Ensembles and Costumes Dominate Spring Fashions

By GAY PAULEY
UPI Women's Editor
New York (UPI)—It's the mating season in the fashion world.

The getting-together is personified in ensembles, or costumes, which far outnumber the traditional two-piece suit in numbers in the spring collection of clothes.

Cropped jackets come with sleeveless dresses or blouses in coordinated colors. Long jackets—really short coats that mate with other parts of a wardrobe—are shown with their own dresses or skirts. Even the eternal triangle is around, in the form of skirt plus blouse plus jacket, lined in the same fabric as the blouse.

Master of the art of match-making is Roxane, designer for Samuel Winston. At the show Wednesday for reporters covering the New York couture group's semiannual

"press week," Winston included a whole batch of costumes mated right down to the accessories. For instance: One group of ensembles consisted of abstract print jackets, in silk, about hip length; solid color dress beneath, and hat and purse a repeat of the jacket print.

Nearly every one of the 30-plus designers in the couture group included the dress and coat ensemble for both daytime and evening wear come spring and summer.

Herbert Sondheim showed silk and linen blended coats of solid shades, lined with the prints of the dresses which completed the costumes.

Davidow, a house famous for its classic line suits, used splashy prints to line jackets worn over dresses or with skirts of solid shade worsted.

Some better "inside story" stuff came from Paul Parnes, whose designer Beni Claire used scarf linings for suit jackets. Claire used the borders of the scarves as well as the body of the material for an unusual effect.

Coats in all the new collections came in two major silhouettes. One was plump, the other lean.

A leading exponent of the voluminous silhouette in coats was Originala, which featured several with bat-wing, cape-like dimensions.

Highlights of other collections shown Wednesday: Harvey Berin—Designer Karen Stark continued her "walking stick" silhouette for daytime, a pencil-slim cut dress especially flattering to the young figures of white collar girls.

Ceil Chapman—The designer best known for her evening clothes bared more shoulder than knee. Shoulders were exposed fore and aft, with dipping necklines. Collar bones abounded.

Rudolf Gowns—This house, which makes late day and evening wear also, offered a series of "naked" wools, one way of describing the new sheer fabrics almost as airy as cheesecloth. Each dress fashioned in the sheer wools was lined in China silk. Silhouettes were about evenly divided between slim and full, but in either case the waistline always was defined.

Each year the Medford chapters celebrate the founding of the PEO Sisterhood. The actual founding took place January 21, 1869, when seven girls attending Iowa Wesleyan university in Mount Pleasant, Iowa, advanced the idea of a sisterhood to perpetuate their friendship long after college days were over.

Although it still maintains as its first interest, friendship and cultural activities, educational projects have been added through the years. Its revolving loan fund for girls, started in 1907, totaling nearly $1,000,000, has through the years helped more than 12,600 girls, with loans totaling $5,700,000. Three hundred seventy-five of these loan fund girls have been Oregonians.

PEO also owns and maintains its own junior college for women at Colley college, Nevada, Mo. The enrollment this year is 350.

The newest phase of the sisterhood's educational program is an international peace scholarship project started in 1949 to give tangible expression to the PEOs' belief that education is fundamental to world peace and understanding. Since then 537 scholarships, totaling more than $420,000, have been awarded. This year two PEO international peace scholarship students are registered in Oregon schools.

A fitted cutaway jacket and pleated swing skirt are George Garmel's prescription for a calm spring silhouette. Shown in New York, the ensemble is done in a hot pink lightweight wool, the suit buttons to conceal a short-sleeved tuck-in blouse of pink silk geometric print that matches the lining of the jacket. Jefferson PTA Names Speaker
Dr. Mary Jane Fowler will speak for a meeting of Jefferson School Parent-Teacher association Friday, January 13, at 2:30 p.m. in the school cafeteria.

Dr. Fowler, an ophthalmologist, will speak on "The Effects of Television on Children." Baby-sitting service will be provided during the meeting.

A cash will be given to one of the children who has a birthday during the month of February.

Sister Becomes Honored Queen Of Bethel 22

Ashland—Miss Judy Eberhart followed in the footsteps of her sister, Mrs. Jack Coffin, Medford, when she became honored queen of Bethel 22, Job's Daughters, at a formal installation held recently in the Ashland Masonic temple.

Parents of the new queen are Mr. and Mrs. Jean Eberhart, 248 Wimer street.

Installed with her were Miss Peggy Parsons, senior princess; Miss Carol Bjork, junior princess; Miss Janie Clark, guide, and Miss Kathy Zimmerlee, marshal.

