Government Not To Tackle All Labor Disputes

Washington - UPI - President Kennedy has made it clear that the government will not "go from city to city" trying to solve every labor dispute that arises.

He told his news conference Wednesday the government "cannot settle labor matters in disputes across the country" that do not involve the health and safety of the nation.

To do so, Kennedy said, would change "the whole pattern of labor-management relations, and you get then into wage and price setting, which we are opposed to."

His statements came in response to a question on whether the government might get involved in a spreading strike of construction workers in northern California.

Unaware of Request
The President said he was unaware that building contractors in California had asked for administrative "help."

He said the strike was a matter which the builders and unions involved would have to resolve.

"This is a free society, and these gentlemen finally have to make their agreement," he said. "Now, if a shutdown occurs which involved the health and safety, then of course it involves the national government."

Other Highlights
Other developments in the news conference:

-Kennedy described Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson as "invaluable" and denied rumors that Johnson might be dropped from the Democratic ticket in 1964.

-Kennedy called southern efforts to send busloads of Negroes to the North "a rather cheap exercise" in publicity.

He said the administration is giving "very careful consideration" to protests from some scientists that U.S. high altitude nuclear tests might damage the Van Allen belt of radiation which shields the earth.

He said the tests will be conducted "only after careful scientific deliberation" but it does not appear they would cause harm.

Physical Education Jamboree Planned

More than 400 students from Medford's 17 public schools are expected to participate in a physical education jamboree starting at 7:30 p.m. Friday in the Hedrick Junior High school gymnasium.

Lee Ragsdale is supervisor of physical education in the Medford schools. The jamboree is open to the public.

Managers Listed For Sabin Clinics

Dr. William J. Miller, general chairman of the Sabin oral polio vaccine committee, today announced appointments of managers and assistant managers for the seven clinics where the vaccine will be given from noon to 6 p.m. Saturday and Sunday, May 12 and 13.

The managers and assistants are:

Mrs. Mary Lahr and Mrs. Phyllis Smith at Ashland High school; Mrs. Carroll Haupt and Mrs. Mary Greenman at Hedrick Junior High school in Medford; Mrs. Max Weston and Mrs. William G. Ferris at McLoughlin Junior High school in Medford; Mrs. Aylene Faber and Mrs. Loren Ahorn at Crater High school in Central Point; Mrs. Lois Leaming and Mrs. Sylvia Oliver at Shady Grove school; Mrs. Lois Cummings and Mrs. Beverly Dimick at Rogue River school; and Mrs. Jeannette Grove at Phoenix grade school. All represent Parent-Teacher association units in their areas.

Dr. Miller said his committee has received several requests for clinics to be established in other areas of the county. These had to be declined, he said, because of the lack of supervisory personnel. Clinic locations for the other two doses of the vaccine can be changed should experience indicate this is necessary. Dr. Miller said.

Medford Jayceettes, under supervision of Mrs. Dewette Coon and Mrs. Shawn Smith, are answering inquiries about the vaccine and clinics. They may be reached from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. daily at Spring 3-5407 or Spring 3-5408.

Reds Enter Picture

Prague Radio entered the picture at this point, the chief of state said, by attempting to assume direction of the Asturias coal strike from behind the Iron Curtain.

The Red radio claimed the only way to get the differential reestablished was by strike. This, he said, was despite the fact the pay increase for the miners had been agreed to by the mine owners and the syndicates with the government a party to and guarantor of the arrangement.

Talent Alfalfa Seed Representatives to Visit Greek Farms

Representatives of the local Talent alfalfa seed industry plan to leave Medford for Greece Friday night, according to Albert Strauss, Sams Valley seed grower.

Wallace Rice, manager of Josephine Growers' cooperative, Grants Pass, through which the seed is shipped, and Dr. J. R. Cowan, head of the Oregon State university farm crops department and professor of agronomy, will leave the Medford airport by plane in the first leg of the flight to Greece.

In Greece, Rice and Cowan will visit the Greek ministry of agriculture to discuss problems involved in increased use of seed in central and northern Greece.

