiles for its man-in-space program possibly causing a delay of at least a year in putting an astronaut in orbit.

The possibility was raised Wednesday in a report submitted to Kennedy by a special "task force." The report said the man-in-space program is "marginal" and if the Atlas proves inadequate for the job "it may be necessary to push alternatives vigorously," the report said.

The first possibility appears to be the Titan, although it has not yet demonstrated the reliability which is required. We should study the possibility of a Titan-boosted Mercury program.

A member of the task force, who asked not to be named, went even further in his personal opinion of Mercury program.

Gardner a long-time critic of U.S. space and missile policies.

At best, according to the task force, it is "very unlikely" that America will be able to beat Russia in putting a man into orbit. The report said too much publicity has been given to this competitive aspect of the space effort.

Says Program is "Marginal"

The Mercury man-in-space program is "marginal" and if the Atlas proves inadequate for the job "it may be necessary to push alternatives vigorously," the report said.

"We mean it's a sick program," he said. "It was marginal from the beginning, and we should take a hard look at it before we decide to continue it."

Squall Sinks Ship

Algeciras, Spain — (UPI) — A vicious Mediterranean squall that struck with little warning apparently caused the sinking of a tiny ship carrying families of Jewish emigrants to Israel Wednesday.

The captain and two crewmen were the only known survivors out of 40 Jewish men, women and children and five crewmen aboard the ship "Pisces" when it foundered off the Moroccan coast.

The three survivors were picked up by a fishing boat after clinging to a life preserver for hours and taken ashore to Alhucemas, Morocco.

Authorities refused to allow them to speak to anyone and the details of the sinking remained shrouded in mystery.

Rescue ships had picked 22 bodies from the sea before darkness interrupted the search Wednesday night.

Memphis, Tenn. — (UPI) — Ambulance driver Bill King got a call for help from B. J. Lewis, a dog lover: "Our dog needs oxygen, will you help?" Lewis asked.

King raced to the Lewis home. He and others formed a mask with their hands and gave the 12-year-old mixed spaniel-bulldog oxygen. The dog survived.
