

Board, Women's Council Hold Installation Dinner

Officers to serve the Medford Realty board and the Women's Council of the Medford Realty board were installed at a dinner meeting of the two groups held Tuesday night at The Dardanelle, Gold Hill.

Distinguished guests in attendance were Robert Jensen, Salem, Oregon real estate commissioner; Mrs. Carolyn Bowles, Portland, president of the Women's Council of the National Association of Real Estate boards and Mrs. Collier Cornell, Beaverton, president of the Women's Council of the Oregon Association of Real Estate boards.

Mr. Jensen spoke briefly, reminding his listeners that the chief purpose of the state realty commissioner's office is "protection of the public." Mr. Jensen said that during his term of office he has endeavored to broaden the program of education for workers in real estate, and explained that courses are being given in all the cities of Oregon, rather than the largest centers, as in the past. Some of these courses are such that those enrolling and passing may receive college credit, the commissioner declared.

H. O. Martin was inducted as president of the Medford Realty board. He succeeds William R. Fronhmayr, who presided during the board's portion of the meeting. Others installed were Keith Bates, vice-president; Mrs.

Janie Pace, secretary, and Mr. Fronhmayr, Ivan Peoples, Don Herried and Clark Walker, directors.

In accepting his office, Mr. Martin said members of the board should strive to maintain high ideals and purposes, and to observe a moral code of ethics. He pointed out that a larger percentage of Negroes own homes in the United States than any other minority group in any other country, and added that this was due in part to the help given them by the nation's real estate dealers.

Taking office for the Women's council was Mrs. Mary Fasel, who has served as president since the group was formed several months ago. Installed with her were Mrs. Margaret Naples, Central Point, vice-president, and Mrs. Ann Rice, secretary-treasurer.

Mrs. Cornell conducted the installation ceremony for the women. In a brief talk she said that one of the objects of the state council is to raise the status of women realtors.

Mrs. Bowles, whose term as national president expires this month, spoke on the desire of realtors to raise their work to "true professional status." She repeated the quotation, "Your actions speak so loud I cannot hear a word you say" and said that "none of our public pronouncements about the matter of becoming a profession will be half as effective as our service to the public."

She pointed out that the realty business "has come a long way" in recent years and said that if progress is to be continued the code of ethics must be enforced and that realtors must be known for their integrity and honesty, and must inspire confidence.

Mrs. Bowles spoke of the program of education which the councils throughout the United States carry on, and said realtors "have no excuse for being ill-informed." She spoke of the expanding fields open to those in the real estate business, mentioning appraisal, counseling and property management. She mentioned that realtors must work hard to see that slum areas are abolished, and must join with other citizens "to build a better America."

Mrs. Mary Maass, member of the Women's council and retiring secretary of the Medford Realty board, was presented a farewell gift. She is leaving Medford soon to live in Great Falls, Mont.

Mrs. Fasel introduced the women's committee which had made arrangements for the dinner. They were Mrs. Bert Price, chairman, Mrs. Lorraine von der Hellen, Mrs. Marguerite onrad and Mrs. Helen Fosbury.

A cocktail hour preceded the dinner, and dancing followed. About 85 persons attended.
