

Supervisors Are Elected in Rogue Soil District

Arnold Bohnert, Central Point, and James C. Miller, of the Ashland area, were elected to the board of supervisors of the Rogue Soil Conservation district Thursday night at the annual meeting.

Bohnert replaces Mrs. Kathryn Hefferman, Ross Lane, and Miller replaces Terry Houk, Ashland.

Robert MacLauchlan, U.S. soil conservation service plant materials specialist, lectured on new forage plants for this area. He stressed the importance of adopted species to increase yields and net farm income for the farmer.

Alternate row seedings of intermediate wheat grass and alfalfa and seedings of Alta Fescue and sub-clover look promising for dry land, MacLauchlan stated.

Promising Grass
The new "Latar" orchard grass is promising grass, he said. This should be used in alternate rows with Ladino clover or irrigated pastures or with alfalfa for irrigated hay crop.

Good management, including rotation grazing, proper fertilization and irrigation are necessary for optimum results, the plant specialist said.

Robert Baum, administrative officer for the state conservation committee, reviewed soil water conservation bills pending in the state legislature.

Farmers and the public were invited by C. W. Jensen, chairman of the board to attend regular meetings of the SCD board the second Tuesday of each month. The next meetings will be April 11.

Casket bearers will be Vance Adams, Richard Niedermeyer, Joseph Beach, Harold White, Russell McIntyre and James Grigsby Jr.

Experimental TV Class Scheduled

Ashland—An experimental television course, History of the Pacific Northwest, will be sponsored jointly by Southern Oregon college and the regional office of the general extension division, Dr. E. C. McGill, assistant to the president and research coordinator for the college, has announced.

"This television course is of considerable importance in a number of ways," Dr. McGill stated, "Not only does it afford the opportunity of earning three term hours of college credit, but it may be considered as an option course, inasmuch as the student may choose TV instruction plus on-campus instruction, or TV instruction plus correspondence work."

Dr. F. D. Haines, Jr., member of the SOC social science division, will instruct the series of 13 half-hour shows which will be presented on station KBES-TV, Medford, each Wednesday beginning March 22 at 4 p.m.

Dr. Haines and Charles Ivie, regional GED director, will appear on KBES-TV Wednesday, March 15, at 4 p.m. to explain course content and enrollment procedures.

Prospective enrollees for the course may contact Charles Ivie, general extension division, Southern Oregon college, for further details.

Audio-Visual Center Recognized Nationally

The Jackson county curriculum materials center under Director James McDonald has received national recognition.

"Chances are good" that the local audio-visual aids program will be among 15 local preparation programs to be described in detail in a national educational publication, according to a letter received in County School Superintendent Alf Mekvold's office from two Indiana university professors of education.

The two, John Molstad, associate professor of education, and Gene Faris, assistant professor of education, wrote that they plan to personally visit the local center about March 21. They will interview McDonald, and five classroom teachers who use the curriculum materials.

To Be Distributed
The publication is scheduled for distribution to school personnel throughout the country. The two educational authorities selected 200 top rated programs in the country and mailed questionnaires to them. From this sampling, the list would be reduced to 20. After a survey of the 20, the top 15 curriculum materials centers would be selected.

The publication would explain what has made them successful and provide information to other counties as to how they might improve their facilities.

"This is important because it indicates the leadership of the local county administration and the rural school board in developing this program," a local educational official said.

Representatives of the Yolo county, Calif., school superintendent's office visited the Jackson county curriculum materials center Friday afternoon to inspect the production department.

Science Lectures Set at Phoenix

Phoenix — Students enrolled in science and mathematics courses at Phoenix High school will have the opportunity of observing and participating in a series of lecture demonstrations sponsored by the National Science Foundation.

C. T. Fredricks of the Traveling Science Program at the University of Oregon will conduct classes in the chemical, physical and biological sciences. Topics in the field of chemistry, scheduled for presentation include equilibrium and chemical kinetics, radioactivity, thermo-chemistry and acid and base indicators.

