

Text of Kennedy's Inaugural Address

Washington — (UPI) — Following is the text of President John F. Kennedy's inaugural address:

My fellow citizens: We observe today not a victory of party but a celebration of freedom — symbolizing an end as well as a beginning — signifying renewal as well as change. For I have sworn before you and Almighty God the same solemn oath our forebears prescribed nearly a century and three quarters ago.

The world is very different now. For man holds in his mortal hands the power to abolish all forms of human poverty and to abolish all forms of human life. And yet the same revolutionary beliefs for which our forebears fought are still at issue around the globe — the belief that the rights of man come not from the generosity of the state but from the hand of God.

Heirs of Revolution
We dare not forget today that we are the heirs of that first revolution. Let the word go forth from this time and place, to friend and foe alike, that the torch has been passed to a new generation of Americans — born in this century, tempered by war, disciplined by a cold and bitter peace, proud of our ancient heritage — and unwilling to witness or permit the slow undoing of those human rights to which this nation has always been committed, and to which we are committed today.

Let every nation know, whether it wish us well or ill, that we shall pay any price, bear any burden, meet any hardship, support any friend or oppose any foe in order to assure the survival and success of liberty.

This much we pledge — and more.

Loyalty of Friends
To those old allies whose cultural and spiritual origins we share, we pledge the loyalty of faithful friends. United, there is little we cannot do in a host of new cooperative ventures. Divided, there is little we can do — for we dare not meet a powerful challenge at odds and split asunder.

To those new states whom we now welcome to the ranks of the free, we pledge our word that one form of colonial control shall not have passed merely to be replaced by a far more iron tyranny. We shall not always expect to find them supporting our view. But we shall always hope to find them strongly supporting their own freedom — and to remember that, in the past, those who foolishly sought to find power by riding on the tiger's back inevitably ended up inside.

To those people in the huts and villages of half the globe struggling to break the bonds of mass misery, we pledge our best efforts to help them help themselves, for whatever period is required — not because the Communists are doing it, not because we seek their votes, but because it is right. If the free society cannot help the many who are poor, it can never save the few who are rich.

Special Pledge

To our sister republics south of our border, we offer a special pledge — to convert our good words into good deeds — to assist free men and free governments in casting off the chains of poverty. But this peaceful revolution of hope cannot become the prey of hostile powers. Let all our neighbors know that we shall join with them to oppose aggression or subversion anywhere in the Americas. And let every other power know that this hemisphere intends to remain the master of its own house.

To that world assembly of sovereign states, the United Nations, our last best hope in an age where the instruments of war have far outpaced the instruments of peace, we renew our pledge of support — to prevent its becoming merely a forum for inactivity — to strengthen its shield of the new and the weak — and to enlarge the area to which its writ may run.

Finally, to those nations who would make themselves our adversary, we offer not a pledge but a request: That both sides begin anew the quest for peace, before the dark powers of destruction unleashed by science engulf all humanity in planned or accidental self-destruction.

Can't Take Comfort
We dare not tempt them with weakness. For only when our arms are sufficient beyond doubt can we be certain beyond doubt that they will never be employed.

But neither can two great and powerful groups of nations take comfort from their present course — both sides overburdened by the cost of modern weapons, both rightly alarmed by the steady spread of the deadly atom, yet both racing to alter that uncertain balance of terror that stays the hand of mankind's final war.

So let us begin anew — remembering on both sides that civility is not a sign of weakness, and sincerity is always subject to proof. Let us never negotiate out of fear. But let us never fear to negotiate.

Let both sides explore what problems unite us instead of belaboring the problems that divide us. Let both sides, for the first time, formulate serious and precise proposals for the inspection and control of arms — and bring the absolute power to destroy other nations under the absolute control of all nations.

Let Us Explore
Let both sides join to invoke the wonders of science instead of its terrors. Together let us explore the stars, conquer the deserts, eradicate disease, tap the ocean depths and encourage the arts and commerce.

Let both sides unite to heed in all corners of the earth the command of Isaiah — to "undo the heavy burdens . . . and let the oppressed go free."

And if a beach-head of cooperation can be made in the jungles of suspicion, let both sides join in the next task: Creating not a new balance of power, but a new world of law, where the strong are just and the weak secure and the peace preserved forever.

All this will not be finished in the first one hundred days. Nor will it be finished in the first one thousand days, nor in the life of this administration, nor even perhaps in our lifetime on this planet. But let us begin.

In your hands, my fellow citizens, more than in mine, will rest the final success or failure of our course. Since this country was founded, each generation has been summoned to give testimony to its national loyalty. The graves of young Americans who answered that call encircle the globe.

Summoned Again
Now the trumpet summons us again — not as a call to bear arms, though arms we need — not as a call to battle, though embattled we are — but a call to bear the burden of a long twilight struggle, year in and year out, "rejoicing in hope, patient in tribulation" — a struggle against the common enemies of man: Tyranny, poverty, disease and war itself.

Can we forge against these enemies a grand and global alliance, north and south, east and west, that can assure a more fruitful life for all mankind? Will you join in that historic effort?

In the long history of the world, only a few generations have been granted the role of defending freedom in its hour of maximum danger. I do not shrink from this responsibility — I welcome it. I do not believe that any of us would exchange places with any other people or any other generation. The energy, the faith, the devotion which we bring to this endeavor will light our country and all who serve it — and the glow from that fire can truly light the world.

Same High Standards
And so, my fellow Americans: Ask not what your country will do for you — ask what you can do for your country.

My fellow citizens of the world: Ask not what America will do for you, but what together we can do for the freedom of man.

