Durno Asks BPR to Release Funds for Access Road Work

Washington—Congressman Edwin R. Durno has asked the U.S. bureau of public roads to release funds to assist the state in the construction of access roads to rest areas adjacent to the new interstate expressway (Highways 99 and 30) which the state highway department is ready to build if the federal government will cooperate.

Under memoranda of last Aug. 6 and Sept. 30, the bureau ruled against federal participation except where such areas have special historical significance. One of the reasons cited was difficulty in keeping such areas clean and sanitary.

Rest Areas Laid Out
State Park Superintendent Mark Astrup said rest areas, each carefully chosen for convenience and scenic values, have been laid out at approximately 40 mile intervals on both Highway 99 and 30 and that lack of such facilities, properly equipped and supervised, poses a much more real health problem than otherwise.
