

Guerrillas Attack Cuba Militia Outpost; Executions Told

Rebel Remnants Receive Blame; Civilians Shot

Miami—(UPI)—Guerrilla fighters believed to be remnants of the invasion force that went ashore 10 days ago have attacked a militia outpost and killed one militiaman, Havana radio announced today.

The report of the attack followed a radio announcement that Premier Fidel Castro's firing squads have executed two civilians in Matanzas Province for joining in an uprising when rebel forces invaded the area last week.

Two Said Wounded

The radio said four rebels attacked an outpost 20 miles east of Bay of Pigs where the invasion forces landed. It said two were wounded and the other two escaped.

Havana Radio said earlier that the civilians executed in Matanzas had joined sides with the invaders when the rebels reached Playa Giron in the Bay of Pigs area.

Sentenced to Jail

Fifty others were sentenced to jail terms of from one to 30 years.

They were convicted specifically of revolt against the powers of the state in the provinces of Matanzas and Las Villas, the radio said. It added they were captured near the Giron beachhead.

The total number executed in the past eight days is 34, with 63 killed by firing squads since the first of the year.

Injured Hospitalized

Havana Radio said in a broadcast that 95 persons injured in last week's invasion fighting have been hospitalized.

Cuba's general official silence on the subject of executions created growing belief that Castro's firing squads are quietly liquidating captured invaders and other "enemies of the revolution."

Castro himself has claimed that all of last week's invaders were either dead or in jail, and the official Havana Radio said 1,000 prisoners had been captured.

In a speech Sunday, Castro said his government would show no mercy to its captives.

More than 700 executions have been announced in Cuba since Castro seized power in 1959.

Talent Man Named Society President

Robert R. Carter, Talent, has been elected president of the Oregon State Society of Sons of the American Revolution. The Society met in Portland recently.

Carter, member of an early pioneer family of the Rogue valley, attended a meeting of the board of governors.

The society, Carter said, is composed of descendants of persons who served the cause of the United States during the American Revolution, and is dedicated to the "cultivation of good citizenship and to the restoration of constitutional government" in the country.

Carter said all interested persons who believe they may qualify for membership may contact him at BPring 2-8707, or by writing him at post office box 41, Medford.

Johnson Paint Center, 400 East Main st., Medford, will hold its grand opening for three days starting tomorrow.

Mr. and Mrs. Ted Johnson, owners who recently moved here from Seattle, Wash., will handle distribution of Benjamin Moore paints to retail outlets in this area as well as handling their own retail trade.

Johnson was with the Benjamin Moore company in Seattle for three years, and was a painting contractor prior to that. His wife formerly was a school teacher in Seattle.

The local store will offer personal services on all jobs, whether at the location or taken to the store, Johnson said. He also will loan equipment such as ladders, paper hanging tools, and scaffolding for various jobs.

Johnson Paint Center will offer 2,300 colors through its paint-mixing department, Johnson said.

Firing of Student Counselor At U of O Declared 'Closed'

Eugene—(UPI)—The acting president of the University of Oregon today termed as closed a case of a charming little girl who happened to see herself in the middle of an issue.

The girl is Gayle Osburn, 20, a junior in education from Salem, who was fired from her job as a student counselor. The issue is a university rating system for girl students. Miss Osburn objected to the system—which included questions such as aggressiveness toward the opposite sex—and was discharged as a counselor.

A student protest resulted. Monday pickets appeared at administration offices. Tuesday six staff members of the Oregon Daily Emerald, student newspaper, resigned after the editor refused to run an editorial protesting Miss Osburn's firing. In addition some 100 students marched on the administration offices to deliver petitions seeking elimination of the personality rating sheets.

Emerald Editor Jim Boyd of Medford defended his refusal to print the editorial by saying there was a lack of information regarding the rating system and that until students know more about it "I don't think we should take a negative editorial point of view."

Miss Osburn claimed neither students nor housemothers were qualified to rate students.

Dr. William C. Jones, acting university president, said the administration had no feelings of vindictiveness toward Miss Osburn, nor did the school ever attempt to curb student opinion.

"But do we have a right to ask our employees to resign a job before they start protest-

Ways and Means Committee Repeatedly Deadlocked on State Building Budget

Salem—(UPI)—Tempers flared Tuesday night as a punchy Ways and Means Committee, pressed for time and money, deadlocked repeatedly on a state building budget. Co-chairman Dan Thiel (D-Astoria) predicted the committee won't complete its work before the middle of next week, pushing adjournment at least several days into May.

