Supreme Court Orders Board To Open Records

Salem — UP — The Oregon Supreme Court Wednesday reversed a Multnomah County Circuit Court decree and ordered the State Board of Health to open its radioactivity records to Dr. Alan M. MacEwan, Portland scientist. When MacEwan sought to inspect board records in connection with tests of radioactivity in air and rainwater he was refused. MacEwan went to court and Judge J. J. Murchison ruled for the board, saying the records were not "public writings." Should Be Accessible. In the decision by Justice Kenneth O'Connell, the high court said any writings coming into the hands of public officers in connection with their official functions should "generally be accessible to members of the public." The court also dismissed a petition by two Linn county lumber firms challenging State Tax Commission jurisdiction to increase their assessment of personal property in 1957-58 after the taxes had been assessed and paid. Those who sued the commission were Willamette Lumber Co. and Santiam Lumber Co. Judge Victor Olliver was reversed.
