Sweetland Promotes Improved Relations With Indonesians

By A. ROBERT SMITH
 Mail Tribune Washington Correspondent

Washington (Special) — Monroe Sweetland, one of Oregon's leading political participants of the past decade, has plunged into the green pastures of non-partisanship on a national scale. After months of journeying back and forth about the country, Sweetland has organized the Indonesian-American Society of the United States, a group dedicated to promoting better relations between American citizens and those of Indonesia. The Milwaukee publisher has been named executive director, a task which seems destined to take him out of Democratic politics for an indefinite period.

Honorary Chairman of the society is Dr. Frank P. Graham, former senator from North Carolina, now a United Nations official, who is the most highly regarded American in Indonesia. Graham served as mediator between the Indonesian nationalists and the Dutch colonialists 12 years ago, with the result that Indonesia became a free and independent country.

Became concerned Sweetland became concerned about Indonesia, he explained, during a trip around the world last summer when he spent several days at the American embassy, visiting with the U.S. ambassador, Howard Jones, in Indonesia. The ambassador expressed concern that few Americans had become aware of the rise of this important Asia nation because of the limited contacts between them in the past. He pointed out that Indonesia ranks right behind the United States in the most heavily populated nations. The ranking now is China, India, Russia, United States, Indonesia and Japan.

Attorney General Robert F. Kennedy devoted about as much time and attention to Indonesia (5 1/2 days) as to Japan during his world tour last February.

The Indonesian-American Society is designed to serve as a bridge between the peoples of both countries. Sweetland declined to reveal its source of finances; but the treasurer is connected with a mining company, which suggests that business interests with a vested interest in good relations with Indonesia have agreed to underwrite the society.

Sweetland sees Indonesia as one of the real battlegrounds between democracy and communism. He was here in Washington recently promoting more interest among officials in the problems of this faraway land.

Russia has been trying to promote a shooting war between Indonesia and the Dutch over the territory of West New Guinea, and the Soviets have been providing military hardware.

Seeks Peaceful Settlement The United States has been working for a peaceful settlement, along lines leading to an orderly transition of West New Guinea from Dutch to Indonesian control in about two years.

The new society can't settle territorial issues. It is a good will organization which hopes to foster greater awareness in the United States of the importance of this foreign land and its peoples. It hopes to stimulate tourism, trade and other personal contacts, such as student exchanges.

Sweetland pointed out that there are 371 Indonesian students studying in the United States this year compared to only 160 studying in Russia. In the organization phase of the last few months, Sweetland interviewed about 300 persons in the United States who had some special interest or background involving Indonesia to secure interest and support for this project.

Among members of the board of directors are Eric Johnston, of Spokane, chairman of the Motion Picture Industry; and Prof. Eugene Burdick, the University of California professor who co-authored "The Ugly American."

Terrorists Roam Streets in Algiers

Algiers, Algeria — UPI — European and Moslem terrorists ranged through the streets and countryside of Algeria Tuesday, shooting and killing in a new surge of violence that police feared might erupt into large-scale fighting.

In apparent retaliation for Monday's outburst of Moslem terrorism, European commandos went on a shooting spree in Algiers. By 12:30 p.m. local time, terrorism across the country had killed 23 persons; at least 15 of them Moslems, and wounded 12, bringing the year's unofficial casualty toll to 4,602 dead and 8,611 wounded.
