New York (UPI)—Soviet cosmonaut Gherman Titov said today that his 13-day visit to the United States had convinced him that Americans want "peace and the cutting off of the armaments race."

He said his meetings with U.S. astronauts John H. Glenn Jr. and Alan Shepard "strengthened my belief that there will be enough room for all in outer space."

Sightseeing Tour Planned

Titov and his wife, Tamara, left for Halifax, Nova Scotia, on the first leg of their return trip to Moscow. At Halifax the cosmonaut will take a 15-hour sightseeing tour of the city at the invitation of civic and Nova Scotia officials.

Titov, in Russian, said he wished to thank Americans "who invited me to visit several U.S. cities and also those who have sent me gifts, cordial letters and cables with words of friendly greeting."

He said he believed "the American people as well as the peoples of the Soviet Union... don't want a devastating nuclear war."

Titov's plane will leave Halifax at 2:30 a.m. local time, Saturday and will make fuel stops in Gander, Newfoundland, and Prestwick, Scotland, en route to Moscow where the plane is due late Saturday.

The 27-year-old spaceman's day Thursday was typically varied. He went from the Princeton University campus to the prize ring at St. Nicholas Arena in Manhattan.

At Princeton, he spoke to about 1,000 students on the problems of man in space, such as weightlessness, space-ship control, eating and sleeping. "It is possible to live in outer space as you can see for yourself," Titov told the students.

Titov, who last August orbited the earth 17 times, later told a rally at the sports arena his "number one impression" of the American people was their "friendly attitude."

The affair, sponsored by the National Council of American-Soviet Friendship, drew a cheering crowd estimated at 4,000 by a Soviet official and 2,500 by a spokesman for the arena.

Titov, standing in a ring whose canvas had been replaced by a red carpet, declared: "The time will come when Soviet and American cosmonauts and astronauts will fly to Venus, to Mars, to other planets as friends and partners in this daring venture for the good of mankind."

The forest industries in the United States employ 1,375,000 full-time employees and have an annual payroll of more than $5.5 billion.

Politics: Duncan-Porter Feud Continues

By United Press International
Ex-Congressman Charles O. Porter and House Speaker Robert Duncan continued to hammer away at each other with Oregon's primary election just a week away.

They are two of the four candidates for the hotly-contested fourth district congressional nomination.

Duncan Monday night rejected a statement by Porter they had no issues between them and said Porter had advocated recognition of Red China. Porter claimed Duncan was "parroting the very distortions which he helped to refute in the 1960 campaign."

Duncan cited 1959 news reports quoting Porter as favoring recognition of and trade with Red China and said "if the congressman has changed his views on these issues, let him say so and I will congratulate him."

Porter Replies

Porter, in Eugene Thursday night, said "Democratic voters might well be skeptical of Bob Duncan suddenly discovering that he and I apparently disagree on important foreign policy matters. On these closing days of the campaign, as candidates strike for advantage, Bob knows my foreign policy views have not changed, just as he knows that these views are not what he represents them to be. If there were a basic disagreement between us, it would have come up before now."

Porter added, "Duncan would do better to explain to Democratic voters why as speaker of the House in 1961 he permitted the daylight time bill to pass in... shocking disregard of what the people of Oregon voted at the polls on four occasions."

Other fourth district candidates are State Sen. Robert Straub and Eugene fireman Pat Flynn.

Unander Speaks

Sig Unander, one of six Republicans seeking the U.S. senatorial nomination, criticized the "administration's current attacks on business" in a Portland speech today.

Governor's Race

State Sen. Walter Pearson, a Democratic candidate for governor, said property taxes are one thing that is keeping business from coming into Oregon. He said between 1950 and 1960 the per capita property taxes went up 104 percent in Oregon.

His primary rival, Atty. Gen. Robert Thornton, in a talk at The Dalles, pledged more economy in state government. He said Gov. Mark Hatfield has failed to live up to campaign promises of four years ago to reduce state expenses rather than raise taxes.

Robert W. Chandler, Republican candidate for Congress in the second district, criticized incumbent Democrat Al Ullman in Pendleton Thursday. He chided Ullman for taking credit for introducing legislation for a two-piece system for wheat. The Bend publisher said it was first introduced in 1935. He also said Ullman was unable to get the legislation passed.

In Tillamook

GOP Senate Candidate R. F. Cook of Scott Mills Thursday night challenged the statement of Rep. Edwin Durno (R-Ore.) that Durno is more opposite from Sen. Wayne M. Morse (D-Ore.) than any of the other five Republican senate candidates.

Cook, an avowed "Goldwater conservative," said that Durno takes "the same position as Morse on one important issue, that of foreign aid. I state that foreign aid should be discontinued as an instrument of national policy."

Morse is a strong advocate of U.S. foreign aid.

more economy in state government. He said Gov. Mark Hatfield has failed to live up to campaign promises of four years ago to reduce state expenses rather than raise taxes.
