Opinion Asked on Political Activity

Salem — (UPI) — Rep. Edward N. Fadel (D-Eugene) has requested an attorney general's opinion on whether it is illegal for faculty members at Oregon colleges and universities to contribute to political campaign funds or serve as precinct committee members. Fadel said if there were doubt as to the legality of such activities, he would sponsor legislation to make it clearly legal to be a precinct officer or contribute to a campaign fund.

The question of legality has been raised under an interpretation of existing Oregon law.

Fadel said he felt faculty members should be allowed to participate in elections in the same way as any other citizen.

Konrad Adenauer Facing Challenge Today From World War II Germans

Bonn — (UPI) — The generation that bore the brunt of the second World War has chosen 1961 as the year in which to challenge 84-year-old Chancellor Konrad Adenauer's regime in West Germany.

Willy Brandt, born the year the first World War started and now lord mayor of West Berlin, is the chosen instrument of the challengers.

Although the top candidate of the Socialist opposition in the elections tentatively scheduled for September, Brandt is soft-pedaling criticism of Adenauer's policies.

Instead, Brandt argues, policies suitable for the '50s are unfit to meet the problems of the '60s.

He says younger men must be given the reins of power, and that he is the logical successor to Adenauer, who so far has refrained from naming an heir-apparent from his own party ranks.

Adenauer has countered that the Socialists are untrustworthy. If they are elected, he alleges, the whole western defense alliance so painfully erected during the last decade will come tumbling down.

He accuses the Socialists of switching from outright opposition to conditional support of national defense only in order to win a national election. Once they win, he alleges, the Socialists will revert to form.

Most of the smart money says Adenauer will rack up his fourth conservative victory — if he stays healthy.

At year's end the old statesman suffered a setback in precisely that field. Although he opened 1960 with a state visit to Rome and the Vatican, and followed it up in the spring with another triumphal tour of the United States from which he went on to Japan, last year closed with the chancellor being forced to cancel scheduled visits to Paris and London because of a cold.

The reaction of other governments to Adenauer's decision to cancel the visits demonstrated the key role the German plays in European and world affairs.

Within hours of the cancellation announcement, the scheduled summit meeting of the European Economic Community (EEC) nations was postponed. Without Adenauer, there appeared little point in holding the session.
