DEATH PENALTY STAYS

Montpelier, Vt. — (UPI) — The Vermont House voted down a bill to abolish capital punishment Thursday by a 156 to 62 vote. One opponent of the measure, Merrill Perley of Enosburg, Vt., said it would be in effect "a license to kill with impunity." Former State's Attorney Ernest W. Gibson III of Brattleboro, argued, "Human life is a divine gift, and neither the state nor mankind has the right to take it away."