Wave motion, Newton's Laws, curvilinear motion and phenomena of static and dynamic electricity are among the topics designed primarily for students of the physical sciences.

Biological science demonstrations will center around the effects of radioactivity and the molecular structure of living cells.

Student design and construction of scientific apparatus will be stressed with the objective of instilling interest in the applied sciences through the utilization of the tools provided by the combined study of science and mathematics.

Memorial Dinner Tickets Available In County Now

Tickets for the 11th annual Roosevelt Memorial dinner April 15 at McLoughlin Junior High are now available, according to Henry Padgham, chairman of the event.

Sen. Frank F. Church (D-Ida.) will be a guest. He was invited by Sen. Wayne L. Morse (D-Ore.) to attend.

According to Padgham, several innovations concerning the annual affair have been introduced this year, including student tickets, a special letterhead, return-addressed envelopes, and a new post-office box.

The stationery, bearing the late President's picture and a list of past dinner speakers, will be used in all correspondence concerning the dinner this year. Reply envelopes will be sent with the tickets in order to facilitate the sale by mail.

Junior high, high school, and college students will be able to attend the dinner at half-price with a special "student ticket," Padgham added. Ticket co-chairmen are Mrs. Ed McGinty and Mrs. Ralph Poston, Medford; and Mrs. Thornton Shively, Ashland.

Senator Church, in accepting the invitation, said, "I consider it a high honor to come to Medford and speak at your outstanding banquet." The Congressman, known as the keynote speaker at the 106th Democratic National convention, is the youngest member of the U.S. Senate and a member of the foreign relations committee.

Mrs. Hugh Friel has been named executive secretary for the dinner.

4-H Leaders Hold Meeting in GP

Grants Pass—The Josephine county 4-H Leader's club association met in Grants Pass recently with 52 leaders and junior leaders attending.

James Colson presided, Mrs. Lynn Stone, from Williams, is secretary.

The meeting opened with a demonstration on "how to make photographs," by three members of the Beaver's Photo club and their leader, Mrs. Ted Camp.

Miss Koene Rasanen and Larry Hassett reported experiences of their trip to Salem to the "Know Your State Government" conference, for which the Josephine county Leader's club pays expenses.

Miss Karen Peterson attended the conference again this year. Marvin Young, Josephine county agent, accompanied the group.

Other business discussed at the meeting was the leader's workshop scheduled April 15 in Roseburg, which will be conducted by newly elected District Representative A. T. Lathrop of Williams. Lathrop was elected to represent Josephine, Jackson, Douglas, Coos and Curry counties at the recent State Conference of 4-H Leaders in Salem.

A request to operate a beauty shop as a home occupation at 1210 East Main st. was withdrawn. Mrs. Florence Stacy, 1220 East Main st., presented the commission with a petition which she asked to be put on permanent file. She said signers of the petition oppose any commercial use of this area of Main st. The petition was accepted.

The commission approved a variance to the city's sign ordinance for the Rogue Valley hospital to allow erection of an extra-large construction sign during construction of the new hospital wing.

Phoenix Man Named New WPA President

San Francisco — WPA — J. B. Edens, Phoenix, Ariz., Saturday was elected president of the Western Pine association at the closing session of the group's four-day meeting here.

Edens will replace James D. Bronson of Yakima, Wash. Other officers elected include Kenneth R. Walker, Alhambra, Calif., and John S. Richards, Coeur d'Alene, Ida., vice presidents; and Robert A. Behfeld, Phoenix, Ariz., treasurer.

Funds Approved for Home Living Center

Phoenix—Approval of funds to finance a "home living center" at Phoenix High school recently was received from the Sears Roebuck foundation.

Miss Catherine Carter, homemaking instructor, applied for the funds through the state supervisor of home economics education and the Oregon home economics public relations committee.

The project includes a living area to provide experience in wood finishing, slip cover making, drapery making, and the actual planning of such an area.

The foundation is to provide funds for the cost of cloth, cording, braces, plywood, plus other materials needed for the construction of the center. Drapery material is being supplied by the Phoenix-Talent Parent-Teacher association.
