

OCC Tennis Tussle May Be at SOC

Ashtand - With the possibility of staging the annual Oregon Collegiate conference tennis matches on their home courts, the Red Raider tennis crew of Southern Oregon college draws a breather from further action until May 4, when they trek to Eugene for a match with the strong University of Oregon Webfoots.

Dr. Alex Petersen's squad has been victorious in five of nine matches.

Dr. Petersen announced last week that the OCC matches which are scheduled for the Eastern Oregon courts at La Grande on May 19-20, may be switched to SOC, providing the new courts under construction are completed.

"If the changeover is approved, I'm sure the team will perform much better than expected," said Petersen.

Lorraine Eickworth, stand-out freshman from Coos Bay who holds down the No. 3 position in the Raider lineup, boasts the best individual win-loss record in singles play thus far this season. He has won seven of the eight matches played, followed by transfer Bruce Engle's 6-2 showing. Other records are Ken Miller 5-2, Ron Singler 4-4, Byron Palmer 1-1, John Root 3-5 and Rollin Hegler 0-1.

Baseballer Dead at 73

Shrewsbury, Mass. - (UPI) - Former shortstop Jack Barry of Connie Mack's old Philadelphia Athletics, "the man the Hall of Fame forgot," is dead at 73 after a lifetime in baseball.

Barry died late Sunday at his home here of lung cancer. He would have begun his 41st season as Holy Cross baseball coach last week but was confined to his bed.

A member of Mack's famed $100,000 infield during pre-World War I days, Barry later became so successful as a college coach at Holy Cross that he was nicknamed "The Knute Rockne of Baseball."

His Holy Cross teams won 627 games over 40 years, losing 151 and tying 5 for an amazing .800 winning percentage.

Once, during the spring of 1934, his Holy Cross team beat the Brooklyn Dodgers in an exhibition game. The humiliating defeat prompted the classic question by New York Giants manager Bill Terry: "Is Brooklyn still in the league?"

It was as a smoothly fielding shortstop that the tough but quiet Barry made his first mark.

United Press International

It's still too early in the Pacific Coast league race to start drawing any conclusions, but maybe it's true what they've been saying about the San Diego Padres.

The Padres, tabbed by many as the loop's dark horse, struck twice in the final innings Sunday to drop Seattle 6-5 and 4-3.

The double victory ran San Diego's winning streak to four straight and leaves the Padres on top of the pile after the first week end of play.

It other games, Vancouver belted Hawaii, 14-3, Salt Lake took Portland, 3-2, and Tacoma turned in a 5-1 victory over Spokane.

San Diego grabbed five runs in the fourth inning of the opener with the big blow a two-run double by Harry Simpson. Seattle eventually bounced back for two runs in the fifth to tie it at 5-5 but the Padres took care of the situation in the ninth.

Dick Barone opened the Padre ninth with a double and moved to third on a poor throw by Rainier left fielder Dave Mann.

Tony Roig and Simpson were walked intentionally and Joe Taylor filed out. Jim Bolger then moved in as a pinch hitter and promptly singled Barone across with the winning run.

In the nightcap, Mike Herschberger tripled to open the seventh and final frame and crossed with the winning run on Stan Johnson's sacrifice fly. Simpson took care of the rest of the Padre run production with a three-run homer in the fourth.

Vancouver also used a big ninth inning to belt Hawaii. The Mounties scored seven times in the frame on four singles, two Islander errors and a three-run homer by Howie Goss. Goss also homered in the fifth with the bases empty to pace Vancouver's 17-hit attack.

Dom Zanni got the job done for Tacoma with a steady five hitter. Spokane got an unearned run off him in the first frame but Zanni spaced four hits the rest of the way.

Tacoma engineered a 10-hit attack with five Giants each driving in a run.

The Bees' big left hander, Pete Olsen, bumped into trouble in the fourth inning when Jim Hickman rocked him for a two-run homer.

However, Salt Lake struck back with three in the seventh for the win. A walk plus singles by Bill Williams, John McLane and Doc Edwards sent two runs across.

Then McLane set sail for home and scored when a balk was called on Clint Stark, young Portland pitcher.
