Important Art Exhibit Held Over

The current show at Rogue gallery, considered the most important exhibit ever to be assembled in the valley, has been extended for this week according to Ben Trowbridge Jr., show chairman for Rogue Valley Art association.

The show may be viewed daily Tuesday through Saturday at the gallery, 217 West Main street, between 12 noon and 4 p.m. The exhibit was assembled by Henry J. Seidis, Los Angeles art critic, for a gallery in the southern city. It created considerable attention in art circles in that area, and a number of galleries and museums in the three far western states attempted to schedule it. However, due to other commitments of the four artists, it will be disassembled after Saturday.

The works are by Robert Colescott, Portland, Spencer Moseley, Seattle, James A. S. Macdonald, Vancouver, B.C., and Robert Bosworth, Medford. These four artists, with others of the Pacific Northwest, have been the source of a number of articles written by Critic Seidis and others in recent months. The last issue of Art in America, considered possibly the nation's most influential art publication, has an article by Mr. Seidis headed "Pacific Northwest" in which he writes of the four men.

Seidis believes that the towering forests, rushing rivers and dramatic snow-capped mountains of the Northwest are the greatest influence on artists of the region, regardless of their media. Writing of Robert Bosworth he said "A deep and successful search for the essence of nature results in exquisitely compelling drawings and washes by the Medford artist, Robert Bosworth, who has brought to the Northwest preoccupation with nature a poetic and imaginative vision that relates closely to Taoist thought. Still in his twenties, Bosworth is the most promising of the very young artists who interests will tend to strengthen the special idiom of Northwest art."

He also wrote "Another Vancouver painter, J. A. S. Macdonald projects the sense of rural isolation into a city theme, painting the lonely crowd in terms of totemic figures. In his compositions, figures—singly or in groups, are isolated by a cold light and a deliberate stylization. They do not touch each other and the faces are never specific."

Of Spencer Moseley he wrote "The vivaciousness that Moseley brings to his geometrically patterned canvases—witty and erudite abstractions of spatial research—escape the tedium I find in much of the hard-edged schools of the East and West coasts. Certainly one of the most brilliant young artists of Seattle, Moseley deserved wide and national recognition."

Writing of Robert Colescott, the critic said "Few of Portland's young painters are concerned with the figure. But Robert Colescott has made highly personal statements in his recent figure-landscape paintings which transcend the conceptions of Bay Area figurative paintings as represented by Diebenkorn and Biehoff. Most recently he has become increasingly aware of the beauties of the Oregon coast which his best canvases project in a free and imaginative way."

Large numbers of individuals are visiting the gallery, and in addition groups of the area are arranging for guided tours.

College Chorus Singing Today At World Fair

Mary Robinson, Medford, is accompanist for the Maryhurst College chorus, named "Singers of the Day" at the Seattle World's Fair today.

The 40-voice chorus were to perform at noon in the State Flag Plaza and in the afternoon in the Century 21 stadium.

Sacred numbers and a group of folk songs will be presented by the Chorus, which has been working for months to make a genuine cultural contribution to the Fair. The director, Sister Mary Claudia, was invited to have her singers participate, according to the Fair's chairman of performing arts, on the basis of "only the best in quality and international appeal."

International appeal will depend partly upon the cosmopolitan character of the personnel and partly upon the diversity of folk songs, which were to be sung in the nine languages of the originals.

Miss Robinson is the daughter of Mrs. Mildred Robinson, 238 South Oakdale avenue, and a graduate of St. Mary's High school.

Vocal Music Department Plans Program On Tuesday

The final program of the year by the Medford High school vocal music department will be held Tuesday, May 15, at 8 p.m. in the school auditorium.

Included on the program will be numbers by each of the large vocal groups and the Madrigal singers. The numbers that are to be featured by the choir are "I Wrestle and Pray," a double chorus by Johann Christoph Bach; "Pavane For a Dead Child" by Ravel, and "When Israel Went Forth Out of Egypt" by Nikolsky. Also included in the choir's selections will be several lighter numbers as well as standard choral literature.

