Personally Speaking

By JOHN STAFFORD
To whom it may concern:
The yellow kite in the tree next to the road to Roxy Ann park Sunday afternoon was mine. The person in the tree was me. And yes, I did manage to free the kite from the branches.
I guess some people never grow up. At 23, I find myself returning to childhood pastimes on occasion. Kites have always held a special place in my heart, along with yo-yos. My mother told me it is hereditary. The kite and yo-yo came from my father.
He tells a story about one of the saddest moments in his life. He was working for a Detroit area newspaper many years ago. Detroit was the scene of a national yo-yo tournament and he volunteered to report the event. The yo-yo enthusiasts were so pleased with his coverage that they gave him several yo-yos. Some were of the whistling variety, some spun circles of flames and others were run-of-the-mill yo-yos. However, his favorite was a diamond studded job.
He has a gleam in his eye as he recalls coming home from a day at the office and operating a couple of yo-yos for relaxation. This went on for some time. There was only one problem. The sight of yo-yos merrily bobbing up and down drove my mother to the breaking point. She finally put her foot down and issued an ultimatum. "The yo-yo goes or I do." This was a strong statement which good old dad took with a grain of salt.
Finally he came home from the office one day and there wasn't a yo-yo in sight. Questioning revealed they had all been reduced to ashes in the furnace. He was crushed.

High Winds Level Barns In Ruch-Applegate Area

By MAUDE ZIEGLER
Mail Tribune Correspondent
Applegate Valley—Friday's high winds selected barns as a target and lowered seven in the Ruch-Little Applegate area. A horse was pinned under a barn at the Milton Housen ranch, and three structures were wrecked at the Louis Straube ranch. Considerable damage also was reported at McKee bridge forest camp.
At the Houston ranch a saddle horse was pinned under the flattened timbers of a large barn for about an hour. Houston, whose car was in use elsewhere, found that his telephone was out of order and he walked about a mile to the Rolland Smith farm to get help and equipment for freeing the horse. The animal appeared to have internal injuries, but is recovering. The barn was one of the old landmarks of the valley, built more than 60 years ago for Arthur Kleinhammer who now lives in Ashland.

PTSA Functions Explained by Grants Pass Unit

Grants Pass—The executive board of the Grants Pass High school PTSA had as its guest at a recent luncheon meeting Mrs. Jean Schmitt, membership chairman of the Crater High school PTA.
She was interested in contacting several high schools who have PTSA's in operation. The Crater unit is interested in the possibility of encouraging students at the high school to become a part of the membership. Frank Thomas, Grants Pass High school principal, explained how sectional meetings of the PTSA are planned. From the point of view of a school administrator, he felt that this system of devoting one meeting each year to the specific problems of each year of high school had resulted in better contact with the parents. As program chairman of the unit, he works with the coordinators of each year to plan the sectional meetings and organizes a panel to speak and discuss problems pertaining to that year.
Talent Show
After much discussion among the 10 board members, it was decided that members of the PTSA will prepare and sell home-made candy at the talent show to be given by the senior class of the high school on March 10 at the Memorial gym. Members will be contacted by phone to ask for donations of candy or ingredients for making candy and in this project Mrs. Harriet Suhr and Mrs. Hazel Goveau, co-chairmen of ways and means, will work with Mrs. Marge Rivers, Mrs. Pat Vornberg, and Mrs. Dorothy Burnette, sophomore, junior and senior co-ordinators.
Mrs. Boyd Hixon, Josephine county council president, spoke about the day she spent at the legislature together with a group of thirteen women from various PTA units in Josephine county. They attended several legislative discussions, including several committee meetings, with particular attention being paid to those bills being prepared for presentation to the legislators which pertain to education. The group was taken by Mrs. Sidney Bazett, wife of the newly elected legislator from Josephine county, to the home of Mrs. Mark Hatfield where they were her guests for afternoon tea.
The next regular meeting of the PTSA will be on March 7 and it will be a senior section meeting. Mrs. R. J. Millemann, president, reminded the group that all members should try to attend, since some general unit business would be conducted, including reading and considering the reports of a by-laws committee which recommends several changes in unit by-laws, and the report of the nominating committee with its slate of officers for next year.

REGIONAL NEWS

Special Meeting Held for Hearing Complaints About Hornbrook School

Hornbrook—The Hornbrook school system was criticized at a special meeting called to hear complaints about school management last week.
A school trustee allegedly said he had been told by Yreka High school faculty members that Hornbrook children entering high school were below average. He went on to say that he thought a better man could be found to replace principal Harley Baker.
These charges were hotly disputed by many Hornbrook residents. They supported Baker's management of the school by complimenting him on the discipline he maintains. Baker introduced Yreka High school superintendent Tom Preece and high school principal Steven Pueyo. They said a review had been made of 21 Hornbrook youngsters entering the high school during the past three years. Preece said the community should be proud of the students. Of the group, only one is not achieving his capacity. Preece indicated he went on to say that some are doing work beyond what is expected of them.
Well Prepared
Pueyo said the students are prepared as well as they are expected to be and are equal to those from other schools. A discussion about teaching methods and text books used followed. Baker and Preece outlined the state series of text books used. Preece said the state books must be used in all schools.
The value of sports in the school program was discussed. A few present indicated they felt too much emphasis was being placed on sports in the school program. Baker said the physical education program does not use up any regular lesson time and only children who keep up their grades are allowed to participate.
Several parents complimented Baker on developing a sports program and reminded parents that before Baker came to Hornbrook, the children had no place to play any games.
Paul Green said that in his opinion the school was in better shape than it had been in for years and "we certainly can't argue with the high school report."

Community Social For EP Newcomers

Eagle Point—A community social honoring all newcomers to the Eagle Point area will mark the first anniversary of the Eagle Point Greeters.
The social will be held Wednesday, March 8. Special invitations have been sent to all newcomers who have been called on since the last social was held.
Newcomers to the area within the past two years are urged to come to the social. Over 100 people were called on during the first year. All members of the community are invited to help celebrate the Greeter's first anniversary.
The Greeters was organized by the Eagle Point Jayceets last February. Their purpose was to call on newcomers and welcome them to the community. They compiled a pamphlet with the aid of Eagle Point merchants and organizations to help acquaint newcomers with the many organizations and civic opportunities available in the community. A list of information that would be helpful moving into a new community was included for their benefit and many merchants gave gift certificates to the newcomers.
Mixer games, entertainment, and refreshments will highlight entertainment.
