

THE COURT HELD
A public service by the COLLEGE OF LAW
WILLAMETTE UNIVERSITY
Building On Wrong Lot
Causes Tangle
Gillis obtained a building permit to construct a house on lot 15 which he owned in a new area of development. He immediately started construction on lot 16, thinking it was lot 15; however, his mistake was discovered more than a month later, at which time it was determined that Gillis had invested more than $8,000 in the structure. Gillis sought to purchase lot 16 from its owner, Hall, who refused to sell. Construction continued for a short time and then was halted when Hall instructed that it be stopped. Gillis then filed suit asking that either he be permitted to purchase lot 16 or that Hall be required to purchase, for a reasonable value the improvements placed on the lot.

THE COURT HELD: The Supreme Court of Oregon decided that Gillis and Hall exchange deeds to their respective lots. It also determined that Gillis had to pay Hall $150 and pay the court costs.
The court was careful to point out that it did not approve of carelessness or laxness on the part of Gillis in looking to the location of the lot, but at the same time, it could not see that an exchange of lots would harm Hall. In this decision it was emphasized that neither party contended that either of the lots had any peculiar or intrinsic value. (Florida, 84 So. 2d, 1956).

Company Plans Talk With Senator

Salem — (AP) — Bruce Cowan of International Paper Co. said Friday representatives of the firm will go to Washington, D.C., to discuss with Sen. Maurice Neuberger a proposed plant at Gardiner and its effect on a projected Oregon Dunes National Seashore area. The announcement came shortly after a Democratic House caucus expressed "general approval" for two bills to grant lake and beach easements necessary for construction and operation of the $30 million plant. Persons at the caucus said one legislator, however, expressed some fears the plant might set a precedent for future industrial development that would damage beach areas.
