Khrushchev Plans Personal Inspection Of Farming Areas

Moscow — UPI — The government newspaper Izvestia has announced that Premier Nikita Khrushchev will leave shortly on an inspection tour of Soviet farming areas where production has been lagging seriously.

At the same time, it was learned that Khrushchev had blamed two prominent Communist-including his former right-hand man, Alexei Kirilenko—for crop failures in the Ukraine.

Kirilenko, a former power on the Soviet Presidium, was castigated by Khrushchev along with the present Ukrainian premier, Nikifor Bulchenko, in a speech last Tuesday before the Communist Central Committee meeting discussing agricultural shortcomings.

Studies May Help Tell of Overdose Of Irradiation

Corvallis — Studies that may help physicians diagnose when a person has received an overdose of irradiation are under way at the Oregon State college agricultural experiment station.

Effects of radiation damage on the nervous system are being studied by a team of OSC scientists under a $16,681 grant from the U.S. public health service.

Although the research is being done with rats and rabbits, results would be similar with people, according to Dr. Ralph Bogart, OSC professor of animal husbandry. Learning to recognize symptoms of radiation damage in animals may help physicians recognize similar symptoms in people.

Bogart explained that cells in the nervous system differ from other body cells in that they don't recover from damage as other cells do.

Knock Out Nerve Cells

In their study, the OSC scientists will knock out certain nerve cells with x-rays, and then test the animals' responses to sedatives, stimulants, and hormones. In the rats, changes will be observed by their physical activity. In rabbits, by chemical changes in their blood.

The scientists will also try to determine if irradiation causes a nerve block that stops ovulation in female rabbits.

Working with Dr. Bogart on the study are Dr. Walter Stahl, assistant professor of general science; Dr. R. S. McCutcheon, professor of pharmacology; and graduate students Edwin Wagelie and Jean Kneeland. Dr. Hugo Krueger, professor of physiology, who is currently on leave in Kabul, Afghanistan, is project director. He will be back at OSC in time to help analyze data obtained from the research.
