Northern California Construction Halted

San Francisco—Northern California's $3.5 billion construction industry slowed to a complete halt today under a shut-down order by contractors which could affect 130,000 workers.

Members of the Associated General Contractors issued the order Friday in retaliation to a series of scattered strikes which had idled projects valued at nearly $4 million in the 46-county area.

Contracts with laborers, cement masons, carpenters and construction teamsters expired May 1. The 3,500-man Laborers union began a series of strikes on key projects and the other three organizations observed the picket lines.

The shutdown was expected to have a tremendous impact on the economy of California. It will halt work on public buildings, schools, state colleges, hospitals, bridges, highways, homes and dams, including the massive Feather river project.

Moreover, it could spread to southern California's $4 billion building industry. The contracts of the same unions have expired there, but a 15-day cooling-off period extended the deadline until Tuesday.

Field workers at the state department of employment have been alerted to determine whether any workers are laid off as the result of a "lockout." Victims of such a labor dispute have been eligible for unemployment insurance benefits in the past.

If such a point is reached in the construction dispute, the drain on the unemployment insurance fund could hit $3 million a week.

Conviction of Carpenter Union Head Also Upheld

Washington—UPI—The Supreme Court turned down today appeals by two convicted union leaders—Dave Beck, former president of the Teamsters Union, and Maurice A. Hutcheson, head of the AFL-CIO Carpenters Union.

Beck, succeeded as Teamster boss by James R. Hoffa, was seeking reversal of his grand larceny conviction on charges he stole $1,900 in the sale of a union-owned Cadillac.

Hutcheson's conviction for contempt of Congress was similarly upheld by the high court. He had refused to answer questions at a hearing of the Senate labor rackets investigation in June, 1958.

Beck's conviction by a King County, Wash. jury was upheld by a 4-3 vote. He was sentenced to not more than 15 years in the state penitentiary. He had claimed in his appeal that the grand jury was impartial and that the trial itself should have been moved elsewhere because of adverse radio and newspaper publicity.

Hutcheson, who has headed the Carpenters Union since 1952, was sentenced to six months in jail and fined $500 for his refusal to answer 18 Senate committee questions, including whether he knew Hoffa.

The committee was investigating the alleged use of union funds to head off a Lake County, Ind., indictment of Hutcheson in a highway scandal case.

Hearing Granted

In other actions, the court:—Granted a hearing to a group of 187 Negro students convicted last year in Columbia, S.C., for breach of the peace because of an antigovernment demonstration on the state capitol grounds. The court will schedule arguments on their appeal some time in the next term starting in October.

Foreign Briefs

WASHINGTON—UPI—The Supreme Court today opened their final four days of campaigning for Friday's primary election.

Sig Unander, the former state treasurer seeking the Republican senatorial nomination, lashed out at Democratic Sen. Wayne Morse in a week end talk in Portland.

Unander said, "I don't believe for one minute that our senior senator has faithfully represented the convictions of the people of Oregon in his efforts and vote to imperil the security of the free world by placing all world problems in the hands of a weakened and ineffective United Nations."

Another of six GOP Senate candidates, Harold Livingston, said in a Newport speech he favors development of the Oregon Dunes as a state park instead as a national park. He opposed plans offered by Sen. Maurice Neuberger (D-Ore.) and Rep. Edwin Durno, one of his senatorial opponents.

Jim Bacaloff, Portland contractor and GOP Senate hopeful, said in a Corvallis talk today Unander made a "confused and contradictory statement" on the subject of automation.

Bacaloff said expansion and modernization of business to meet foreign competition was not contradictory to automation, as he said Unander stated, as he is synonymous with it. Bacaloff said the real problem was the transition from one type of employment to another.

Green Backs Pearson

Rep. Edith Green (D-Ore.) who has returned to Washington, D.C., Saturday backed the candidacy of State Sen. Walter Pearson for governor. Senator Pearson has shown that he is very capable in all the positions he has held and President Kennedy has a very high personal regard for his integrity and ability," she said.

Atty. Gen. Robert Y. Thornton, the other Democratic candidate for governor, said today that when GOP Gov. Mark Hatfield was a state representative from Marion county in 1953, Hatfield helped defeat a bill to make Portland State College a four-year school, and give it full status in granting degrees.

In a talk to students at Portland State, Thornton said "in contrast permit me to point out that following this setback your attorney general made the ruling that paved the way for Portland State to become a full-fledged 4-year degree granting institution that it now is."

A candidate for the fourth district Democratic congressional nomination, State Sen. Robert Straub, Sunday night in Eugene urged a combination of a "CCC-type" program on federal timberlands and expansion of the youth forest camp program on state timberlands.

Ex-Congressman Charles O. Porter, one of Straub's three primary opponents, criticized Durno. He said Durno made "high sounding campaign pledges that turned out to be empty promises" on the subject of limiting imports and otherwise seeking to aid the slumping lumber industry.

Porter told a North Bend audience today that Oregon's economic prospects are bright and an experienced Democratic congressman can make them brighter. He stated that his four years experience in Congress qualify him to help President Kennedy promote housing, trade, public works and social programs of direct benefit to Oregonians.

State Rep. Robert B. Duncan of Medford, also seeking the fourth district Democratic congressional nomination, said in Medford today that if Porter and his supporters have no other answer to his disagreement with him on policies toward China and Cuba, "they are fooling no one but themselves. Name calling is no substitute for fact and logic."

"No congressman has the right to travel to South America and the Orient and carry his disagreements with him. Suing the State Department for a visa to China and wanting to debate foreign policy with the Ambassador to Japan can only reduce American effectiveness and prestige in an area where we should be united," Duncan said.

Republican candidate Carl Fisher of Eugene took his fourth district campaign to Lebanon and Sweet Home today and a planned swing through Roseburg, Cottage Grove, Springfield and Coos Bay during the rest of the week.

In Washington, D.C., Senator Morse reiterated he was remaining neutral in Oregon primary races with the exceptions of Reps. Edith Green and Al Ulman, incumbent
