Medford High School

Edited by Sandy Shugart
John James, senior, has been named a principal for appointment to the Air Force Academy at Colorado Springs, Colo., by former Congressman Charles O. Porter.

John Crawford, Ralph Lobdell, and Bob McIntyre, Medford High seniors, were declared alternates for another principal in Oregon.

The four students had each taken a special Civil Service exam last fall, besides appearing for a personal interview. They were also required to have a preliminary physical examination.

James, in order to qualify for admission to the academy, must now (1) pass the college board tests with a high score, (2) take specific mental exams required for applicants, and (3) pass a final, and somewhat rigid, physical exam administered by AF personnel.

Alternates will be accepted only if their principal doesn't qualify for administration, and they in turn can meet the requirements.

Pat Cranston has been named the 1961 Betty Crocker Homemaker of Tomorrow for Medford High.

Pat received the highest score in a written examination on homemaking knowledge and attitudes. Her examination paper will be entered in competition with the winning papers from other schools to name the state Homemaker of Tomorrow.

The competition is part of a $110,000 homemaking education program sponsored by General Mills. Pat will become a candidate for the $1,500 first prize and $500 second prize scholarships.

Seniors wishing to visit either the University of Oregon or the Oregon State college campus will have such an opportunity during "senior campus week end," Jan. 28 and 29.

The program is designed to acquaint teen-agers with the colleges' academic programs, students, facilities, physical arrangements, and living organizations. Although the week end will feature "strong educational emphasis," time for recreation and entertainment has been provided.

Fees for the week end are $2 for the daytime activities, and $5 if Saturday night housing is desired. Payment is due in advance along with pre-registration.

Dave Redmond, Bob Rojas, and Doug Batten, members of the MHS Distributive Education club, were recent participants at a state-wide meeting of the Distributive Education clubs of Oregon in Salem.

Heading the agenda at the Salem gathering were a program to publicize DECO throughout the state, and the possibilities of publishing a DECO newspaper in Salem, and the establishment of a travel fund.

In addition, plans were made for a contest to coincide with the state leadership conference in March. Funds were appropriated for trophies.

At least seven student teachers from Southern Oregon college are currently assisting faculty members.

The assistants are: Glenna Brewold and Lynn Suec, English; Lee Ostmo and Larry Robin, math; Jean C. Fowler, business education; and Harold Winfield, and Marilyn Alter, social studies.

Five sophomores have recently been named to the newly-organized junior varsity rally squad.

Selected were Pat Thompson, Janet O'Sullivan, Sandra Gannon, Shirley Tillery, and Nancy Simcox. Organization of the group came after much deliberation by the student council, and the approval of the jayvee advisor, Janet Nelson. The squad will perform at home games and away when Medford plays Ashland and Crater.

The MHS debate squad will leave Feb. 15 for Linfield college for the 29th annual "Tournament of Champions." Medford took second place honors last year, and the debaters hope to better their record. Along with the traditional events, debate heading the list, a new event called public address has been added to the competition this year. Aiding the MHS debaters will be delegations from each of the Medford junior highs.

Hedrick Junior High
By Sarah Madden and Steve Root
Due to the completion of the first semester, this week has been devoted to giving nine-week and semester tests. Report cards will be distributed Wednesday, Jan. 25.

Student council did not meet Wednesday as regularly scheduled because of exams.

On Jan. 6, Hedrick was presented the safety award for the fifth consecutive year. The presentation was made by Rudy Tetrauli, president of the Medford Safety Council, and was accepted by Steve Blackhurst, student body president.

The Hedrick library has had a display of model sports cars brought by some of the boys.

The famed Ballet Russe performed at Hedrick Monday evening, Jan. 16, sponsored by the Civic Music Association of Medford.

The Hedrick Hornets were beaten by North Grants Pass Friday by a score of 37 to 36 at the Cave-Kids court. Larry Vowell was high point man for the Hornets.

The eighth grade won over North Grants Pass at Grants Pass Thursday, Jan. 12. The remainder of the Hedrick memory book pictures will be taken Friday, Jan. 20. These will be published in May and be purchased for $1.50 each.

