Shooting Story Changed by Youth

A 16-year-old Medford boy, who first told police he had been shot in the arm while walking through a field, changed his story last night and admitted that he accidentally shot himself while playing with a .22 caliber rifle.

Richard James Morden, 172 Greenway Circle, was treated at Rogue Valley hospital for a flesh wound in his upper arm, and then released to go home with a neighbor.

Morden called police about 6 p.m. yesterday and said he had been walking through a field in back of his residence when he heard some shooting and then felt a "tug" at his arm. He looked down, he said, and saw that he had been shot.

Medford police, however, noticed powder burns on the boy's shirt near the bullet hole, which would indicate that the gun was fired from close range. On further questioning, the boy admitted that he had been working on the rifle when it went off and shot him.

Police said the boy apparently told his original story because his father, who was out of town at the time of the accident, had given him strict instructions not to touch the gun.

OBITUARIES

WILLIAM FISHER - W. H. (Hank) Fisher, who died Jan. 18, was appointed chief electrical engineer for the California Oregon Power company in 1954.

A graduate of Oregon State college with an electrical engineering degree, Mr. Fisher was first employed by Copco as a chairman and draftsman. He became a registered professional engineer in 1952 and in 1956 presented a paper at the Northwest Electric Light and Power association convention.

He was past president of the Rogue Valley section of the Professional Engineers of Oregon and served as chairman of the engineering and operating section of the Northwest Electric Light and Power association, and was a member of the guidance committee.

Mr. Fisher was a member of the Copco budget committee and did much of the planning for new distribution and transmission lines and new substations.

He also served a four-year term on the Medford city planning commission. He married Marian Bogert in October, 1937, at Sacred Heart Catholic church. Reconciliation of the Holy Rosary will be held at the Per Funeral home at 7:30 o'clock tonight. Requiem mass will be at Sacred Heart Catholic church Saturday at 11 a.m. with the Rev. Carl Mai officiating. Committal will be in the Siskiyou Memorial park.

AGNES M. HACKLER - Mrs. Agnes M. Hackler, 82, died Thursday afternoon at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Lloyd Lacy, route 1, box 238, Talent, Mrs. Hackler was born Nov. 5, 1878, in Dixon, Calif.

Survivors include four daughters, Mrs. Ruth Spig, Gardena, Calif.; Mrs. Madge Armington, Flint, Mich.; Mrs. Ada Ure, Sacramento, Calif. and Mrs. Lacy, Talent; three grandchildren and five great grandchildren.

Funeral services will be held Monday, Jan. 23, at 3 p.m. at Litwiler's Mortuary chapel, Ashland, with Pastor A. Clark Smith of Talent Friends church officiating. Interment will be in Mt. View cemetery.

Pallbearers will be Fred Hall, Art Hall, George Hartley, Clarence Mathis, Joe King and Dee Cox.

House Trailer Law Is Favored

The Medford city council last night approved a planning commission recommendation that house trailers be prohibited as residences in the city unless they are in specified trailer courts.

The planning commission's recommendations will be embodied in an ordinance and presented to the council for final approval at its next meeting. The ordinance would not apply to those house trailers already being used as residences and which have met city regulations to date.

It was pointed out in a report to the council that there are now 75 house trailers being used as residences outside of trailer parks in the city. An estimated 30 of these have never obtained a city permit and are considered illegal.

Councilman Donald Hanson questioned the need for the new trailer ordinance noting that a new zoning ordinance was being prepared by the city which should effectively control trailers.

Complaint Seeks Damages for Well

A complaint has been filed in circuit court by a valley couple against the Talent Irrigation district for damages done to a spring on their farm on Coal Mine rd.

The complaint, filed by Oscar and Evelyn S. Gysin, seeks $40,000 special damages and $6,000 general damages. According to the complaint the Gysin farm included a spring which was near an irrigation canal. About Feb. 1, 1959, the irrigation district widened the canal near the spring and, according to the complaint, shock waves from the explosives used in the project caused a shift in the underground strata so the spring ceased to flow except when there is water in the canal.

It is stated that the Gysins had used the spring water for irrigation, cattle and to serve their house and it is now necessary for them to drill a well.

Lady Lawford Rejects Inaugural Invitation

Beverly Hills, Calif. - (UPI) - Lady Lawford, mother of actor Peter Lawford, received a personal invitation from John F. Kennedy for tonight's inauguration ball, but she turned it down in favor of the California climate.

"Do you realize what the temperature is like in Washington?" she gasped. "I abhor cold weather."
