Volunteers Start Work on Landing Strip at Prospect

Prospect - Construction of an aircraft landing strip one-fourth mile east of Prospect on the Butte Falls road started last week.

Volunteer workmen hope to have the project near completion by late spring or early summer. It will have a 4,000 foot runway with an additional 1,000 foot clearing at each end.

Width will include a 250 foot cleared area. Graded width will be 150 feet and a 50 foot wide rock surface will be in the center.

Land for the air strip has been donated by the Elk Lumber company. Workmen and equipment have been donated by area lumber companies and civic organizations.

For Small Planes

The airstrip is being built primarily to accommodate small planes. However, in emergency cases, large planes will be able to land. Sam Taylor, Elk Lumber company official, said planes as large as a DC3 will be able to use the runway.

When the project has been completed it will be turned over to the state for operation and maintenance.

Purposes of building the runway are: to provide air transportation to hospitals for sick or injured persons; to provide an alternate landing strip for mercy flights; to give forest fire fighting planes a place to land.

The idea for the landing strip was originally developed by the Prospect Lions club. It has taken four years for the idea to become a reality.

Taylor has directed most engineering aspects and Gene Burrill is directing construction. Those contributing equipment and labor to date include Burrill Lumber company, Steve Wilson Lumber company and Biden Logging company. Disposal of debris will be done by the state forest patrol.

LANDING STRIP—Work started last week on a 4,000 foot aircraft landing strip one-fourth mile east of Prospect. The land, donated by Elk Lumber company, is being cleared at the present time. Area lumber companies and civic organizations are donating labor and equipment for the project. It is hoped the runway will be near completion by late spring or early summer.

Pioneer Daughter Dies in Ashland

Miss Anna Belle Anderson, 97, daughter of pioneer settlers, Eli Knighton Anderson and Elizabeth (Myer) Anderson, died early Saturday morning at a rest home in Ashland.

Miss Anderson was born Aug. 7, 1863 on the family homestead west of Talent and spent her girlhood in southern Oregon, where she attended the Old Ashland Academy and took an active part in the social and church life of the community. She was widely known as a singer and for many years was soloist in the Methodist church of Ashland. She was also an artist of recognized accomplishments.

Since 1907 she had lived in the Anderson home at 344 East Main st., where her sister, Mrs. Dora A. Wight, joined her in 1949. Mrs. Wight died two years ago.

Surviving Miss Anderson are: three nephews, Lester M. Phillips, Ashland; George F. and Chester F. Phillips, both of San Francisco, and one niece, Mrs. Veta Belle Carter, Ashland. Also surviving are many grandchildren and grand-nephews.

A nephew, Walter Anderson Phillips, was shot down while serving in the Air Corps during World War I. The Ashland high school athletic field is named in his honor, as is the Ashland Veterans of Foreign Wars Post 3423.

Friends wishing to do so may call at Litwiller's Mountain View chapel, where the body is lying in state, Monday evening between 7 and 9 o'clock. Entombment will be Tuesday in the Ashland mausoleum.
