

Congress Turning Attention To Aid To Depressed Areas Bill

Washington—(AP)—The Senate today was to debate a $394 million bill to aid depressed areas, and the House gets another substitute for President Kennedy's plan.

Aid for areas of chronic unemployment is one Kennedy's major legislative goals. He proposed a program of loans intended to import industry to economically depressed areas.

Sen. Paul H. Douglas (D-Ill.), introduced the measure the Senate is considering, but it has been the target of a barrage of amendments seeking to restrict it or shrink the money figure.

No Senate vote was expected before Tuesday night or Wednesday.

'Anti-Pirating' Clause

In the House, Rep. Robert N. Giaimo (D-Conn.), planned to introduce a bill similar to the administration measure but also containing a strong "anti-pirating" clause.

Giaimo said he was in full accord with the principle behind Kennedy's program, but he argued that greater safeguards were needed to prevent the pirating of industry from one locale to another.

He found in aid to rural areas, designed to help these areas lure new industry, a potential threat of "raids by sweated industries." He said his bill would close "loopholes for those who would employ federal funds to pirate New England industry."

The House banking subcommittee, headed by Rep. Wright Patman (D-Tex.), scheduled a hearing today on the Kennedy bill.

Other congressional news:

Rules: The House Rules committee scheduled a meeting on three measures expected to clear the full House by next week end. They were bills to restore five-star general's rank to former President Dwight D. Eisenhower, to authorize military construction projects and to deal with regulation of food additives.

Social Security: The House Ways and Means committee continued closed-door preliminary work on the administration's program to broaden the Social Security system. An estimated five million Americans would gain new or increased benefits during the next year if Congress adopted Kennedy's plan.

Feed grain: Senate and House farm leaders will meet this week to compromise their differences on proposals to reduce 1961 feed grain production. The Senate and House passed differing versions last week of an administration plan to give higher support prices plus conservation payments to farmers who reduce corn and grain sorghum acreage.

Schools: The AFL-CIO Teachers Union endorsed President Kennedy's aid-to-education program in prepared testimony before a Senate education subcommittee. The group termed the plan essential to get the United States out of the ox-cart era and into the space age.

State Legislature Enters 10th Week; Hearings Scheduled

Salem—(AP)—The Oregon Legislature entered its 10th week today prepared to delve into some heavy matters including a close look at medicare, timber taxation, school fund distribution and billboards.

The House Tax committee planned to take up various timber tax bills at hearings this afternoon and Wednesday, and the Senate Highways committee was to air compromise billboard control bills late today.

The House Welfare committee meets tonight on bills aimed at an institute for rehabilitating sex offenders, and Thursday night on a measure to give Oregon a program of medical care for the aged.

Bridge Testimony Due

The House Highways committee will take testimony Thursday at 1 p.m. on the proposed $24 million Astoria-Megler bridge.

The House Fish and Game committee set a meeting this afternoon to consider a proposed fish hatchery on the Nehalem river, and planned to take up Wednesday at 3 p.m. a bill to ban commercial salmon fishing within three miles of the coast.

The House state and federal affairs committee set a hearing for 7:30 Wednesday night on two government reorganization bills to place health and mental health agencies in a new social services department.

Thursday from 5 to 7 p.m. the same committee will consider a senate-approved bill to create a cabinet department of commerce.

The Senate State and Federal Affairs committee is scheduled to take testimony Wednesday at 3 p.m. on the "Little Landrum-Griffin Bill," strongly opposed by labor.

Court Arguments

The Oregon Supreme Court will hear arguments Tuesday in a case to test the constitutionality of a resolution to let legislators reimburse themselves for out of pocket expenses.

The House Tax committee planned to amend its income tax reform bill for the third time in an effort to win the four more votes needed for passage. The House Elections committee was scheduled to make a final decision late today on a bill to reapportion the legislature in accordance with new census figures.

Newspaper Parley To Hear Kennedy

New York—(AP)—President Kennedy will speak at the annual dinner here of the Bureau of Advertising, American Newspaper Publishers Association, on April 27.

Russ Stewart, board chairman of the Bureau of Advertising and executive vice president of the Chicago Sun-Times and Daily News, said the subject of Kennedy's speech has not been announced.

A record attendance of about 2,000 U. S. and Canadian publishers and other newspaper executives is expected at the dinner, traditional final event of the annual ANPA convention.

PRESIDENT HAILS UN

Washington—(AP)—President Kennedy has hailed the United Nations as mankind's best hope for settling international crises which, "if unresolved, can only invite conflict." In a telegram Sunday to the American Association for the United Nations, Kennedy said, "Never has there been a greater need for the people of this country, and indeed for those of all members of the United Nations to understand these crucial issues."

Farm Leaders To Tackle Feed Grain

Washington—(AP)—Senate and House farm leaders will meet this week to compromise their differences on proposals to reduce 1961 feed grain production.

The Senate and House passed differing versions last week of an administration plan to give higher support prices plus conservation payments to farmers who reduce corn and grain sorghum acreage.

The House bill, however, includes an administration-backed enforcement feature. This provision would allow the agriculture secretary to discourage farmers who ignore the new program by keeping open-market prices of feed grains low through the sales of government grain.

Nation's Housing Declared Improved

Washington—(AP)—The Census Bureau reports that one out of every six American families lived last year in dilapidated housing or lacked full plumbing facilities.

Nevertheless, housing in this country improved appreciably in the 1950s.

These were the chief conclusions of a report issued Sunday on the 1960 housing census, taken along with the population count last spring.

The bureau found that 83 per cent or five out of six of all occupied nondilapidated houses and apartments contained full plumbing facilities. In 1950 the ratio was 64 per cent of just under two-thirds.

The bureau defined full plumbing as private bath, toilet and running hot water.
