PTA Program Attracts Many; Party Planned

A large group of parents and teachers attended the Washington School Parent-Teacher association's meeting on "Lights on for Education."

Taking part in a panel discussion on education legislation were Mrs. Leigh Gustison, president of the Oregon Congress of Parents and Teachers; Keith Hoekersmith, member of the school board; Verne Wolthoff, Medford high school teacher and member of Oregon Education association; and Monte Morris, moderator. Introductions were made by Mrs. Nils Edin, legislative chairman.

Discussed were distribution of state funds, financing the schools in Oregon, waiving state standards, teacher tenure, education of migrant children, mentally retarded children, obscenity laws and educational television.

Mrs. Gustison concluded that it is time to be curious, informed and aware of legislation pertaining to children and schools, but not "to lose ourselves in the matter of cost, administration and education, alone." First, she said, "we must concern ourselves with a healthy, happy and emotionally well adjusted individual."

A quartet of Otis Swisher, John Drysdale, Carol Graber and Ron Bartlett sang and the executive board served refreshments.

The group's next regular meeting will be Friday, February 10, at 2:30 p.m., with a program on the exceptional child. A dessert luncheon, style show and card party will be held February 17.

Designer Gives Details Of Inauguration Costumes

By GAY PAULEY
UPI Women's Editor
New York - (UPI) - Beige and white are the starting colors in the inaugural wardrobe of Mrs. John F. Kennedy, the next first lady whom her personal designer calls the "perfect model."

Oleg Cassini, 47, revealed Thursday that the 31-year-old Mrs. Kennedy chose fawn beige for a day time dress and coat ensemble and "pristine white satin" for one of the formal gowns which she will wear during the Inaugural festivities later this week. The gown for the Inaugural balls will not be a Cassini design, and details of its fabric and color still are undisclosed.

One of the ensembles already selected has a touch of sable. The daytime coat, with semi-fitted shape, slightly flared hemline, and simple rounded neckline is topped with a removable circlet of Russian sable fastened with a small bow.

The dress to go with the coat is a one-piece soft wool natural shoulder and rounded neckline. Matching silk serge at the waist and cuffs is the only accent.

The one formal gown announced is "a mere covering of pristine white satin," Cassini said. He called it "pure in line, pure in color, pure in detail. One fluid line from shoulder to floor, unbroken except for the beguiling bow at the waistline."

Cassini, as "official and personal designer," said that with him doing all of Mrs. Kennedy's clothes, there should not be a repetition of that incident during the Eisenhower Administration when a White House guest showed up at a reception wearing the same dress as the First Lady. "Mrs. Kennedy is the most perfect model any designer could work with," said Cassini. "She is a woman with great style who has already created her own 'Kennedy look.' This look will be continued. Clothes will have fluid, cool lines, understated and uncluttered."

Club Has Meeting At Rogers Home

Tiller-Club 227 met at the Glenn Rogers home January 6 for a social evening. Refreshments were served by the hostess.

Milton Singler, Rufus Younger, Mrs. Younger, all of Medford, together with Mrs. George Engel, Mrs. Richard Grubb and Mrs. Howard Sanborn, Ashland.

The officers and board members were installed by Mrs. Roberts in a candle lighting ceremony patterned after the Camp Fire ceremonial. Retiring directors honored at the meeting were Larry Clark, Dr. Irene Hollenback and Mrs. J. P. Rowan, vice-president and past president of the council.

Mrs. Tom H. Gerety, executive director, was mistress of ceremonies for the program which preceded the business meeting. The Camp Fire Girls chorus, directed by Mrs. Herbert Partridge, opened the program with the Golden Jubilee song. A group of Bluebirds and Camp Fire Girls in uniform gave the Bluebirds' wish, the trailseekers, wood gatherers and firemakers desires, telling of the many activities in which they had engaged during the year in order to earn the various awards in the latter three ranks. These included service projects to the community, camp craft, leadership, overnight hikes, nature lore and tailoring.

On display were notebooks and crafts of senior high school Camp Fire Girls. A booklet, containing the annual report of the council and its plans for the future, was distributed to the leaders, guardians and parents present.

The guest speakers, Mrs. Dolores M. Holzgang and Frank Drew, both of the Klamath Camp Fire Girls council board, were introduced by Mrs. Gerety. Mrs. Holzgang, a leader in many phases of the movement and one of three qualified teachers of Camper Craft in the state, gave highlights of the six day Camp Fire Girls Golden Jubilee convention in New York which she had attended as a representative of this region.

She reported that attendance at the convention was 2,359 making the largest single group that the Commodore hotel had ever housed. She said that as a result of the many changes proposed for the new program, the book of Camp Fire Girls will have to be completely rewritten. Mrs. Holzgang reported that one of the most thrilling events of the convention was the presentation of the Camp Fire Girls commemorative stamp by a representative of the postmaster general. She also mentioned the art exhibit containing the work of Joy Huntemann of Medford.

Dr. Drew, council president of Klamath Falls, described their present camp, Esther Applegate, on the south side of Lake of the Woods and outlined future building plans for the 12 1/2 acre site. The program closed with a boating song by the Camp Fire chorus. Following the meeting, refreshments were served from a long table banked with holly boughs and red tapers. Decorations were made by Mrs. Rowan.
