

Try and Stop Me

By BENNETT CERF

TOURING THROUGH the South of France, an American couple drove through one village square where a brass band of 12 musicians was blaring away, under the violent leadership of a perspiring, uniformed maestro, before a deserted house whose every door and window was tightly shuttered.

The driver stopped and asked an onlooker, "Who are they serenading?" "The mayor," was the answer. "Well, why isn't he at the window acknowledging the compliment?" persisted the driver.

"That's the mayor leading the band," explained the onlooker. "What do you expect him to do? Be in two places at the same time?"

Sensible amendment made by W. C. Fields to an old proverb: "If at first you don't succeed, try, try, a couple of times more. Then quit. There's no sense making a fool of yourself."

George Jessel says he's reached the really dangerous age for men: too old for Little League and too young for Social Security. © 1962, by Bennett Cerf. Distributed by King Features Syndicate
