Villanova Wins Penn Relays Championship

Philadelphia — (UPI) — Villanova university, almost forgotten for two days, roared home with three championships, including an unprecedented seventh straight victory in the one mile, Saturday to haul away the honors of the 67th annual Penn Relays.

The main line Wildcats upset favored Abilene Christian in the 880 yard run for their first taste of victory, won the 480 yard dash hurdles, and then in a burst of derring-do, crashed home the winner over New York university by two yards in the glamor mile event.

Villanova fielded the same relay quartet as it did one year ago and a surprise burst of speed, which carried anchor man Paul Drayton past Jim Wedderburn of New York university as the final leg of the mile started, was the spark. Drayton held the lead to the end, just outlasting Wedderburn.

Before the victory in the mile, Villanova upset Abilene Christian in the 880 where the Texans were favored heavily. Drayton had a hand in this also, running second leg, but the honors for Villanova here went to Frank Budd who sent Raemore off five yards ahead of Olympian Earl Young in the final leg. Young bit into the lead but couldn't catch the scampering Raemore.

Klamath Mullet May Be Snagged, Gaffed

Portland — Two bills affecting fish and game which were introduced in this session of the legislature are now law according to the game commission. Both of these measures contained the emergency clause and have been signed by the governor.

One of the measures permits taking mullet at Klamath lake by means other than hook and line. In other words, mullet can now be taken by snagging, gaffing, spearing and like means. The mullet is a species of sucker inhabiting Klamath lake. It is a game fish and may otherwise be taken only under rules and regulations prescribed by the commission.

The other measure which is now law exempts lingcod from the statutory limitations on fish derbies. Cash prizes or other prizes of any value may be given in any lingcod fishing derbies.

Bill Eggers Favored in Golf Open

Vancouver, Wash. — (UPI) — Showery weather greeted a field of 102 amateurs and 56 professionals in the first round of the Oregon Open tournament at the Royal Oaks course today.

Bill (Red) Eggers, Portland, last year's winner, was being touted as the favorite to grab the first prize money of $500.

Bob Bronson, who plays out of Riverside, was back to defend his low amateur honors.

The tourney opened at 7 a.m., standard time, although Washington went on daylight time today. Eighteen holes were scheduled today and Tuesday with the final 36 holes Wednesday.

Pro Ron Caperna and Assistant Pro Gary Parker of Rogue Valley Country club, are participating this week in the Oregon Open Golf tournament at Vancouver, Wash.

Mongrain Champion In Handicap

Phil Mongrain edged Wally Robinson in 19 holes on Saturday in the finals of the men's spring golf handicap tourney at Rogue Valley Country club.

Mongrain, with a four handicap to Robinson's 23, had to concede a stroke on every hole plus a second stroke on No. 12 green. Phil carded a 75 for the match to Robinson's 93.

Robinson was never ahead in the match but caught Mongrain on a couple of occasions. Mongrain's widest lead was two holes. He was one up on the turn. Robinson was one down after 17 holes but won on 18 to send the tussle to the extra green.

The two stroke handicap on No. 12 enabled Robinson to halve the hole.

Coyotes Slice Linfield Gap

United Press International
In Northwest conference baseball, College of Idaho moved to within a half game of league-leading Linfield by posting 3-0 and 9-8 decisions over Pacific at Nampa on Saturday.

Trout Grow Up Fast in Willow

Although only two years old the trout in Willow lake have grown large enough to be legally taken by fishermen this season, according to Fred E. Locke, chief of lake and stream management for the state game commission.

Usually fishermen have to wait until the trout are three to four years old. Locke pointed out. Studies at Willow lake indicate that fishing can be provided from lake plants of fingerlings and small kokanee, he explained.

The absence of large trout in the lake indicates that the 1959 planting failed to survive and accounts for the poor quality of fishing during 1960.

Generally, plants of rainbow fingerlings in lakes show excellent returns, the state game commission official said. Failure to survive the winter accounted for the poor fishing at Diamond lake a few years ago, he explained.

County Judge Earl Miller who received the letter from Locke said he understood 250,000 fingerlings were planted in Willow lake last year.
