Kansas Preparing For Centennial
Starting Jan. 29

Topeka, Kan., (UPI) — Kansas is preparing itself for an estimated $500 million worth of tourist and travel business during 1961 in honor of the state's centennial celebration.

Kick-off of the actual celebration will be Jan. 29, 100 years to the day when Kansas was admitted as the 34th state of the union.

Statehood Day events are planned in Topeka and throughout the state. They are among the most formal events planned for 1961. Others will include the presentation of a musical spectacle called "The Kansas Story," billed as the most elaborate show ever staged in the Middle West, the re-creation in May of a caravan that one century ago rode the Santa Fe Trail and re-running of the historic Pony Express.

Maurice E. Fager, chairman of the Centennial Commission, has predicted that these events and others planned for the year-long celebration will draw $500 million or more in tourist and travel trade.

Visitors from throughout the United States and abroad are expected.

The "winning of the West" will be one of the main themes of the centennial celebration. Many of the locales—Dodge City, Abilene and Wichita—already are familiar to television viewers.

"The Kansas Story" with music by Meredith Wilson who wrote "The Music Man" and "The Unsinkable Molly Brown," will be presented in Topeka and Wichita during June and July.

The first World Food Fair ever to be held in the United States is scheduled for June in Topeka. Delegations from all over the world are expected to attend the two-week fair.

Wichita also is planning a Global Industrial Exposition for summer of this year, as well as an Air Fair.

A music and art festival will be held at Lindsborg, the "Swedish Capital" of Kansas between March 26 and April 2.

Another outdoor spectacle will be the Indian Peace Treaty Pageant in October at Medicine Lodge.

The old cow towns, already famous to western fans, are being restored throughout the state. Many of the Kansas forts which played a part in the Indian wars will celebrate "old fort days."

The Pony Express will be rerun starting in July from St. Joseph, Mo., across Kansas and to Sacramento, Calif. The only original, unaltered Pony Express station left standing today is the Hollenberg Station, two miles northeast of Hanover, Kan.