Shasta Ski trips are scheduled for the next three Saturdays.

The second issue of the Hedrick Buzzette was published Friday.

Displayed in the hall case next to the library has been an art exhibit of oils and colors done by teenagers from many foreign countries and the United States and sponsored through the American Junior Red Cross.

The display case next to the home economics department has shown a sheepskin and all the products and materials from wool.

Briscoe School, Ashland

Miss Marie Prescott's first grade children are making a toy store, where they will be able to use their skill at counting money and making change. They are also planting bulbs to watch the roots and leaves grow.

Wilma Wirth, secretary for Mrs. Marie Bjorlie's third grade, reports they have a new helping teacher from Southern Oregon college. Her name is Mrs. Joan Taylor. Mrs. Taylor brought a totem pole that was made by the Northwest Indians. The class is also studying about woodland, plain and Southwest Indians.

The teacher of room 7, grade 4, Mrs. Rachel Kneebone, was ill for two days. While she was absent their substitute teacher was Mrs. Olga Holland. Mrs. Deanna Conley is their student teacher.

er. They are working on a bulletin board displaying the tropical regions of the world.

Fifth graders in Mrs. Luella Morris' room have a new student teacher, Mrs. Claudia Yandell.

In social studies, they have been studying transportation and communications. Some of the students brought model planes and cars. Everyone wrote a report to read before the class. As a culminating activity both fifth grade classes walked to the Ashland Daily Tidings office to watch the presses.

In art the class made relief pictures out of starch and soap, and some out of tooth picks.

Neil Richardson's sixth grade has been studying first aid. They have practiced simple bandaging and have learned what to do in other common emergencies. Each made a first aid kit to have at home.

Recently, Mrs. Kneebone's fourth grade visited the room and were shown the classes large mural and fossil prints. The class answered questions on the history of the earth's surface.

Russell Dollarhide has returned to make nine boys in the room.

The room has a "Zany Zoo" with, for example, an owl made of a bowl of soup or an ostrich made from a watch.

Ginny Lawrence and Craig Korthase report that Miss Arlene Miller's sixth grade have been working on committee reports about Mexico. Some of the reports and illustrations have been enjoyed by the class. Those heard have been concerning Mexican government, the Mexican people, education in Mexico, and ancient civilizations of Mexico and Central America.

The latter part of this week are final tests for the semester.

In science, the study of light is well started. Special experiments and reports will begin this Friday.

So far this year, Room 12 has lost Linda Mitchell and Pamela Tucker to Walker school, and Susan Smith has moved to Corvallis, but has gained a new girl, Doris Schuster, from Lincoln school. Weaving baskets has proven an interesting art project.

For girls' sports basketball has started under the tutelage of Mrs. Rachel Kneebone.

In boys' basketball, the captains of the three teams are Mike Krug, Jerry Summers, and Craig Korthase. So far four games have been played. The games between Krug and Korthase came out six to four in favor of Krug; between Summers and Korthase, 16-5, in favor of Korthase; between Krug and Summers, 20-4, in favor of Krug; between Krug and Korthase, 13-12, in favor of Korthase.

Jacksonville School

Many of the boys and girls in Mrs. Marilyn Blomquist's first grade came back to school after Christmas with new clothes and toys. Ted Fields and Cynthia Estes are new students in the class. In science, the boys and girls are finding out what makes frost and they are going to attempt to make some.

We have two new boys in Mrs. Sally Widmer's second grade. They are Mike Purkerson and Rodney Brabec. Mike transferred from Grants Pass and Rodney from Gold Hill. Herlinde Leijenaar returned to Holland with her family. She promised to correspond with us.

Mrs. Rebecca Long's second grade class is in charge of the bulletin boards this month. The bulletin board shows boys and girls and birds in the snow. There are two new boys in Mrs. Long's class. They are Danny Boslough and Kirt House. Anita Leijenaar returned to Holland.

Mrs. Lily Robinson's first grade class has been making snow men and snow-flakes for their bulletin boards. The class learned how snow and frost was formed. The class has also done some finger painting.

Stephen Elmer won first prize for the best clay figure in Mrs. Robinson's third grade class. Calveen Brabec is a new student in the class and Sheila Lester transferred to Phoenix.

