

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Richardson, long-time Jackson county residents, were honored at a recent reception which observed their 50th wedding anniversary. Married in Ashland in 1911, the Richardsons have lived for 30 years on the homestead which his father formerly owned. The reception was held at the Upper Rogue Grange hall, the couple having been members of the Grange for many years.

Richardsons Honored On Fiftieth Anniversary

McLeod - About 150 persons attended a reception Saturday night, January 7, at Upper Rogue Grange hall honoring Mr. and Mrs. Carl Richardson on their 50th wedding anniversary. Receiving with the honored couple were their son, Colonel John Richardson, and Mrs. Richardson, Mill Valley, Calif.

Hostesses were Mrs. Ranald Axtell, Mrs. Paul Torrance, Mrs. Ida Mae Eastman, Mrs. Richard Eastin, Mrs. Dorothy Toekstein and Mrs. Ray Gillespie. Mrs. Albert Estin presided at the guest book. Cakes were served by Mrs. Frank Ditsworth and Mrs. Glenn Nelson, Ashland. Mrs. Carl Hansen presided over the punch bowl. Mrs. Bertha Cobleigh and Mrs. Nan Coats, Phoenix, poured coffee. A week of visiting relatives of both Mr. and Mrs. Phillips in Los Angeles and Long Beach, Calif., was climaxed by spending a complete day with the youngsters in Disneyland. The Phillips spent a week in Phoenix with Mrs. Phillips' relatives and friends, and sightseeing. While there they were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Dempsey Smith and family, former Eagle Point residents now living in Tempe, Ariz. The Phillips drove back by way of Reno, Nev.

Budget Meals School Topic

Large Wardrobe, Magnificent Jewels, Accompany Queen on Tour This Month

New Delhi, India - Queen Elizabeth II received a rousing welcome from hundreds of thousands of cheering Indians today when she arrived here for the first visit to India by a British ruler in 50 years.

As the attractive queen and her handsome husband, Prince Philip, stepped off their plane at Palam airfield, they were greeted by Prime Minister Jawarhalal Nehru, President Rajendra Prasad and Vice President Sarvepalli Radhakrishnan.

Also on hand were thousands of New Delhi residents and turban-wearing villagers who turned out for a look at "Malika" - the local word for empress.

All India radio said more than a million men, women and children were lined along the eight-mile route from Palam airport to New Delhi.

It was Elizabeth's first visit to India and it was the first time a British monarch has toured the country since Elizabeth's grandfather, George V, and Queen Mary came here in 1911. Prince Philip toured the country alone two years ago.

By MARGARET SAVILLE United Press International

London - The Queen of Great Britain, on a state tour of India, Pakistan and Iran this month, took enough jewels to keep several Scotland Yard detectives on guard and dress skirts especially weighted so that they will not lift up in the wind.

These are only a couple of the considerations that make Queen Elizabeth's "touring" wardrobe unique and keep the staff at Buckingham Palace planning details of them months before a tour abroad gets underway.

Each of the queen's public appearances - and these may run to three or four a day during the two-month long tour - requires a complete change of outfit from hat to shoes.

Every evening ensemble requires advance notice of the decor for the occasion so that the queen's outfit does not clash in color with table setting, decoration or clothing of the other guests.

Philip Likes Gin

The palace also makes it a point to inform the queen's hosts of certain of her tastes. For instance, she dislikes the color majenta (this goes for the color of a gown or of curtains in her room). She does not eat oysters, nor does Prince Philip. She prefers orange juice and soda with her meals rather than wine, unless it is an occasional glass of champagne. Prince Philip likes a glass of lager or light beer with luncheon and pink gin or gin and tonic at parties.

Norman Hartnell, the royal dressmaker, designed most of the outfits for the tour. There are so many of them that the queen's personal maid, Margaret MacDonald, has to pack them along with their accessories by number in especially coded trunks.

Each outfit is designed for the special occasion and temperature in which it will be worn. Skirts are weighted to withstand wind to be sure that too much of the royal leg never is visible.

Skirts Cut Full Most of the queen's skirts are cut full to avoid creasing and long enough to permit graceful exits from cars and carriages.

The queen's handbags have straps so that they can be slipped up high on her arm when she needs to use her hands.

Her shoes are handmade, open top for extra coolness, with built-up platform soles in the evening to provide comfort during long periods of standing.

