Dairy Hill's Night Cap Wins Open All-Age Stage in Trial

Entries owned and handled by Andrius A. Jones, Hillsborough, Calif., were first and third placers yesterday in the open all-age stake of the Rogue Valley Retriever club's 10th annual field trial.

Victor in the stake was Jones' Dairy Hill's Night Watch. Both are Labrador males.

The two were among five retrievers called back for the last of four series. Twenty-two dogs started the open which was the final stake of four in the three-day trial held in the White City area north of Medford. The American Kennel Club-licensed trial opened Friday.

Night Cap was the high point dog of the nation in 1960 open all-age competition.

Ace's Sheba of Ardyn, Labrador female, owned and handled by Dr. B. L. Finlayson, Seattle, Wash., was second in the open. Fourth was awarded to MacKenzie's Clear Pitch, Labrador male, owned by Dr. Dean Parker, Seattle, Wash. Handler was Paul Shoemaker, Issaquah, Wash.

Sharp As Tack Reserve certificate of merit went to Lignite's Old Yeller, yellow Labrador male, also handled by Shoemaker. Owner of the dog is Joan Watkins, Seattle, Wash.

Judges for the final stake were Donald L. Burnett, Pocatello, Idaho, and Kenneth G. Denman, Medford.

Denman described Night Cap as "sharp as a tack." He said that Ace's Sheba, in second spot "ran a real fine trial, too." The judge stated that the open was a "rugged" one, that he and Burnett tested the dogs in every way that they could think of and that every test proved something.

Night Cap drew acclaim from the gallery for taking the duck on a line in the single bird water blind third series. The duck was about 95 yards out and the retrievers had to go over ditches, tules and open water. The duck was on the far side of the water in tules. This series was on game management land.

Double on Pheasants First series was off Avenue G and was a double on pheasants with a land blind. Cover was medium and pot holes containing water were a problem for the dogs. A wide ditch had to be crossed.

Nineteen dogs were called back for the second series which was a water triple on ducks. Two ducks were thrown in one lake and one in another. Cover was heavy around two of the ducks and gunners retired leaving nothing for the dogs to guide by. Twelve dogs were called back after this series.

Fourth and final test was on three shoe pheasants. One was straight out and short in light cover, one was long and to the left in wading water and heavy cover and the third long at a left angle in medium cover. Retrievers were made in reverse order that the birds were thrown or shot.

On Friday Tyson Rowdy, golden male, owned and handled by James Stilwell, Klamath Falls, took the amateur all-age stake. Two winners were settled Saturday. Bracer de Ora owned and handled by Hugh Adams, Bakersfield, Calif., won the qualifying and Baron's Tule Tiger, owned and handled by Mrs. W. S. Heller, San Rafael, Calif., gained the derby prize.
