Water Runoff To Be About 90 Per Cent

Although the water supply outlook for the 1961 water year in southern Oregon has improved by the March rains, the water year runoff at most points will be only 80 to 90 per cent of average.

This was pointed out by Anthony J. Polos, Portland hydrologist in charge of the river forecast center.

It was explained that since much of the March precipitation occurred as snow at higher elevations, the residual flow from April through September estimates have improved.

Water supply forecast for south fork of the Rogue river predicts that the water year flow will be 87 per cent of average, with the residual flow 95 per cent of average.

Five Tons Used to Wrap Three Pounds

Washington-(Science Service) – A five-ton lead container is used to transport a three-pound package of powerful radiation safely from the Atomic Energy commission's Oak Ridge Naitonal laboratory, Oak Ridge, Tenn., to the national bureau of standards here.

The three-pound source produces as much radiation as 180 pounds of radium. Contained in 12 capsules, the cobalt-60 generates so much heat that it must be water cooled during the truck journey.
