Heating Season To End June 1

Although the current warm weather may indicate that the orchard heating season is over, orchardists may still have to fire their heaters as late as Memorial Day, two weeks from today, according to Meteorologist Bill Rogers, of the fruit frost warning service. The season is not officially over until June 1, he said.

So far orchardist have fired 12 nights. Ten is average, he said. Last year 11 nights of firing were required. No orchard heating has been required this month so far, although temperatures dropped to 30 degrees one night.

Rogers generally estimated the loss to the pear crop at 2 percent. "While this is not significant for the valley as a whole some pear men are wiped out," he noted. "Most of these are on the west side of the valley with a few in the Valley View area north of Ashland."

The meteorologist said he would have his report completed on the orchard heating season soon after it officially ends.

Thornton Rules on School Districts

Salem - (UPI) - The board of directors of an administrative school district lacks authority to grant a tax offset to residents of a former component school district, Atty. Gen. Robert Y. Thornton said today.

The school district reorganization law, Thornton said, provided that the administrative district was to succeed to all property and assets of each of the formerly existing districts.

"We know of no provision of law which would permit a further... adjustment of assets that would otherwise accrue to the newly-formed administrative district," Thornton said.

The opinion was requested by Rep. Joe Rogers (R-Independence). It specifically concerned funds derived from the dissolution of a non-high school district now included in a new Polk county administrative district.
