

Ambassadors for Friendship Is Popular Program

St. Paul, Minn.—UPI—It is a rare man, indeed, who will take a caravan of foreign college students on his honeymoon.

That is just what Harry Morgan did as one of the things which snowballed into an international project—that won Morgan an award as one of the 10 outstanding young men in the United States.

Morgan, 26, was specifically cited for his "Ambassadors for Friendship" program, a project which seeks to teach foreign students in the United States about American ways of life.

When the United States Junior Chamber of Commerce gave Morgan his award, they called him "a pioneer in people-to-people diplomacy with our neighbors abroad."

Ambassadors for Friendship took shape in Morgan's mind when he hitch-hiked across Holland in 1953, just after thousands had been left homeless by floods.

"I learned there that understanding comes from friendship," he said.

Back in the United States Morgan enlisted in the Air Force. He raised funds to bring a few foreign students to America.

The first participants in the program returned home delighted with the United States. Morgan returned to Rutgers University after service and was graduated last June.

Last summer, Morgan began in earnest his attempt to reach 50,000 foreign students with his program.

Caravan
Financed by $1 shares sold throughout the country, Morgan and internationally minded Macalester College students here financed a caravan of station wagons in which the young leader, his bride of one week, and eight foreign students set out to tour the United States.

Although the trip's purpose was to teach the students, Morgan's person-to-person idea worked both ways and Americans learned as well.

In one small Midwestern town, an elderly woman approached an extremely intelligent African student and asked, "Is it true that your people still eat missionaries?"

None of Morgan's group was much surprised when a waitress asked for orders that night and the young man answered: "One missionary."

Morgan currently is serving as special assistant to the president at Macalester, using the college as a headquarters and a testing ground for his ambassadors project.

Last year, five groups toured the nation. In 1961 Morgan hopes to send about a dozen groups.

Morgan's home on the college campus is dubbed "International House." It is a club house-meeting hall for Macalester's 50 foreign students.

Each Tuesday, the Morgan's entertain the foreign students with a potluck supper.

Numerous Speeches
Between these extra-curricular activities and his daily tasks, Morgan gives numerous speeches on the ambassadors program and internationalism.

In June, "Ambassadors for Friendship" will mark its fifth birthday, with greetings expected from former students in Austria, Denmark, West Germany, France, Holland, Italy, Sweden and Switzerland.

His latest venture would bring 12 young newspapermen from 12 different countries to Macalester for a year of American studies.

"We'll try to select the future editors, who some day will be molding public opinion in Asia, Africa and the other countries and tell them the true American story," Morgan said.

He already has raised about $40,000 to finance the program, by selling his idea to company presidents, publishers and others throughout the country.

Nuclear Device On Crashed Bomber

Sacramento, Calif.—UPI—A B52 jet bomber carrying a nuclear weapon crashed in flames about 40 miles north of Sacramento Tuesday. The only fatality was an Air Force fireman not on the plane.

M/Sgt. Lawrence T. Gillham of Beale Air Force Base was killed when the fire truck he was driving crashed en route to the scene.

The eight men aboard the $8 million bomber parachuted from the crippled craft. None was seriously injured.

Air Force officials, who said there was no danger of a nuclear explosion, sealed off the area and sent in decontamination workers to eliminate any possible danger from radiation.