Also Miss Janet Graham, chaplain; Miss Helen Caldwell, recorder; Miss Tana Laird, musician; the Misses Kandy Korthase, Kay Newton, Karen Brown, Lucy Keating and Sheri Kinyon, messengers; Miss Jody MacCollister, senior custodian; Miss Mary Linda Rhodes, junior custodian; Miss Pat Lorton, librarian; Miss Judy Benson, treasurer; Miss Sandy Garrett and Miss Diane Benson, guards; Miss Linda Hughes, Lady of Lights; Miss Traci Fontaine, page; Miss Gerry Rogers, prompter; and Miss Jemily MacCollister, historian.

Installing team was made up of Miss Betty MacDonald, retiring queen; Mrs. Jack Coffin, Mrs. Leon McDougall, Miss Sara Vandenberg, Miss Pat Parsons, Miss Christine McGee, Miss Nancy Lininger, Miss Teresa Six of Medford Bethel 50, Miss Sue Mittag, and Rick Callahan, master counselor of De Molay, who placed the crown on Queen Judy's head.

Taking part in the ceremonies were De Molays Bud Lininger, Ron Kirsher, Miles Adams, Mike Rountree, Bob Hegdahl, Kent Chamberlain and Dale Peterson. Candelighters were Delores Westgaard and Janet Miller. Crown bearers were Steve Parsons and Randy Callahan. Susie Hays carried the Bible.

Many visiting officers and guardians from other Bethels were in attendance, in addition to parents and families of the newly installed officers. At the conclusion of the ceremonies an addendum in honor of the new queen was given closing with a vocal trio composed of Miss Jean Forrest, Miss Susie Folks and Miss Sue Mittag singing "Let There Be Peace on Earth."

A reception in the dining hall preceded the formal installation.

They were presented to Walter Humes for first; Walter Grow, second; George Mitchell, third; David Glatfelter, fourth; John Levine, fifth; William Vail, sixth; Franklin Gilbert, seventh; Thomas G. Randall, eighth.

Family Dinner Set For Group

Phoenix—The January meeting of Phoenix Garden club will be a family potluck dinner to be held Friday, January 13, in the Phoenix Grange hall at 8:30 p.m.

All those attending are asked to take a covered dish and table service. Mrs. T. W. Carter is chairman of the serving committee and will be assisted by Mrs. Jesse Wilson, Mrs. George Bourne and Mrs. A. E. Stevens. Dinner will be followed by entertainment. Mr. and Mrs. O. V. Poe will show slides of their tour of Alaska during the past summer.

In South

Applegate—Mrs. Lyle Stoner is spending ten days visiting in Los Angeles with her mother.

Organs bloom after dark in an exotic floral pattern of rust and white as Karen Stark includes this pretty print in her spring collection for Harvey Berin in New York. High midriff drapery, punctuated by two big satin roses, nips a lily waistline. The artfully-shaped skirt features controlled fullness about the hips. (UPI Telephoto)

Mrs. Kennedy Chooses Press Aide

Palm Beach, Fla.—UPI—Mrs. John F. Kennedy shifted her "press worries" today to the shoulders of a politically trained young woman.

She is Miss Pamela Turnure, a former secretary on the senatorial staff of President-elect John F. Kennedy.

Miss Turnure, a New Yorker, was picked by Mrs. Kennedy to be her press spokeswoman in the White House, and she confesses the prospect is still "a bit overwhelming."

The pretty, brown-haired new first lady press secretary falls into the tradition of youth that typifies the Kennedy administration. She once wanted to be an interior decorator, but she found that politics was more alluring.

She learned the big news Wednesday when she paid a call on Jacqueline Kennedy at her winter vacation home here. "We talked about taking over her press worries," Miss Turnure said in an interview with a UPI reporter.

The next first lady has been besieged with requests for interviews. But she has turned them down during her recuperative period from the Caesarian birth of her son, John Jr., November 26.

Miss Turnure, who is as tall as her boss, 5 feet, 5 inches, and slender, has a reputation for looking chic in her clothes. When interviewed she was wearing an olive green wool with turquoise beads.

To Meet

The Medford Fifty Plus club will meet Friday, January 13, at 12:30 p.m. at St. Mark's Episcopal church. Those attending are to take a sack lunch.

PTA Executive Speaks About Education Bills

It is believed that more than 600 bills dealing with education and the welfare of children and youth will be introduced into this session of congress according to Mrs. Owen Kunkel, Medford, a regional vice-president of the Oregon Congress of Parents and Teachers.

Mrs. Kunkel spoke of this during the recent meeting at Lincoln school which observed the state-wide "Lights on for Education" project. Mrs. Kunkel, a member of Lincoln Parent-Teacher association, spoke briefly of several of these proposed bills and urged parents and teachers to send for copies of bills in which they are interested, and to study these. Any PTA officer will aid citizens in obtaining copies of bills, she said.

Another speaker on the program was William Abbott, who talked about the Jackson County Juvenile Detention home. Mr. Abbott, a former member of the home's advisory board, spoke about the manner in which the home is operated and stressed that it is not intended as a correctional institution. He praised the management.

