Hostetter Presented Award for Service In Bureau Project

Robert D. Hostetter, plans forester of the Medford district of land management, was presented an award last week by Tom D. Conklin, Oregon deputy state supervisor for the BLM. Conklin presented the award on behalf of the secretary of the interior.

The award was in recognition of excellence of service performed by Hostetter on a special assignment to Washington, D.C. The assignment was at two different times, for about a six weeks' period late in 1959 and an additional six weeks' period in early 1960.

The award was a personal recognition of Hostetter's performance in connection with a unit award granted to other members of the committee which performed outstanding work on a bureau of land management project known as Project Twenty-Twelve.

Clubs Discuss New Teen-Age Projects

Representatives of several local service clubs and youth organizations attended a special meeting last week at the request of Arthur Troppie, representing the Medford Active 20-30 club.

The meeting, held at the juvenile department offices, was to discuss the possibilities of service clubs and other organizations sponsoring a teenage service club or pooling their energies into developing projects beneficial to the betterment of local youth.

Attending were George Bruse, Elks; Dick O'Dell, Active 20-30 club; Don Darneille, McLoughlin Junior High; Bruce Nelson, Hedrick Junior High; Fred Stock, county public welfare department; Circuit Court Judge Edward C. Kelly, Kay Crowell, Lawrence L. Tweedy, Robert Swan, L. E. Wells, and Robert Schmidt, all from the county juvenile court and juvenile department.

Troppie agreed that he would set up a committee to report to various civic organizations the findings of the meeting.

603 Complaints Received by Dog Control Officer

The county dog control officer has received 603 complaints regarding dogs since the first of the year, Chris Hagler, county dog control officer has reported.

He said the number is approximately double the number received by this time last year.

Since dog control went into effect in Ashland Feb. 13 the number of complaints have increased, he said. On Feb. 22 the department received 21 complaints. He added that the department has two full-time employees in addition to himself.

Hagler explained that since dog control went into effect in Medford a higher percentage of owners are claiming animals at the pound. He added that previously the department mainly picked up strays, which would account for the difference.

The dog control officer reported that the sale of dog licenses is behind the number sold last year. He reminded residents that dogs are required to have the licenses. After March 1 a penalty fee is added to the price of the license.

Dog licenses may be purchased on or before Feb. 28 at the county courthouse; the county dog pound, 2872 Howard ave., Medford; Phoenix police department; Talent police department; Ashland police department; Rasmussen Super service, Jacksonville; Applegate shopping center, Central Point city hall; Gall's Gold Hill market; Rogue River Feed and Farm supply; Eagle Point city hall; Cove Valley Supply, Shady Cove; Boothby's in Prospect; and from the city recorder in Butte Falls.

Starting March 1, a penalty of $2 will be charged in addition to regular dog license fees.

Try and Stop Me

By BENNETT CERF

THE TYPE in some of the mammoth new paperbacks gets smaller and smaller and one anguished reader has struck back at his tormentors. "I propose," he writes, "that these typographical monstrosities henceforth carry this legend on the last page: A NOTE ON THE TYPE IN WHICH THIS BOOK WAS SET."

"The type in which this book was set is known, quite unfavorably, as one-half point Myopia, and was designed in 1822 by that noted sadist, Feodor Astigmatism. It bids fair to become one of the most heartily disliked faces this side of Fidel Castro. It is perfect for engraving the complete text of 'The Brounkers Karamazov' on the head of a pin."

Eying the scantily clad chorus girls at a popular night club, Comedian Joe E. Lewis sighed, "They don't make them like they used to." Even more wistfully, he added, "At least I don't!"
