

Russia Asked To Join Space Patrol of Nuclear Tests

Proposition Last Of Concessions by Administration

Geneva—UPI—The United States today asked the Soviet Union to join in the launching of a space patrol of a dozen satellites to prevent secret nuclear testing high above the earth or behind the moon.

Chief American Delegate Arthur H. Dean outlined the proposition as the last of the concessions President Kennedy's administration has offered as evidence of its desire to sign a nuclear weapons test ban treaty with Moscow.

The United States, supported by Britain, outlined its outer space bid at the 280th meeting of the three-power Nuclear Test Ban Conference. To Take Easter Recess

After a further meeting Thursday, at which the United States and Britain plan to summarize their newest concessions, the conferees take a four-day Easter recess. The Western powers hope that when they return to the conference table next week, the Soviets finally will have some comment to make. The Russians have been silent throughout the nine days since the Western concessions first were described.

Dean today noted the Soviets had accepted most of the recommendations made in 1959 by a Soviet-American-British expert working group for polling a ban on high altitude and space nuclear tests.

Exotic Instruments Proposed He said the United States now proposed that the Soviet Union join it in signing a workable nuclear test ban treaty and establishing the space control system.

The system recommended in 1959 involved adding certain exotic instruments to the 180 control stations already planned on the surface of the earth to control other types of nuclear testing, and the orbiting of satellites to assist in monitoring.

These would include perhaps 10 satellites in a "near-earth system"—so called because they would orbit only at altitudes of 200 to 800 miles; five or six satellites in a "far earth" system about 37,000 miles above the earth; and four solar satellites traveling in the earth's orbit around the sun.

These space patrolling satellites would be equipped with apparatus which would detect unusual amounts of gamma and X-rays following a nuclear explosion in space.

Economic Life on Farm Hearing Topic

Washington—UPI—A House agriculture subcommittee today opened a new series of hearings on the facts of economic life on the farm.

The hearings are designed to bring together in a single frame the facts about rising farm costs and declining farm prices. The subcommittee may also go on to explore the spread between farm prices and retail food prices.

The subcommittee, headed by Rep. E. C. Gathings (D-Ark.), wants to bring these farm stories home to the general public and to members of Congress from city areas. It's an effort to show non-farmers just where the farmer stands today in the nation's economy.

Today's hearing will concentrate on the rising cost of farm supplies and equipment.

Quick Hearing Seen For Finch, Tregoff

Los Angeles—UPI—A hearing to determine whether Dr. R. Bernard Finch, 43, and Carole Tregoff, 24, should be executed or sentenced to life imprisonment for murder and conspiracy may be concluded quickly, possibly in one day.

The same jury of 10 men and 2 women which Monday convicted the couple meets again next Monday to decide their sentences in a separate hearing.

The state's prosecutors said they expect to take only about two hours to present their arguments which will call for death in the gas chamber for the once wealthy surgeon and his attractive former mistress.

The jury convicted Finch of first degree murder and Carole of second degree murder in the July 18, 1959, gunshot slaying of the surgeon's wife. They both also were convicted of conspiracy to commit murder which carries a mandatory sentence of life imprisonment or death in the gas chamber.

Stock Prices Firm In Early Dealings

Youths Placed on Probation by Court

Two youths charged with taking a set of wrenches from the Talent Hardware store last week were placed on six months probation yesterday by District Court Judge L. L. Sawyer.

Theodore Edwin Wacker, 18 of 981 Siskiyou blvd., Ashland, and Samuel Harry Howell, 19, of 212 Gibson st., Talent, were directed to observe an 8 p.m. curfew. Howell is further directed to report to the Jackson county courthouse for work every Tuesday and Thursday until school is out.

The two youths pleaded guilty yesterday to taking wrenches from the Talent Hardware store March 17 while the proprietor was in a back room. They were arrested by Talent Police Chief William Young, and state police March 20.