"Greece wants 400 metric tons and we can supply right now only 200 metric tons," according to Arnold Bohner, Jackson county seed grower.

Production Areas
Seed production areas are being developed in Arizona, Idaho, eastern Oregon and western Washington to supply the demand," he added.

The seed growers from Jackson and Josephine counties have had a contract with Greece for 10 years. Last year the Rogue valley area had 1,200 acres planted to seed. Growers are aiming at 1,500 acres.

Most of the alfalfa seed is produced on dry land. Only a

Algiers, Algeria - UPI - Gunmen of the Secret Army Organization continued their terrorist killings at a heavy rate today despite tough new security measures clamped on by police and troops.

MERGER DISCUSSED
Washington - UPI - The Civil Aeronautics Board (CAB) opened hearings today on the biggest merger in airline history - the proposed "marriage" of American and Eastern Airlines.

The federal program will be completed in less than two years, it was explained, during which time a comprehensive study plan of the valley floor will be compiled. This will include an arterial roads program, land use study and economic base study. The program, costing $1 of local money for each $2 of federal money, will expedite the comprehensive development study, and will coordinate all city and county planning programs.

Project 701 was particularly set up to assist state and local governments in solving planning problems resulting from increased concentration of population in metropolitan and other urban areas.

Andy Hawver, commission member, reviewed the federal program as presented yesterday afternoon at a meeting of the county court and A. M. Westing, Eugene, planning consultant with the bureau of municipal research.

The project locally will cost $52,600. Of this, $34,400 will be federal funds, $11,000 from Jackson county, $4,700 from

Hazard Called 'Serious' at Two K.F. Hospitals

Salem - UPI - Fire officials testified here Wednesday that "a serious fire hazard" exists at two Klamath Falls hospitals.

The testimony came at a one-day hearing by State Fire Marshal Walter Korlann on a complaint by the Klamath Valley General and the Hillside hospitals.

They appealed an order by Korlann for installation of sprinkler systems to reduce fire hazards.

State Deputy Fire Marshals Wilburn R. Dodge and William F. Roble delivered the testimony. Dodge said dead end corridors contributed to the situation.

Roble wrote the report on which Korlann based an April

23 order for both hospitals to put in sprinklers. The controversy stems from an attorney general's ruling that the new Oregon fire code applies to old as well as new institutions.

Could Appeal
Korlann said that his decision will be drawn up and announced in a few days. If he rejects the appeal, the hospitals could appeal to circuit court.

In Klamath Falls today, it was reported that Korlann has agreed to extend the October deadline for installation of sprinklers at Klamath Valley to Jan. 1, 1963, but at the same time no extension was given to Hillside. Officials of the two hospitals-operated by one group-have not indicated what their action will be for Hillside.

In another development, the governor's office revealed that a member of the governor's staff has been assigned to look into the situation.

Eric W. Allen Jr. To Head State Advisory Group

Washington - UPI - Eric W. Allen Jr., managing editor of the Medford Mail Tribune, has been appointed chairman of the Oregon State Advisory committee to the U.S. Civil Rights commission.

Official announcement of the appointment of Allen and the seven other members of the committee was expected to be made shortly in Oregon.

It was learned here, however, that the other members picked for the commission are John C. Beatty Jr., Portland attorney; the Rev. Harold Glen Brown, Portland; Prof. Hans A. Linde, Eugene; Rabbi Emanuel Rose, Portland; former Gov. Charles A. Sprague, publisher of the Oregon Statesman, Salem; Mrs. Mercedes Deitz, Portland attorney; and Miss Shirley Field, also a Portland attorney.

State advisory committees are named under the 1957 civil rights act to advise the commission on civil rights developments in their states.

The members are volunteers and serve without compensation, but they are reimbursed for expenses on committee business.

Planners Discuss County's Part in Urban Area Plan

Jackson county's participation in a federal program of urban area planning was discussed last night at a meeting of the county planning commission.

Known as the 701 project, the program was set up in 1954 under section 701 of the Housing Act which established a federal program of urban planning assistance.

