Travelling Science Program Scheduled At Phoenix School

Eugene—A science program designed to demonstrate some of the aspects of chemistry and physics and to stimulate the interest of high school students will be presented at Phoenix High School this week through the University of Oregon's Travelling Science Demonstration-Lecture program.

The traveling program worked out by the university and supported by the National Science Foundation is in its second year.

It is part of a national program to excite interest in science as a career for high school students to stimulate interest in science and in better science teaching, and to encourage teachers and students in the construction and acquisition of better low-cost demonstration apparatus.

Charles Fredericks, who will conduct the program at Phoenix, is a high school teacher who has been especially trained for his work at the University of Oregon.

He is a member of a corps of teachers currently visiting in the high schools in the northwest. All the teachers were prepared for the program in a summer-long course of study at the university last summer.

Fredericks has an especially-equipped station wagon which carries his demonstration apparatus. Most of this apparatus he designed and constructed himself.

He is a former teacher at Drain Union High school, and is a graduate of the University of Oregon.

During the week the traveling demonstration program is in Phoenix it will be available for appearance before civic groups as well as scheduled appearances in Phoenix High school classes. Additional information may be obtained at Phoenix High school.

Newman Elected Committee Head

Victor Newman, state employment office in Medford, was elected chairman of the Jackson County Committee for the Employment of the Physically Handicapped recently.

Newman fills a vacancy created when John W. Sinderson resigned. Sinderson has been transferred and promoted to the Veterans administration hospital in Hines, Ill. Sinderson has been personnel officer at the VA Domiciliary, White City.

The new chairman has lived in southern Oregon for 12 years, and has been with the Medford office of the state employment service during that time.

Newman has served with the committee for 10 years, and has been chairman. He has been the permanent secretary.

Sinderson has been in Jackson county since August, 1956, when he was transferred here from the Veterans administration hospital in Durham, N.C. He has served on the committee since his arrival here, and has been chairman for the past two years.

Rains Extend Tree Planting Season

Recent rains have extended the tree planting season, and the next two weeks should be ideal for that purpose, the Medford street tree committee said Saturday.

Residents planning to follow the approved city street tree plan were encouraged to proceed at once, so that the neighborhoods involved can be completed this year.

One such neighborhood, on Willamette ave., has been partly planted to fruitless mulberry trees, it was pointed out, and could be completed in the next week or so, since these trees are available.

Any residents wishing to check on the tree approved in their neighborhood may obtain the information from the city manager's office in the Medford city hall.

The street tree plan, drawn up and adopted several years ago, applies only to city-owned parking strips, and residents are encouraged to beautify their areas by planting the trees approved for their streets in the parking strips. The plan does not apply to resident-owned property.

Some areas of the city are making excellent progress in completing their tree-planting plans, members of the committee reported.

home economics, business education, college, extension, hobby and craft, trade preparatory, and general education will be offered in the program. Classes with insufficient enrollment, however, will be cancelled.

Tuition for the courses is from $6 to $33, except for full-time trade preparatory students. Their fee is $65. The fees do not include textbooks or supplies, according to school officials.

Courses are scheduled for a 10-week period, except for a few that meet only for a five-week period. Additional information may be obtained by contacting the adult education office, Medford High school, Spring 3-7220.

Spring term evening classes for adults in Jackson county are continuing this week with college credit courses being offered at both Medford and Central Point through the general extension division of the Oregon state system of higher education.

Last week, the History of the United States (Hist 201), providing three hours credit, began at Crater High school. Dr. F. D. Haines Jr., associate professor of social science at Southern Oregon college, is instructing the course each Tuesday from 7 until 9:45 p.m.

Alcohol studies in school curriculum (Sed 481) (G), providing three hours credit, began March 20. Dr. W. Kenneth Ferrier, education director, Oregon Alcohol Education committee and professor of education, general extension division, is teaching the course.

Beginning March 29, Dr. Clarence Hines, professor of education, University of Oregon, will teach school buildings (Ed 576), 3 hours, each Wednesday in Medford.

On March 30, courses scheduled to meet from 7 to 9:45 p.m. at Medford High school include the junior high school (Ed 484) (G), 3 hours, Thursdays, instructed by Dr. William Ward, associate professor of education and director of laboratory experiences, SOC.

Dr. Keith Goldhammer, associate professor of education, University of Oregon, will conduct a workshop—educational issues and problems (Ed 508) for 3 hours credit on Thursdays.

Fees are $11 per credit hour, as provided by the state board of higher education. Enrollments may be on a credit or noncredit basis.

Students who earn credit may transfer it to any state system institution or elsewhere subject to individual campus requirements. All courses and instructors are authorized by the state system institution which originates the extension course.

Additional information on these courses may be obtained from Charles Ivie, general extension representative, Southern Oregon college, Ashland.
