Tensions Mount Between Factions on Supreme Court

Washington—(UPI)—Tensions between the Supreme Court's liberal and conservative blocs appeared to be mounting today as the justices strove to adjourn with an unusually heavy load of cases.

Bitterness was evident Monday both in the 5-4 decision announced by the court, and in a surprise blast from the bench directed at Justice Felix Frankfurter by Chief Justice Earl Warren. Warren suggested that Frankfurter was "degrading" the court.

The court handed down a batch of opinions on state requirements for admissions to the bar and the conduct of disbarment proceedings.

The liberal bloc, headed by Warren, was outvoted on the issue. In opinions by Justice John M. Harlan, the court held that a state may refuse to admit to the bar an applicant who will not say whether he is a Communist.

Justice Hugo L. Black, chief spokesman for the dissenters, did not hide his dislike for the majority's reasoning.

The other dissenters were Warren and Justices William O. Douglas and William J. Brennan Jr.

The Warren-Frankfurter feud occurred in a case where the liberal bloc came out ahead by winning the vote of Justice Potter Stewart.

In an opinion by Black, the court reversed the conviction of a condemned murderer after three juries had found him guilty. Dissenters were Frankfurter, Harlan, and Justices Charles E. Whittaker and Tom C. Clark.

As Frankfurter finished reading his dissent, Warren appeared incensed. Although the chief justice had written no opinion in the case, he spoke out, calling the Frankfurter dissent "a lecture... a closing argument by the prosecution to the jury, properly made in the court's private conference room, but not in the courtroom."

Warren said Frankfurter had read remarks not included in his formal opinion previously circulated to the other justices.

The chief justice added that he would have had something to say about the statements if he had seen them earlier.

"As I understand, the purpose of reading an opinion in the courtroom is to inform the public and not for the purpose of degrading this court," he told his interested audience.

Miami—(UPI)—Havana television panelists spent nearly an hour today interrogating a purported priest who said Fidel Castro's revolution "fills the social doctrine of Jesus Christ."

The prisoner, who identified himself as Roman Catholic Father Segundo Las Heras Cabo, said on a radio-TV broadcast he parachuted into Cuba with last week's invaders only because American instructors deceived him. He said he was kept a virtual prisoner in an American-run training camp in Guatemala.

"I repent and beg the people of Cuba to accept my repentance," he said. "All I ask is that they give me an opportunity to mend my ways."

The prisoner appeared on the third night of grilling of prisoners on the Cuba-wide radio-TV network.

Becomes Show Trial
The pretense that the prisoners were being questioned by a press panel was virtually abandoned, and the program took on more and more of the atmosphere of a Communist "show trial."

Panelists pumped questions at the prisoners in the manner of prosecuting attorneys and even called "witnesses." They regularly embarked on long speeches extolling Castro and Pussia and lambasting the United States.

Castro Mocks Pleas
The program, with the participants including a hysterical woman, a ranting man, and another man who threatened to stab a prisoner before the cameras, contributed to the ominous atmosphere in Cuba.

Castro himself, in a speech Sunday punctuated by cries of "al pardon!" (to the wall), mocked pleas for mercy for the 634 prisoners Havana claims to have captured in last week's invasion.

Havana Radio Monday also made the most savage attack yet on President Kennedy, saying he had planned to witness the invasion of Cuba from an American warship.

Students at University of Oregon Protest Firing of Student Counselor

Eugene—(UPI)—Pickets showed up at the University of Oregon Monday to protest firing of a 20-year-old girl student counselor who objected to rating other girls on such questions as their aggressiveness toward the opposite sex.

Gayle Osburn, of Salem, a reddish blonde with freckles, refused to resign after her protest about the counselor rating system. So she was fired from the job which is worth about $225 a term in board and room.

From 10 to 15 pickets showed up variously in front of the Student Affairs Office to protest the firing. About half were male students.

Miss Osburn, a junior majoring in education, said she felt that neither she nor other student counselors were qualified to rate girl students as required. She also objected to secrecy of the ratings.

Among the 12 items on which counselors, as well as housemothers, rate the girls is the attitude toward the opposite sex. They have five points from among which to mark "Over-aggressive, aggressive, easy and natural, somewhat shy and antagonistic."

