The Family Council

Editor's Note: The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychiatrist, three clergymen, and a columnist. Each writes an advisory of an actual case history. The Council reports on problems that have been solved by responsible agencies and consumers. (Copyright by General Features Corp.)

Jane G. — This year I'd like to plan something for all of us during Mark's vacation. Mark G. — I'd rather send the kids to camp and then just follow our fancy. Why not straddle the issue like a compromise? If possible, sign up the kids for a two-week stay while you and Jane are on vacation. Then set forth on a well-planned, see-together, see-together, and a u-g-h-together journey.

Mark G. — It's true we've never, all five, spent my vacation together. Last year Jane and I stayed home with our youngest while the two others were at Scout camp. We just went to the beach or on short trips to visit the family. But I think we'll all enjoy the month more if we split up into two parties, we and the kids, and have fun together, and also having plenty of other youngsters to team up with for overnight camping and outdoor fun. And Jane and I will probably sit around the house a few days, pinching ourselves to see if the new freedom is real. Then we'll take off to, wherever the open road leads.

The Council: Over 2,000 years ago a Roman poet named Horace advised people to seize the present moment, not to postpone. He repeats these hackneyed Latin words now to Mark: Carpe diem. You have a chance to give your children a family summer to remember. You can't take it for granted that you'll have another. Why not straddle the issue like a compromise? If possible, sign up the kids for a two-week stay while you and Jane are on vacation. Then set forth on a well-planned, see-together, see-together, and a u-g-h-together journey.

Or else, there are the National Parks, the Civil War shrines, the historic reconstructions (Williamsburg, Va.; Old Myrtle, Conn.), and other spots to reminisce about together all through the year, and years. To Mark we say, this is a fleeting chance. Grab it!

Two Persons Hurt In Highway Mishap

Two persons were injured in a three-vehicle accident early yesterday in front of the Knap lumber mill on Highway 99, state police said. Elihu Glen Rich, 57, of route 1, box 547, Talent, was in good condition while being treated for a back injury. Donald Joseph Mueller, 26, of Eugene, was treated for cuts and abrasions at Sacred Heart hospital. A car driven by Lionel Wayne Finken, 44, of Eugene, was involved in the accident with a pickup truck driven by Rich and a car driven by Mueller, according to police.