Mrs. Maude Hardy's third grade class lost Cathy Bower when she transferred to Washington school, then Deborah Estes enrolled to keep the same number of students in the class.

The new class officers in Mrs. Lucille McKemie's fourth grade class are: president, Donald Morton; vice president, Pat Owen; secretary, Derrell Hinkle; sergeant at arms, Wesley Graham. In science, we are bringing bird wings, feathers, and airplane pictures. We are also making colored birds out of paper. We are learning to play Volley ball in PE.

Scott Holt and Bob Rice are new students in Mrs. Ida McArthur's fourth grade class.

In science, we have been studying about the body. We have a biological specimen to take apart so we can see how we are built inside.

Dell Speegle, Henry Johnson, Gary Worden, Stanley McElrath, Bill White and Greg Knudson have made the basketball squad.

New class officers in Mrs. Mary Sullenger's fifth grade class are: president, Dave Johnson; vice president, Don Golden; and secretary-treasurer, Leon Clay. We have been studying about the weather and weather changes.

Most of the boys in Herbert Colley's class are out for basketball. In practice games we won one and lost one. New class officers are: president, Sue Applebaker; vice president, Garry Petty; secretary-treasurer, Edette Parrott and sergeant-at-arms, Phil Crocker.

Mr. Colley's room is responsible for the program for the next Student Body Assembly Jan. 27.

Mrs. Pearl Farnsworth's yearling squad had its first show when the Jacksonville basketball team played West Side. The squad did a marching series winding up with the letters J. P. for Jacksonville Pirates.

The student body enjoyed the assembly Dec. 13. William S. Willett presented a number of articles he had obtained while traveling through India and other Far Eastern countries. One of our students, Donna Smith, helped Mr. Willett demonstrate some of the Indian women's costumes and jewelry.

Crater High School

By Lynn Malot

Since all the valley high schools decided to shorten the March of Dimes activities in their schools, Crater class presidents decided to discontinue class competition. All cr-arts were combined. Each class was limited to one project in school and one project outside of school.

The freshman sold early lunch tickets. The sophomores and seniors held a slave auction. The seniors were the slaves. The juniors sold popcorn balls and had a bottle drive. Altogether about $120 was raised in three days. This is short of last year's mark, but activities were shortened and some were discontinued.

The college-bound seniors have been meeting frequently with the deans, Ron Lamb and Miss Geraldine White, to discuss scholarships. The seniors are getting every opportunity to apply for scholarships from the school of their choice. There is no reason that any interested seniors shouldn't have a chance at a scholarship if they meet the requirements. Seniors interested should attend the meetings.

Jan Hansen was named the Betty Crocker Homemaker of Tomorrow at Crater by scoring the highest on the Betty Crocker test given to all senior girls recently. Jan won a gold pin and now she has a chance to compete for state honors. Her test will be evaluated with the top tests from all the other high schools in Oregon. The state finalist then goes to the national competition, with a chance to win a scholarship, a trip east, and other awards.

The World Relations Seminar is now an International Relations club, after adopting the International Relations League constitution. The club is working to raise money. By sponsoring a doughnut sale every week, the IRC hopes to send five delegates to the Model United Nations conference during World Affairs Week at the University of Oregon March 2, 3 and 4. June Hopkins is in charge of the sales.

Study sessions are held every Thursday evening to prepare and organize information on their country, Ethiopia, for the coming conference.

Officers are Charlette Bush, president; Gary More and Marlene Coffman, vice presidents; Beth Wilcox, secretary; June Hopkins, treasurer; and Jan Bateman, historian. Adviser for the club is Miss Kay Eigenhardt.

Over One Billion Barrels of Oil Piped

Beirut, Lebanon (AP) — In the past 10 years more than 1,100,000,000 barrels of crude oil have been piped from Saudi Arabia to oil tankers anchored in Lebanon, Trans-Arabian Pipe Line Co. reported.

A Tapline spokesman said the oil flow averaged 314,000 barrels a day during the decade enough to load 8,161 tankers at the company's Sidon dock. The first tanker was loaded in December, 1950.
