

Rain Washes Out Masters Activity

B LEO H. PETERSEN
UPI Sports Editor

Augusta, Ga. — (UPI) — The rain may have helped the farmers — and Gary Player — but defending champion Arnold Palmer felt today it may cost him his third Masters championship.

"I thought I had it," said Palmer when rain washed out what was scheduled to be the final round of the tournament Sunday after he had cut Player's lead to two strokes.

Ed Machen, DeJohn Vie In Palace

By HAL WOOD

San Francisco (UPI) — Mike DeJohn and Eddie Machen, a pair of high-ranking heavy-weight contenders, collide at the Cow Palace tonight — with the winner assured of something in the way of a big money bout in the future.

The odds-makers have installed the 28-year-old Machen as an 8-5 favorite. But he'll be spotting DeJohn, a knock-out artist, around 15 pounds.

"This is my big chance to get into the top money," said Machen, who has been tagging the champions for several years. "New York promoters have indicated that I'm in line for a shot at Floyd Patterson's crown if I win this one. I can't fail this time."

Machen was the top contender for the crown in 1958 when he ran into a block-buster right at the hands of Ingemar Johansson and was knocked out in the first round in Sweden.

DeJohn, who has a 38-7 record, figures he should be in line for the big money if he can handle Machen.

"If they are offering Machen a title shot if he lacks me," figures DeJohn, "then if I lick him I should get the crack at Patterson."

Celts Gain 3-1 Edge

Boston — (UPI) — The Boston Celtics are set to put the finishing touches on their title series with the St. Louis Hawks following their 118-104 victory over the Hawks Sunday at St. Louis.

The clubs move into action here Tuesday night with the Celtics holding a commanding 3-1 lead in games in the best-of-seven series. Both teams arrived here Sunday night.

Although most of the Celtics players predicted a five-game series if the took one of the games in St. Louis, Boston coach Red Auerbach took a more cautious attitude.

DeJohn, who has a 38-7 record, figures he should be in line for the big money if he can handle Machen.

"If they are offering Machen a title shot if he lacks me," figures DeJohn, "then if I lick him I should get the crack at Patterson."

Drawn From the Wood Bowerman Among Energetic Coaches Getting Job Done

By HAL WOOD

San Francisco—UPI — Track and field performances in the United States will reach their healthiest peaks in history for a non-Olympic year this spring and summer.

And most of the thanks can go to a small band of young, energetic track and field "nuts" who are busy coaching as if their lives depend upon the results.

"We're not even looking ahead to the Olympic Games," says handsome young Payton Jordan of Stanford. "Most of us have traveled around the world enough already. But we just love the sport and we like what we are doing for the kids."

Besides Jordan, a man who makes track and field meet interesting even for the uninitiated spectator, the other top young coaches who are setting the job done include: Ducky Drake, UCLA; Jim Elliott, Villanova; Chuck Coker, Occidental; Bill Bowerman, Oregon; Bill Carroll, Oklahoma; Bud Winter, San Jose State; Oliver Jackson, Abilene Christian; Sam Bell, Oregon State, and Bill Easton, Kansas.

These men have developed fine track and field teams this year and they have a flock of youngsters heading for national and world records. These same lads may be the boys who do a comeback for Uncle Sam in the 1964 Olympic Games in Tokyo.

Among the standouts are Dennis Johnson of San Jose State, a Jamaican who twice has been clocked in record-equaling 3 in the 100-yard dash; Jim Cerveny, 880-yard man from Occidental; Darol Bureson, the great miler from Oregon; Darrell Horn, Oregon State brad jumper; pole vaulters J. D. Martin of Oklahoma and Rolando Cruz of Villanova; decathlon man C. K. Yang and high hurdles star Jim Johnson of UCLA, and quarter miler Earl Young of Abilene Christian.

Some of the other more firmly entrenched coaches also have some fine performers going for them. These include Jesse Mortenson at USC, who has the great Dallas Long putting the shot.

But the young brand of coaches lives and dies by the times and distances for each one of his youngsters. For most of them, their idea of a big night is to sit for hours and hours talking about ways and means of improving the sport.

"We're not looking for any special rewards," says Jordan. "We get our kicks out of life watching the kids improve. If they turn into world champions—so much the better."

It happens that Jordan right now doesn't have anything resembling a world champ. Most of the other young mentors are better fixed for talent. But that doesn't stop the Stanford coach from plugging away trying to develop a winner.