Miss Osburn said she was told the girls should not see the forms but that they would be made available to employers who seek information about it.

Donald DuShane, dean of student affairs, defending the firing, said the forms were held in strictest confidence and used only when a student's problems make it useful and helpful.

The student newspaper, Daily Emerald, quoted DuShane as saying information was made available to employers only if it would be used for the student's benefit. Miss Osburn retorted in the paper that if employers knew "the only information they would receive would be beneficial to the student, they wouldn't write for references."

Walter Freauff, assistant director of dormitories, said that since Miss Osburn was "not in sympathy with the use of this form... as a counselor she has no course but to resign."

Increase in School Support, Community College Fund Voted

Salem—(UPI)—A $20-a-child hike in state school support and $1.7 million for community colleges have been approved by the Ways and Means Education subcommittee.

The $20 per child increase, double what Gov. Mark Hatfield ordered, won 3-1 endorsement today.

(Sen. Ward Cook (D-Portland) who supported it, admitted the figure may get "butchered" by the full committee.

The hike would cost $21 million over the next two years. Rep. Stafford Hansell (R-Hermiston) said tax commission estimates indicated the state lacked the money.

Hansell called the $20 figure "financially irresponsible" and said he deplored the idea of deficit financing.

Cook declared the tax commission has consistently underestimated revenues, and predicted the state will have plenty of money for the $20 increase.

Co-chairman of the full committee, Rep. Clarence Barton, said new revenue estimates will be available before a final decision is made on the $20 a child figure.

The subcommittee Monday night endorsed $850,000 for state support of community colleges and post-high school courses on a two-thirds state-financed basis.

The same figure was approved for the state's share in building community college facilities.

The figure is about $1 million less than had been asked, but it would let the state shoulder considerably more than at present in community college financing.

Under the plan, local communities would pick up about one-third of operating costs, and about one-fourth of building costs.

Salem—(UPI)—A poll of the legislative press corps has picked the least effective senator and representative in the 1961 session of the legislature, as well as the most promising freshmen.

Named the least effective senator was William Grenfell Jr. (D-Portland), with Alice Corbett (D-Portland) second.

Least effective representative was Ray Dooley (D-Portland) and Tom McClellan (D-Neotsu) second.

Most promising freshman honors went to Rep. John Delenback (R-Medford) and Rep. Edward Fadeley (D-Eugene) second.

Most quotable: Senator Walter J. Pearson, with Sen. Tom Mahoney (D-Portland) second.

Best news source: Split between seven legislators and the Senate State and Federal Affairs Committee, with Rep. Robert Duncan (D-Medford) getting two votes and all others one.

Most interstitial fortitude: Sen. Robert F. White (R-Salem) with Mahoney second.

Most statesmanlike: Sen. Alfred Corbett (D-Portland) with Rep. George Layman (R-Newberg) second.

'Gun' Used in Cancer Detection

Miami, Fla. (Science Service)—A cancer detecting "gun" that permits earlier diagnosis of throat and lung cancer has been perfected by a Florida physician, Dr. J. Ernest Ayre, medical and scientific director of the Cancer Cytology Foundation of America in New York and Miami.

Finger-pressure on the gun trigger fires a brush out of the tube into the oral cavity where it can be rotated. Laryngeal cells from the vocal cords and bronchogenic cells in the mucous stream from the lungs are caught by the revolving brush.

The cell samples are examined under the microscope to determine the presence or absence of malignant cells.

Cytology tests, using the new gun device, are comparatively painless, require less than five minutes to complete, and can result in the discovery of unsuspected cancer.

Field Men Listen For Pheasant Cocks

Albany, N.Y.—(UPI)—Sometimes a man's job is hard to explain to people who aren't in the business.

Take state conservation department field men, for instance. They now are driving along designated routes of about 25 miles. They stop their vehicles for never more than two minutes—and listen.

Explanation: They're listening for pheasant cocks. Biologists have found that the cocks have at least a two-minute interval between crows and the field men are trying to find out where hen pheasants should be released to meet the most male pheasants.