Finally, whether you are citizens of America or of the world, ask of us the same high standards of strength and sacrifice that we shall ask of you. With a good conscience our only sure reward, with history the final judge of our deeds, let us go forth to lead the land we love, asking His blessings and His help, but knowing that here on earth God's work must truly be our own.

Aspects of Proposed Stadium Reviewed at Medford Meeting

Aspects of a proposed multi-purpose stadium at the location of the present baseball park south of Medford were discussed at a meeting of about 60 Jackson county residents Wednesday evening.

Although no action was taken, a committee was organized to pursue the matter further.

Much of the discussion centered around the stadium's use as a baseball park, and whether or not excavation is a desirable method of construction. Dirt removed from the proposed site would be used as fill dirt in Highway 99 free way construction through the area.

Former County Commissioner Ralph James brought up the matter of zone variance to make the property available and it was brought out that matter has been taken under advisement by the planning commission.

Also, reported in answer to a query by Fred Brennan, Rotary club president, is that the highway department cannot condemn city or county property for barrow pit use.

The area should be made available in the next two weeks to 30 days if it is to be used for freeway fill, it was mentioned in response to a question by City Councilman Fred Robinson. McCormick said the availability should be known in two or three weeks.

A. L. (Tex) Nash, who has a gravel business, spoke of the difficulty of contractors getting interested in the ball park dirt because they don't know whether they can have it. He stressed that the dirt easily could be put to good use elsewhere, even if it were not used for the freeway.

Dr. Kenneth Baker, who served as chairman of the meeting, said that a deal for the dirt must be made attractive to the county.

The values to the community of a stadium and the uses to which it could be put were brought forth in the discussion.

"You don't want to stop and figure just the cost of the project," according to Norman Wade, owner of Par-A-Dise motel, Talent. "It puts money in everybody's pocket. Even if it does not pay for itself through the gate, all in the money will make money from it." Wade said that the stadium has "great possibilities."

Dr. Elmo Stevenson, president of Southern Oregon college, described the stadium, as proposed, a "luxury." Yet, he pointed out that "the valley hasn't seen the growth that is coming this way" and "this is the playground of America."

The meeting for the Medford school district, said the school board was taking a position of neutrality and does not wish to take a stand on the proposal until it gets farther along.

He said that at present, Medford's only use of the facility projected would be for a couple of games a year for which the school's stadium would not hold the crowd.

He indicated that improvements are needed to improve facilities at the high school stadium and that the board could not let the current proposal interfere with its plans. Exact time is not known, but it is estimated a second high school will be needed here by 1964 or 1965, Ragsdale reported.

Only use of a county stadium here by Crater High school would be for football, according to C. A. Meyer, superintendent of District 6 schools. The stadium at Central Point is inadequate.

Meyer indicated that a number of questions would have to be answered before District 6 officials would make up their minds on stadium use.

Professional baseball pays its own way through its leases and own operation of a park, Jim Fleishman, Portland, president of the Class B Northwest league, emphasized in response to a question on whether this area would be able to support guarantees asked by teams to play here. He said that pro football might ask guarantees.

Queried on what assurance there is that people in baseball want to use a stadium here, Fleishman spoke of the strength being gained by minor leagues, the grants of funds to minors by major leagues and the movement to the west coast of major league baseball.

He stated that all six teams in the Northwest league are supported or semi-supported by major league organizations.

"Hub" Kittle, general manager of the Yakima Bears baseball club, informed the group that the representatives of the whole NWL voted to have the two men come to Medford. This community would be a tremendous addition to the league, Kittle remarked. He mentioned the interest of Don McShane, a Baltimore Oriole scout in operation here.

At Yakima, Kittle reported, the Bears rent and maintain the stadium in the summer months through mutual agreement with the school board. The park was built by the city and decided to the school board.

It is used for high school and junior college baseball and football and for American Legion and other junior baseball games and programs. Horse shows and band concerts have been staged in the park. It is used for Shrine events and for every sporting activity in the valley, according to Kittle.

Fleishman said that the matter of a television blackout of major league baseball games would not be a problem because NWL games are played at night when the major league games are not being aired.

Information on the cost of the proposed stadium means of amortization, projected revenue and where the money will come from to build the stadium, was requested by William Briggs, Ashland attorney.

John Weisbrod, Medford, who has been actively promoting the proposal, answered that the money has not been available to go into the engineering but that study has been made by people of the area and that some fairly accurate information has been obtained.

The realtor mentioned that the 15,000 seats in the excavation could be built first for about $75,000 (at $5 per seat) with the other 5,000 to be added two or three years later.

Parking area for some 1,000 cars could be done the first year with the rest of the area graded but not blacktopped, he said. This would cost some $35,000, making a total of $115,000. Weisbrod listed a cost of $50,000 to $60,000 for lighting also to be spent in the first year following excavation.

The information which has been obtained has been factual, Weisbrod stated, and $1,500 to $2,000 is needed to be spent to get more accurate plans.

Ground level at the ball park site is 35 to 45 feet above creek level and drainage can be taken care of by gravity, those attending the dinner meeting were told. For the barrow operation a contractor would have to dig a ditch to the creek to provide drainage.

Weisbrod said that a stadium would be a shot in the arm for industry, something that would help attract and keep employees as a place in the area to entertain people that work in the factories.

Kittle mentioned that with a stadium and a pro baseball team here, motels would get real revenue during baseball season and pointed to the money from players salaries and expenses and administrative expenses that would be spent in the area. "It's fabulous what it (baseball) would do for your community from an entertainment standpoint," Kittle said.

The Yakima baseball man brought out that the stadium in the Washington city is inadequate and not new. He expressed the belief that activities there would attract more people there if there was a new park.

Yakima, he indicated, is in much the same situation as this area in its desire for a large stadium but it does not have a site.
