Survey for Directory Of Manufacturers Starts

Portland—A statewide survey to obtain information for the 1961 Directory of Oregon Manufacturers has been started by the Oregon department of planning and development. Questionnaires will be sent the last week in January to more than 5,000 Oregon manufacturing firms, asking for information on type of product, person to contact, street and mailing address and number of employees.

In asking for the cooperation of all manufacturing firms in completing and returning the questionnaire as promptly as possible, Sam H. Mallicoat, acting director of the department, stressed the directory's usefulness in the state's programs for economic development.

The directory, he said, is a source of basic information for market research, and is used extensively in plant location studies. It also serves as a buyer's guide, and is used by companies looking for sources of goods and materials in Oregon.

The 1959 directory, Mallicoat pointed out, was one of the department's most popular publications. Some 2,500 copies were sold, going to all 49 other states and many foreign countries.

The 1961 directory is scheduled for publication in April.

Bill Prohibits Racing Interests

Salem—Rep. Carl Fisher (R-Eugene), said Tuesday he has introduced a bill which would prohibit members, employees or appointees of the State Racing commission from having a financial interest in horse or dog racing.

The bill also would prohibit them from making bets.

Fisher said racing in Oregon has "always enjoyed a favorable reputation and this bill will serve as a further guarantee that the public will be protected and the commission will not be subject to criticism."

Oregon State Will Start Year-Round Program This Year

Corvallis—With an eye on "year-round school" in the future, Oregon State college has announced plans for an experimental summer school this year that will correspond to about a regular school term.

The usual 8-week session—attended each year by a growing number of undergraduates and graduate students—will run from June 19 to Aug. 11.

This year after it is completed, however, a 4-week "inter-session" will follow from Aug. 14 to Sept. 8. By putting the 8- and 4-week program together, a student may earn 18 credit hours, or a full term's work plus, President A. L. Strand pointed out.

Public school teachers, who look to summer school for graduate work but who have to be back "on the job" in late August, will still have the advantage of the 8-week summer school under the split-session plan, Dr. Franklin R. Zeran, dean of education and director of summer session observed. A two-week post session, which has been held for many years, also will be continued.

Oregon State has been considering a year-round schedule for some time, President Strand reported, and this year's experimental program is the first step toward such a plan in years to come.

A few eastern colleges have adopted a four-quarter or three-semester schedule that runs through the summer with excellent results, he said. Students who go the year round can graduate in three instead of four years and college facilities and faculty are used to great effectiveness, Strand noted.

Future Consideration
This maximum use of classrooms and staff all the year will be a critical consideration in the future, he emphasized, as big enrollment increases hit college campuses. As one of the nation's fastest-growing states, Oregon will be especially hard hit and every effort will be required to accommodate all the students who want to go to college.

Dean Zeran said the summer school schedule would be varied planned to provide varied coursework opportunities for students in this year's experimental program. Approximately 400 courses, workshops, seminars and institutes will be offered by the various schools on campus during the regular summer session, he added.

The four-week inter-session experiment will be conducted on a modest scale for the first year, but still will offer fine opportunities for students, Dean Zeran reported.

He suggested that the summer school would be an excellent time for students undecided about college to "try their wings." Students who are ineligible to enter OSC because of low high school grades—but who are determined to make good in college—may become eligible by satisfactory work in summer school, Zeran explained.

Fewer Accidents Reported in City During Past Year

Medford Police Chief Charles P. Champlin had nothing but kind words for Medford drivers today, when a year-end police report revealed that there were fewer traffic accidents and traffic injuries in 1960 than there were in 1959.

According to the report, there were 721 traffic accidents in the city last year, resulting in 122 injuries. In 1959 there were 771 accidents resulting in 166 injuries. The number of fatalities—two—was the same for both years.

These totals represent only those accidents that were reported to police.

Speak Well for Drivers
Chief Champlin said the figures "speak well for the drivers," but added that "we hope there will be further decreases during coming year."

He credited an increasing awareness of traffic laws and traffic hazards, resulting in improved driving habits on the part of drivers, as the reasons for the decrease. And, he credited both the Medford Safety council and his own department with contributing greatly to this increased awareness.

Champlin pointed out that improved traffic facilities, such as Eighth and 10th st. bridges, have also had a part to play in the accident decrease.

Issue Fewer Tickets
In addition to a decrease in traffic accidents, the department issued fewer parking meter tickets and traffic citations last year than it did the previous year. Parking meter tickets totaled 39,690 during 1960, compared to 43,889 during 1959; and traffic citations totaled 5,557, during 1960, compared to 5,957 during 1959.

But, Champlin attributed the decrease in tickets to the department's spending less time on traffic patrol during 1960. He explained that an increased criminal case load has forced the department to spend less time enforcing traffic laws.

Mrs. Garrett Free On $25,000 Bail

Portland—(UPI)—Mrs. Constance Garrett, 32, Portland, was free on $25,000 bail today pending her arraignment on a second first degree murder charge in connection with an Oct. 6 fire that claimed the lives of three of her four daughters and their governess.

The Multnomah county grand jury returned a "true bill" Tuesday charging Mrs. Garrett, a former Texas socialite, with murder in the fire death of her daughter Angela, 3. Tuesday's indictment came the day after the red-haired woman had been acquitted of a similar charge in the death of her daughter, Gage, 5 months.

Circuit Judge Charles Redding ordered Mrs. Garrett released on $25,000 bail after quashing a defense motion for a writ of habeas corpus. The defense requested the writ on grounds the second charge constituted double jeopardy.