Mrs. Robert Hord, program chairman, had arranged for the PTA Mothersingers to appear. Participating in this part of the program were Mrs. Herman Steek, Mrs. Cecil Davis, Mrs. Leroy Williams, Mrs. Jerald Schwinder, Mrs. Lucia Van Gordon and Mrs. Richard Schuchard, accompanist.

Mrs. Glen Stewart, Lincoln Parent-Teacher association, president and Mrs. Billy Dean and Mrs. Lloyd Hanner poured during the refreshment hour.

Weatonka Council Plans Ceremony

Weatonka council, Degree of Pocahontas, will hold installation of officers Friday, January 13 at 8 p.m. in Redman hall on Apple street.

Vancouver Couple Guests in Hornbrook

Hornbrook—Recent guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Bear were Mr. and Mrs. Harold Davis, Vancouver, B.C. The Davises were enroute home from a trip to Tijuana, Mexico. They had also attended the New Year's day Rose Bowl game at Pasadena.

Visitors Return From Washington

Gold Hill—Mrs. Paul Thompson, Miss Jennie Lou Thompson and Miss Judi Force have returned to their homes here following a visit during the holidays with relatives in Washington.

In Seattle they were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Philip Thompson. Keven Thompson, son of the Philip Thompsons, returned to his home with the visitors after spending several weeks in southern Oregon at the homes of his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Wright, White City and the Paul Thompsons in Gold Hill.

Enroute home Mrs. Thompson and the two young women were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Thompson, Tacoma, and at Hillsboro, Ore., at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Neil Bush.

Student, Family Hornbrook Visitors

Hornbrook—Recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Jeter were their son, Bill, a student at Chico State college, and their daughter and her family, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Campbell and sons, Rick and Timmy, Compton, Calif.

Also here were Mr. and Mrs. David Holland, Corvallis, Ore., and their son, Bill, Happy Camp. They were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Dwain Hanner.

Members Attend Club Ceremony In Grants Pass

A number of local Townsend club members were in Grants Pass Saturday for the installation of 1961 council members of the Grants Pass Townsend club. Arthur C. Lewis, Medford, is state deputy Townsend club organizer for southern Oregon and Mrs. Florence Boussum was installing officer.

The Grants Pass club was organized last summer with about 50 charter members.

Installation Dinner Set For Two Kiwanian Groups

*Joint installation of officers of Medford Kiwanis club and Kiwanian Dames will be held on Saturday evening at a dinner-dance at Rogue Valley Country club.

Peter Cudd, Grants Pass, division lieutenant-governor, will be installing officer. Paul Selby, past president of the Medford club, will serve as master of ceremonies. Music will be provided by the Kiwanis band.

Methodist Women Focus Attention On Guild Program

The history of Wesleyan Service guild was outlined by Miss Annette Gray at a supper given last week by guild members of First Methodist church.

The guild originated in Chicago in 1921, having been organized for gainfully employed women of the Methodist church. Seventeen units were formed at that time, with a membership of 26 women. Today the membership figure stands at 131,170.

Mrs. Florence Gilkison of Medford is a charter member from Chicago.

During the business meeting plans were outlined for guild activities during January, which has been designated as guild month. Sunday, January 15, guild members will attend church in a body.

Mrs. O. P. Taylor, president of Sussannah unit, will be the "minute" speaker. Other guild members will serve as greeters at both services at each Sunday during the month. Youth groups will be assisted during January.

The monthly meeting of Ruth Esther guild has been changed to January 2 because of the conflict with a concert of Jackson County Civic Music association January 16.

Returns

Sams Valley—Miss Carolyn Edwards has returned to Provo, Utah, where she is a student at Brigham Young university. Miss Edwards is a major in psychology. Miss Edwards spent two weeks with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Sam Edwards.

Dick West, who writes "The Lighter Side" for United Press, says—lightly—that he thinks the fashion industry has "just sold us a bill of goods." Well, Potpourri often thinks so, but not on the same basis that Mr. West does.

Here is what Mr. West has to say: "The thing that I have been ogling with the old fish-eye is the recently published list of the world's 12 best-dressed women of 1960. I can't help feeling that the selection was not entirely on the up-and-up."

The winners, we are told, were picked by 2,000 fashion experts and observers who participated in an international poll conducted by the New York Couture Group.

It was, we are also told, the collective judgment of those polled that the best-dressed list should be headed by Mrs. John F. Kennedy, wife of the U.S. president-elect.

Now I am not suggesting that the poll was rigged, I credit the New York Couture Group with being more ethical than certain television quiz show producers.

Nor am I suggesting that Mrs. Kennedy didn't deserve the honor. I might have voted for her myself if I had been consulted in the matter.

Nevertheless, there are certain factors involved which make me wonder whether the 1960 list was chosen in the spirit of impartial, unbiased, scientific accuracy.
