

Abundant Supply of Camp Sites Available

Camping is becoming a more popular activity for week ends and vacations, and southern Oregon and northern California provide area residents with an abundant supply of locations and facilities.

From the coast to the top of the Cascades, and beyond, camp areas and picnic facilities are being improved and developed by county, state and federal agencies to meet the increased demand for vacationists and outdoor enthusiasts.

State parks, some of them with camping facilities, others with just picnic facilities, are located along the coast, state and federal highways and along rivers in both Oregon and California.

Along the coast, perhaps the most popular park is Harris Beach State park, where there are overnight camping facilities throughout the year, picnic facilities, and several miles of beach for hikers, surf fishing, and for a few daring swimmers.

Recently Developed

Another camp site which recently was developed in the immediate area is Laurelhurst off Crater Lake highway 40 miles northeast of Medford. Overnight camping at Laurelhurst will open May 24.

There are many state parks where overnight camping is not permitted, and among the more popular ones are Tovel State park along the Rogue river a few miles northeast of Medford, and Casey State park on Highway 62.

The greatest number of camp sites available, however, are within federal jurisdiction areas — the national forests, land administered by the bureau of land management, and the national park service.

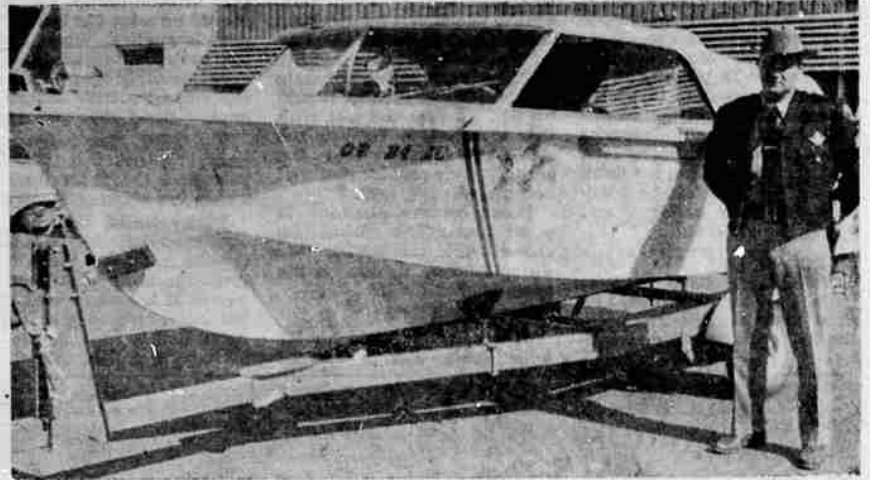

There are 46 camping and picnic areas in Rogue River National forest. Some of them are in areas where there are no roads for those who like to hike (and carry packs). Tables, stoves and toilets are located at the majority of sites.

Cabins are available at the two national park service areas in southern Oregon, Oregon Caves National monument and Crater Lake National park, where there are also camping facilities.

There are now eight picnic and camping sites on land administered by the bureau of land management in southern Oregon. Another campsite, and the largest in the BLM district, is expected to be open in early June.

Russian Creek, Kelsey Canyon and Tucker Flat sites are located on the Rogue river trail in Josephine county; Battle Creek, Salt Creek and Elderberry Flat sites are on the West Fork Evans Creek federal timber access road.

Cold Spring is east on Mt. Bolivar on the Kelsey-Mule creek federal timber access road. Little Applegate is reached by a county road, and Star Gulch is on a BLM road six miles west of the Big Applegate.

DEPUTY AND BOAT — This is the boat which the sheriff's boat patrol uses on Jackson county waters to enforce the state boating regulations which became effective last year. Posing beside the boat and trailer in the courthouse parking lot is Sgt. Veryl Vanoose, in charge of the patrol. Deputies are already finding the one boat inadequate for patrol of the Rogue river, Howard Prairie, Emigrant and Hiatt lakes.