Last year, the county sought assistance under the program, and in April was notified of the approval of its application by the Housing and Home Finance agency.

Bear Creek Project

Local work will be known as the Bear Creek Urban Region planning project, and will be directed by George Brenner, planning director from the bureau of municipal research, Eugene. He is expected to arrive some time this month.

The federal program will be completed in less than two years, it was explained, during which time a comprehensive study plan of the valley floor will be compiled. This will include an arterial roads program, land use study and economic base study. The program, costing $1 of local money for each $2 of federal money, will expedite the comprehensive development study, and will coordinate all city and county planning programs.

Project 701 was particularly set up to assist state and local governments in solving planning problems resulting from increased concentration of population in metropolitan and other urban areas.

Andy Hawver, commission member, reviewed the federal program as presented yesterday afternoon at a meeting of the county court and A. M. Westing, Eugene, planning consultant with the bureau of municipal research.

The project locally will cost $52,600. Of this, $34,400 will be federal funds, $11,000 from Jackson county, $4,700 from

Medford and $1,500 from Ashland.

To initiate the project, the county regional advisory planning board was organized by the county court. The board will be the liaison group representing all phases of industrial interests, planning groups and other interested bodies in the county between Brenner and the county planning commission.

The county planning commission voted to send a letter to the county court recommending that the advisory board include at least one member from each of the area's planning commissions and two members from the county commission.

Concern was expressed by some commission members regarding what authority the county groups would have over the work of the bureau officials. It was stressed that the county planning commission's duties would not change but that the planning office staff would be shared by the commission and Brenner. The county will be reimbursed by the government for the staff's time on Project 701.

All members of the county planning commission were present for the meeting.

Safety Patrol Banquet Slated

The annual school safety patrol banquet will be held at Hedrick Junior High school auditorium starting at 6:30 o'clock tonight, with Dr. Betty Lou Dunlop, professor of education at Southern Oregon college, as speaker.

About 400 people are expected to attend the banquet. Some 285 school patrol members from 15 elementary schools will be honored.

Dr. Dunlop received her doctorate from Colorado State college at Greeley, her master's from Columbia university, N.Y., and her bachelor's from the University of Oregon.

Difference Said To Be Question Of Emphasis

Resolution Given Committee Approval

Atlantic City, N.J. - UPI - The United Auto Workers were expected to call for pay increases in excess of productivity gains today despite President Kennedy's appeal for a more moderate wage policy.

Walter P. Reuther, UAW president, said the difference between the union's attitude and the administration's wage guidelines boiled down to "a question of emphasis and not a conflict of basic policy."

Reuther stressed that the powerful, million-member UAW would negotiate in line with Kennedy's recommendation to seek pay boosts out of productivity improvements and not by forcing up prices.

He predicted an overwhelming approval for a resolution declaring that wages should rise faster than the increase in output per man-hour to bring consumer demand into line with industry's capacity to produce.

Approved By Committee
The policy statement, approved by the resolutions committee, was to be submitted for ratification by 2,800 delegates at the closing session of the UAW's convention.

Its main theme challenged the President's assertion that pay increases should be confined to productivity gains as a general rule.

"No financial sleight of hand can raise real wages and profits faster than productivity without defeating their own purpose through inflation," Kennedy contended.

He also praised the UAW for following a policy of non-inflationary bargaining in the past, including last year's auto negotiations.

Reuther told reporters that the union's economists put more emphasis on the need for stepping up demand than Walter Heller, Kennedy's chief economic adviser.

'Resignations' Accepted by Group

The "verbal resignation" of two charter "honorary members" of the Jackson county planning commission was accepted Wednesday evening at a meeting of the group.

C. C. Hoover and his son, Bud Hoover, both of Eagle Point, have attended the monthly sessions of the group since it was organized in September, 1956.

In commenting on the "resignation," C. O. Lovejoy, commission president, expressed his regrets and comments that the Hoovers' comments and suggestions during the years had been of considerable value to the commission.

Commission member C. W. Duggan added that if more persons would take such an interest in the planning commission's work, "it would be easier to do our job."