Tiffs came over a $5.6 million construction program for state hospitals and institutions, cut about $1 million from Gov. Mark Hatfield's request.

Sen. Melvin Goode (R-Albany) accused half the powerful finance committee of using delaying tactics and stalling on purpose in an effort to muster support for individual proposals or more cuts.

Rep. Stafford Hansell (R-Hermiston) declared he resented Goode "calling those who don't agree with him dogs in the manger."

The committee approved a $50,000 trial run summer work program for boys. Rep. George Annala (D-Hood River) called it an extravagant sum and said only wealthy counties could participate.

Both Goode and Annala left the meeting before it ended. Still facing the committee are major budgets for higher education, welfare, medicare, basic school support, college and university, construction, community colleges, and numerous money requests for programs such as salmon rehabilitation.

The money squeeze is getting tighter, with the push on to win funds for favored projects, while the Tax Commission this week reduced its revenue estimates by several million.

The committee also approved $187,000 for a graduate school of social work at Portland State College, to start next year, and authorized a $135,000 loan for construction of a horse barn at the State Fairgrounds.

Several state agency budgets were approved.

SOC Foundation Is Described at CofC Lunch in Ashland

Ashland—The Southern Oregon College foundation and the National Defense Education act were described at the Tuesday luncheon of the Ashland Chamber of Commerce in the Mark Antony hotel.

Guest speakers were Don Lewis, SOC business manager, and Dr. Alvin Fellers, director of student affairs.

In describing the foundation, Lewis said sources of higher education funds are tax dollars and student fees.

"Colleges were set up with the purpose of providing inexpensive education for students of the state," he observed. However, he pointed out that in the last 20 years education costs have increased 232 per cent.

"The rising costs have threatened to close the college door for many students," Lewis said. "At this point the SOC foundation comes in."

The foundation is a non-profit organization governed by 33 trustees from southern Oregon and northern California, according to Lewis. Its fundamental purpose is to provide a communication avenue between area people and the college, he said. One means of doing this is through gifts and grants, Lewis commented.

"Through gifts and grants we can give relief to taxpayers and students," he said. Loan funds and scholarships are possible means of accomplishing this. By donating through the foundation, people are assured money will be used as they had originally intended, Lewis said.

Prior to describing the foundation, Lewis said SOC

ing publicly and start a crusade? The issue is closed."

Miss Osburn was a counselor in the Schaffer wing of Walton Hall to 43 freshman girls.

would spend nearly $2 million in the coming year.

Three fourths of this amount will be for wages, he said. New construction will cost $300,000 and the remainder will be used for general operating expenses.

SOC has spent $4 million in the last 10 years for providing adequate facilities, Lewis remarked. He estimated between $8 and $10 will be needed to adequately meet demands of the next 10 years.

Dr. Fellers said $78 million has been placed in circulation in the last two years as a result of the National Defense Education act. He said 1,357 colleges and universities have participated in the program.

SOC received its first allotment in the spring of 1959. At the end of the first year, $24,145 had been distributed, in loans to SOC students. The total for two years is $48,000, Dr. Fellers said. Loans have been granted to 118 students.

Slim Chance Seen For Milk Price Bill

Salem—(UPI)—A House committee approved a milk price control bill Tuesday night but Chairman Don McKinnis (D-Summersville) said chances of its passage are poor.

The measure, okayed unanimously by the Food and Dairying committee, would let the State Agriculture department set milk prices for producers.

Nearly 200 dairymen expressed general support for the measure, drafted in the last few days in the face of a 19 per cent drop in milk prices. Some dairymen, however, would like changes.

Opposition also is expected from opponents of any milk control.

Students don't have to pay back the loans until they have graduated and held jobs for one year. However, if a student drops out of school, the loan must be paid back immediately, Dr. Fellers explained.

"At the start of this term we were helping 70 students with loans valued at $8,150," he said.

The criteria for granting loans is based on the student showing a definite need for the loan and showing the potential to complete college, according to Dr. Fellers. The greatest risk is with freshmen, he said.

The average SOC loan is for $200. The maximum anyone can borrow in one year is $1,000, Dr. Fellers explained.