The Advanced Girls chorus plans to sing selections by Brahms, Randall Thompson, and Richard Rodgers. The Rodgers selection is a medley of songs from "The Sound of Music," and is arranged by Clay Warnick.

On the Mixed chorus program, there are several numbers that they performed at the Southern Oregon District contest in April. This group will also sing a well-known spiritual called "Ain't that Good News."

As a special addition to the annual Spring program, the Madrigal group is scheduled to sing selections from the current Broadway musical "Camelot."

This program is the final concert for 34 graduating seniors in the choir. Several of the members have sung with the choir for three years. They are: Kathleen Allen, Donna Lawson, Claudia Owen, Joel Gregory, Wally Huffman, Bob Heide, Jim Henson, Rex Nicodemus, Bill Allen, and Leonard Welch. Others graduating are Sandra Banks, Dan Andrews, Jean Banks, Sandra Bates, Mark Cochran, Lynn Creel, Minda Ellis, Bill Edwards, Vicky Enders, Darlene Huson, JoAnn Johnson, Victor Klukker, Julia Latham, Joyce Leon, Alger Marsh, Ellen Montgomery, Kathy Moulton, Claudio Patterlini, Jack Richardson, Lois Stedman, Barbara Whalin, and Evelyn Young.

Athens - King Paul of Greece exchanged crowns over the heads of his daughter, Princess Sophie, and Spanish Prince Don Juan Carlos during the traditional Greek Orthodox wedding ceremony held here May 14. The royal couple was also wed in Roman Catholic rites in a dual ceremony marked by old world paganism and enthusiastic crowds of more than half a million people. (UPI)

Prince, Princess Wed In Glittering Ceremony

Athens - (UPI) - Princess Sophie of Greece and Prince Juan Carlos of Spain were married today in dual Roman Catholic and Greek Orthodox ceremonies attended by a glittering array of kings, ex-kings, queens and former queens, and scores of other royal guests.

The dual ceremonies reflected the divergent religious backgrounds of the respective nations of the pretty Greek princess and her Spanish bridegroom, who some day may become king of Spain.

The churches were packed with officials of the two nations and 150 royal guests. Nearly 500,000 Athenians lined the routes of the wedding processions to cheer the young couple as they rode between ceremonies in a great golden coach drawn by six prancing white horses.

Princess Sophie, 23, daughter of King Paul and Queen Frederika, was radiant in her silver satin gown covered with lace and tul' and with a train 18-feet long. She wore a diamond necklace, a diamond tiara and a cross.

Don Juan Carlos, 24, son of the pretender to the vacant Spanish throne, wore a light khaki-colored uniform of a Spanish military officer.

They went through the Roman Catholic ceremony first at the Church of St. Dennis. Waiting crowds nearly went wild with excitement when Sophie arrived and police had difficulty holding back the throng as she was escorted into the church by King Paul.

Wedding Music Program And "Revolt" Praised

By R. D. WERNER

A very interesting program of music suitable for weddings was presented Sunday afternoon at the First Methodist church by Mrs. Leslie Boardman, organist; Mrs. D. G. MacDougall, soprano; Otis Swisher, tenor; and Lawrence Hobson, bass.

Mrs. Boardman evidently has given much thought to the problem of suitable music for weddings, and no doubt has had her share of frustrations. In her program notes she states "A professional or recreational is not the equivalent of a march. Church processions are not marched, never hurried, but are properly walked—slowly, naturally, in a dignified manner, with no attempt to keep time to the music. The so-called 'hesitation step' is certainly out of place."

Also, her remarks on solos are very appropriate, viz: "All the music used should serve to reinforce the spiritual significance of the service. However, a great deal of music. The so-called 'hesitation' nuptial service which fails to reflect anything more than a rapid sentimentality. The thoughtful person will not be misled into thinking the text of a song is sacred if it simply mentions God."

The program consisted of many examples of music for weddings with or without solos. And they were all good, well planned and in good taste. The prevailing mood was one of respect and dignity.
