

Buying Coins Is Legal Method To Save Gold

Washington—If you are a "gold bug" seeking to speculate against the dollar, there is a legitimate way to do so.

Be warned, however, that U.S. Treasury officials and most other responsible financial experts advise against it. A little known section in the Treasury gold regulations permits Americans to own gold coins made before April 1, 1933, and those made later all foreign—which are officially deemed to be rare.

Coin dealers have been advertising this to people interested in buying gold coins. The dealers sell them from stock or buy them abroad and charge a fee or commission. The dealers eventually assume that the United States will have to raise the price it pays for gold, $35 an ounce since 1933, to $100 an ounce.

Such a step is unlikely for far into the future. This is the opinion of experts both in and out of the government. It is the policy of President Kennedy who staged himself and the full resources of the United States to maintain the $35 gold price.

An American citizen who wants to speculate on gold coins cannot buy bar gold from the U.S. Treasury or other sources. Such purchases or ownership is prohibited under the law. In January, 1959, President Eisenhower extended the ban to include gold outside this country as well as gold within the United States.

However, American speculators can buy and import gold coins minted before April 1, 1933, the day the United States went off the gold standard. The U.S. Mint turned out no gold coins after that date and only a few thousand 1933 $10 gold eagles ever went into circulation.

Special Value: The treasury regulations "gold coin made prior to April 6, 1933, in compliance with the act of recognition of gold value to collectors of rare and unusual coins" and may be bought and held by any citizen. Coin made by these countries after that date is not so protected, and, consequently, may not be held, according to Treasury regulations. But the Treasury does grant an occasional exception for foreign coin made after that date.

It would be only a very small issue, such as a commemorative issue, and it would truly have to be a collector's item," explained Leland Howland, assistant director of the Mint.

Final determination of what is a collector's item or a rare coin is left up to the coin curator of the Smithsonian Institution.

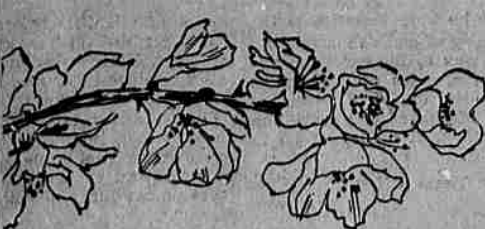

42 Acres of Trees Planted in Klamath

Yreka — Foresters on the Goochman district of the Klamath National forest have completed planting trees on 42 acres in the Prather Ranch and Wild Horse Mountain areas, District Ranger Lester D. Clark has reported. Chances of survival of the trees have been increased by the use of mechanical soil augers to drill the hole in which each ponderosa pine seedling was planted. Ridges reducing fatigue of the tree planters, the auger produces a straight-sided hole that allows all of the roots of the seedling to spread naturally.

Forester Jim Aram, who was in charge of the reforestation project, said that "if we have good luck as last year's projects in the same area, our results should be excellent." The projects are in line with the plans of the forest service to regenerate idle acres that are capable of producing timber. All of the acres will have to be regenerated by the year 2000 to meet the nation's rising needs for forest products.

Klamath Forest Has Below Normal Rain

Yreka — Seasonal precipitation for Klamath National forest stations is slightly below normal despite a wet March, according to the latest forest service report. Yreka station has recorded 19.12 inches to date, compared with 18.57 normal; Oak Knoll 20.12, compared with 21.07 normal; Happy Camp, 47.70, 53.22; Seiad, 37.38, 41.18; Sawyers Bar, 39.71, 42.89; Fort Jones, 12.15, 19.83; Calistoga, 18.76, 17.43; Mt. Hebo, 4.88, 6.12; Ti Bar, 42.08, 46.03. All stations except Mt. Hebo and Ti Bar were below normal as of April 3.