Foes of Daylight Saving Time Declare Bill Would Create Chaos

Salem—UPI—Opponents of a bill to permit summer daylight saving time to political subdivisions that want it warned a House committee Tuesday such a plan would "create chaos... little islands all over our state."

Henry Henrikson of the State Grange told the Planning and Development committee it could mean a wife would be sending her children to school on one time and her husband to work on another.

Spokesmen for shipping and for business dealing outside the state urged daylight time. They said it would place them in a more competitive and less confusing position with neighboring states that make the change every summer.

Business Hours Differ Rudy Langer, Western Lumber Marketing Association, said daylight time not only would smooth out West Coast transactions but would give a crucial extra hour for communicating with the East Coast.

When Oregon is on standard time and the East Coast is on daylight time, the office day counting lunch periods, overlaps only for three hours.

The testimony had the familiar ring of the controversy that has surrounded the defeat of every ballot proposal for daylight time in Oregon. Albert Forman of the Theater Owners Association said it was an affront to the voters for the legislature to bring up the proposal again after the voters had "slapped it down" four times.

Forman added daylight time would deal a critical blow to the drive-in movie business.

Other Highlights Dentists—A bill to clamp down on dental advertising won approval of the House Judiciary committee, but only after most of the teeth in the measure were removed.

Agriculture—A Ways and Means subcommittee approved a $2.6 million budget for the Agriculture Department, just $125,000 short of Gov. Mark Hatfield's request.

and Industries committee okayed a bill to extend unemployment compensation by letting workers qualify on an average, instead of minimum, $20 weekly earning during the working period. It would cost the state about $280,000 more.

GOP Leaders Plan All-Out Fight on Minimum Pay Plan

Washington—UPI—Senate Republican leaders today promised an all-out fight against President Kennedy's $1.25 an hour minimum wage proposal despite new administration concessions.

FPC Dam Hearings Resume April 24

Portland—UPI—A Federal Power Commission hearing on rival proposals to build two dams on the Snake river will resume April 24 in Washington, D. C.

More than two weeks of testimony into fish passage plans for Nez Perce and Mountain Sheep dams here came to a close Tuesday, Washington Public Power Supply System wants to build Nez Perce and Pacific Northwest Power Co. wants to build Mountain Sheep.

One of the final witnesses was Thomas Sandoz, president of Columbia River Packers association, Astoria. He said salmon runs on the Columbia river have steadily declined.

TOO HOT TO HANDLE Dallas, Tex.—UPI—Mrs. Leslie Walters, manager of Holiday Cleaners, called police Tuesday to come and take away the owner of a dirty fur coat. The owner of the coat was a full-grown possum that Mrs. Walters discovered in a night laundry deposit box.

Children—The Senate passed a House-approved bill to extend working hours for children under 16 from 6 to 10 p. m. with approval of the wage and hour commission. The bill is planned primarily for jobs like grocery help.

M. Dirksen told a reporter he would seek to trim the compromise administration bill in committee. If that failed, he said, he would "make a fight on the Senate floor."

Problems To Be Solved Chairman Pat McNamara (D-Mich.) of the Senate labor subcommittee introduced the compromise Tuesday. He said it was "apparent that some problems had to be solved before a strong wage bill could be enacted."

The measure calls for coverage of about 4 million new workers, compared to 4.3 million in the original administration bill. It would retain the gradual increase in the wage floor to $1.25 an hour for both new workers and the estimated 23.9 million now covered by the Wage-Hour act.

McNamara told the Senate it was drafted "in consultation with the administration and has its approval."

Waits Easter Recess Action on the bill was put off until after the brief congressional Easter recess. Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield told reporters he hoped the bill would be out of committee by April 11 and the Senate could act by April 14.

House conservatives dealt Kennedy a sharp setback last Friday by killing off a similar compromise bill by a one-vote margin. It then passed a bill limiting coverage to about 1.4 million new workers and holding the wage increase to $1.15 an hour.