Daytime colors tend to be bright so that she is clearly visible. Her favorite shades are primrose yellow, rose-red and bright blue.

For state occasions the decor of the banquet hall invariably is considered in the choice of color. So is the decoration that the queen wears. With the Order of the Garter, Britain's oldest and most exclusive order of chivalry, she usually wears a white, silver or pale gold gown. Its embroidery is designed to match the broad blue ribbon-shoulder sash of the order. The magnificent jewels which Elizabeth will wear on her Asian trip will be in the care of Scotland Yard detectives. Included will be the superb Indian rubies which the queen inherited from her grandmother, Queen Mary, who received them in India when attending the Delhi Durbar in 1911.

The queen's hair is done by her own hairdresser. The queen does her own makeup. This consists of specially blended powder, pale pink lipstick for daytime, and deeper rose for after dark. A touch of eyeshadow is used for evening when the queen knows that the light will be very bright.

In addition to Elizabeth's food tastes and a list of her evening regalia, Buckingham Palace will inform her hosts of the following: -That the queen prefers flowers grown locally in season to expensive imported flowers or hot house blooms and that she prefers receiving flowers from children.

-That she probably will take with her both her movie and still camera and keep a special personal "diary" of the tour.

-That both she and Prince Philip are sport fans and they always enjoy watching the national games or form of recreation of the country they are visiting.

During a stopover in Honolulu from a 12-day vacation in Tahiti, Mr. and Mrs. George Lewis of the Rogue Travel Service, Medford, made arrangements for a Hawaii Temple Shrine tour which will be at the Princess Kaiulani hotel March 14. This is the third trip to Hawaii for the Lewis' and while there they attended a Japanese tea house party at the Princess Kaiulani. (Sheraton Hotels in Hawaii Photo)

Home Extension Unit Sets Meeting

"Guiding the adolescent" will be the lesson when the Sams Valley Home Extension unit meets Tuesday, January 24, at the home of Mrs. Milton Sanderson on Highway 234 in Sams Valley.

Mrs. Venson Hunt and Mrs. Stanley Hall will be the leaders. They have asked that all members take a magazine or newspaper article pertaining to the lesson.

The business meeting will begin at 10:30 a.m. with a potluck dinner at noon. The lesson will be presented in the afternoon. Those attending are to take their own table service.

Relatives Give Surprise Party

Hornbrook - A group of relatives gave a surprise party January 14 honoring Henley Clawson on his birthday. Dutch whist and other games were played during the evening. Reading an original poem appropriate to the gift, Mrs. Stanley Balfrey made the presentation of a reclining vibrator chair to her brother-in-law, a gift from the entire group.

Present at the party from Yreka were Mr. and Mrs. Albert Wedin, Mrs. Balfrey, Mr. and Mrs. George Bray, Mr. and Mrs. Gene Bray, Mr. and Mrs. Russell Seaman, and from Hornbrook were Mr. and Mrs. Ivon Howard, Mr. and Mrs. Loren Cummins, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Cummins and Mrs. Clawson at whose home the party was held.

Judo Expert On Program

Thomas Ball will be a special guest for the January meeting of the Eagle Point Elementary Parent-Teacher association which will be held Tuesday, January 24, at 7:30 p.m. in the grade school gymnasium.

According to Ralph Humphrey, seventh and eighth grade teacher who is in charge of the program on "Creative Arts and Activities," Mr. Ball is a second degree blackbelt holder in the "ancient art of Judo." He is the instructor for the Medford Judo academy and will give an authentic demonstration.

Mr. Humphrey also has arranged for displays of paintings by Clarence P. Henderson, Mrs. Elmer Binker, Mrs. Ruth Peek, and Mrs. Thomas Staley and her son, Donald Staley.

Exhibits of stamps by Thomas Riley; rocks and stamps by Elmer Binker; and an historical crystalware collection by Mrs. John Huffman will also be displayed.

Music will include vocal solos by Mrs. Donna Millard, and background stereo music from Igor Stravinsky's ballet, "The Firebird," is planned during showing of exhibits.

Girls Athletic association members are in charge of child care and mothers of students in the fifth grades will serve refreshments.

Slice unpared apples directly into skillet with two tablespoons melted butter. Saute until browned. Turn once, cover slices with a little honey, four tablespoons sherry and cook until done.
