Benefit Buffet Set In Central Point

Central Point - A community benefit for Mrs. Verna Bowen, wife of Police Chief Wallace Bowen, is scheduled Monday, Jan. 16, between 5 and 11 p.m. in the Pioneer cafe.

The event is designed to "show the community's appreciation" of Chief Bowen's dedicated service to Central Point, according to Ruth Arndt, chairman of the affair. Proceeds will be used to defray Mrs. Bowen's hospital and surgical expenses.

Assisting in the benefit are the Peace Officers' association, the Lions club, Jaycees, the Naval Reserve unit, the American Legion, and other citizens and merchants here.

Legislative Briefs

Salem - (UP) - A salary hike of 12 per cent for Oregon state police is provided in a Senate bill introduced by Al Flegel, D-Roseburg and Anthony Yurri, R-Ontario. It would boost salaries of patrolmen to $5,520 annually and captain to $9,270.

The House Committee on Labor and Industries said Friday it would draft a resolution asking the state of Washington to extend workmen's compensation coverage to Oregon employees hired by Oregon firms working on jobs in Washington.

Rep. Edward Whelan, D-Portland, said Oregon is now giving the coverage. Sen. Robert W. Straub, D-Eugene, said Thursday he has introduced a bill creating summer work camps operated by the state forestry department for boys between the ages of 15 and 19.

Duties outlined in the bill include pruning young trees, thinning, forest sanitation, stream clearance and building and maintaining fire trails. The camps also would be available for emergency fire control work, he said.

Rep. Ken Maher, R-Portland, said Thursday he will introduce a bill to raise the legal driving age in Oregon from 16 to 18 years and making 17 the minimum age for a learner's permit.

At present a learner's permit may be obtained at age 15. Maher said the bill will provide for issuance of a driver's license to those under 18 only if the license is necessary for transportation to school or for employment.

Wishes for a speedy recovery to Rex Putnam, superintendent of public instruction who is hospitalized here, were sent Thursday by the Joint House-Senate Committee on Education.

The Senate Rules committee decided Thursday to do away with the practice of introduction of bills by request of private groups and state agencies.

In the House, bills may still be introduced by a legislator designating who asked him to introduce it. The Senate change means the private groups and others must line up a sponsor to introduce the bills as the senator's own.

Oregon Civil Defense Director A. M. Sheets Thursday asked the House Judiciary Committee to introduce a continuity of government bill to implement the constitutional amendment approved by the voters last November.

Among other things, the bill would provide for succession to the governorship and an emergency session of the legislature in case of attack. The Joint House-Senate Committee on Education had a good-natured laugh Thursday when two Musas chimed in simultaneously on a roll call vote.

The husband-wife team - Sen. Ben Musa, and Rep. Katherine Musa, of The Dalles, both Democrats - rarely meet in official legislative situations. Musa, however, belongs to the Senate Education committee and his wife to the Education committee in the House. The roll call mump came at one of the committee's infrequent joint meetings.

While the rest of the committee chuckled, both Musas looked a little sheepish about the whole thing. House Speaker Robert Duncan said Thursday there is "no pressing need" to repeal the 1953 Neuberger amendment which requires a state appointee to be of the same political party as the person whom he is succeeding.

Repeat legislation has been introduced by Rep. George Van Hoomissen, D-Portland, who says the Neuberger amendment is unconstitutional. Duncan and Van Hoomissen both are members of the House Judiciary committee which will consider the bill. Van Hoomissen is chairman. Another Oregon legislator got a personal spittoon beside his desk Thursday. Sen. Al Flegel, D-Roseburg, made the presentation on the floor of the Oregon Senate after Sen. Thomas R. Mahoney, D-Portland, remarked that some people might "gag" before the 1961 session is over.

The only other legislator besides Mahoney who has had a personal spittoon is Rep. Grace O. Peck, D-Portland. The Oregon Senate voted 22-7 to override Gov. Mark Hatfield's veto last session of a Senate bill permitting injured workers coming under unemployment compensation to seek private doctors if they choose.

Sen. Carl Francis, R-Dayton, who introduced the bill, voted with most Democrats for the override. The bill and veto message now goes to the House where a two-thirds vote to override is unlikely since the Democrats have only a 31-29 majority.

The Joint Ways and Means committee has taken a look at a not unpleasant problem - what to do about surplus funds. Leon Margosian of the finance department told the committee agencies would like to spend any extra money for "enrichment of program."

He said the finance department, however, felt the legislature intended for services to remain at levels indicated at the time funds were appropriated.

Sen. Alfred Corbett, D-Portland, commented, "once you enrich the program you can never unring the bell." Such enrichment, he said, would put the legislature on the spot to maintain the service.

Salem - (UP) - Sen. Loyd M. Key, D-Milton - Freewater, has introduced a bill to delay the effective date of a new law requiring county assessors to put all property on the tax rolls at 25 per cent of true cash value.

The bill would amend the 1959 law which went into effect Jan. 1 of this year. Eight counties would be affected. They are those counties now in the process of reappraisal.

These counties, under terms of the bill, could defer application of the 25 per cent factor until Jan. 1 after their reappraisal is completed.

Salem - (UP) - Rep. Clarence Barton, D-Coquille, has introduced a bill designed to help improve work on Highway 42 between Coquille and Roseburg.

Optometrist To Speak In Klamath Falls

Dr. William J. Thompson, Medford, director of professional services for the Oregon Optometric association, will address the Business and Professional Women's club in Klamath Falls at a 6:30 p.m. dinner meeting at the Willard hotel Monday, Jan. 16.

Dr. Thompson, a student of and researcher on problems affecting juvenile eyesight, will define the "Effects of Our Modern Culture on Vision and Learning." Tuesday morning, Dr. Thompson will tour the city, visiting the offices of Klamath Falls' eight optometrists, followed by an address to the Exchange club at noon. He returns to Medford that evening.
