

Timberline Lodge Operators Protest

Oregon City—Operators of Mt. Hood's Timberline Lodge Wednesday filed a protest with the Clackamas County Board of Equalization charging that a new tax on the resort is illegal.

Richard L. Kohnstamm, president of the company that operates the lodge, said the tax is illegal because the lodge is owned by the federal government.

Clackamas County Assessor Don Hattan said the decision to tax non-public portions of the lodge was the result of a 1961 State Supreme Court decision.

Oregon Supreme Court Decisions

Salem—The Oregon Supreme Court Wednesday upheld a state law governing standards for the baking of bread and revived an indictment in Portland against Luxury Bread Bakery of Hudson House, Inc. for alleged violation of an Oregon agriculture department regulation based on the law in question.

The indictment says the company allegedly baked one pound loaves of bread, with dough processed so it filled pans for one and one half pound loaves.

Dimensions Regulated
The state regulates the dimension and size of bread pans to insure fair trade practices.

Hudson House contended that under facts set forth in the indictment, the law violated both the Oregon and U. S. Constitutions. But the high court here disagreed. The case was sent back to Multnomah county "for such further action as might be appropriate."

Other decisions:
State vs. Michael Joseph, appellant; appeal from Klamath county; opinion by Justice Gordon Sloan; Judge David R. Vandenberg affirmed; Joseph's conviction of manslaughter upheld. He claimed he should have had a new trial due to alleged misconduct by the jury.

State vs. Bradley Junior Colling, appellant; appeal from Marion county; opinion by Justice Sloan; Judge George A. Jones affirmed; Colling's conviction of burglary in a dwelling upheld.

State vs. Joe Ben Bowers, appellant; appeal from Marion county; opinion by Justice Sloan; Judge George R. Duncan affirmed; conviction of Bowers for burglary not in a dwelling upheld.

Judge Affirmed
State vs. William Chester Foss and Erwin Wayne Speers, appellants; appeal from Yamhill county; opinion by Justice George Rossman; Judge Arlie G. Walker affirmed; convictions of Foss and Speers for burglary not in a dwelling upheld.

State vs. Donald Ray Gardner, appellant; appeal from Lane county; opinion by Justice Kenneth O'Connell; Judge Edward Leavy affirmed; Gardner's conviction for entering a car with intent to steal upheld.

Ray Arthur Palmer, appellant vs. Edla Jean Palmer; appeal from Multnomah county; opinion by Justice Sloan; Judge Virgil Langtry affirmed as modified; an order denying a father the right to visit with his children was affirmed, with another part regarding termination of support payments by the father modified. The order was sent back for a determination of the extent to which the father should pay for child support.

Soviet Claim of Classless Society Said To Be Myth

Manchester, N. H.—A Philadelphia railroad worker who took his family to Russia but quickly returned after a taste of life there, says the Soviet "classless" society is a myth.

David P. Johnson, 32, told UPI in an interview that Soviet boast of equality for all were nonsense.

"To me it was very shocking," he said. "It definitely is not a classless society. Personally, the thing that was so offensive to me was the power possessed by card carrying Communists in Russia. They have complete control."

Johnson returned to the United States last week with his pregnant wife, Joanne, and their twin 4-year-old sons, Colin and Lindsay.

Late last month Johnson quit his $112-a-week railroad clerk's job in Philadelphia, sold his possessions and left for Russia as part of a tourist group. He planned to remain behind after the tour to live in the Soviet Union. He said he had supported Communist courses in this country at various times.

After a week in the Soviet Union, however, Johnson became disenchanted with the Communist way of life and brought his family back to America. He is living here at the home of his mother-in-law, Mrs. John Zebeas.

Johnson said he and his family were very tired and in a "very confused state" at present. "We need to get adjusted," he said. "It was wonderful to be back in New York and it's certainly a wonderful feeling to be in New Hampshire."

Johnson said he hoped his exploit would "die a natural death"—but he added that he was considering offers from several publications for the rights to his story. Any money he received, he said, would go to finance medical treatment for one of his sons who suffers from a blood ailment.

Johnson said he found the average working man in Russia "is not making a decent wage, is badly housed and poorly clothed. If a Russian citizen is living comfortably he is paying for it dearly."

He said his conception of life in the Soviet Union was "tragically incorrect" and the result of impressions gained from reading literature.

ABOUT SAFFOLA MARGARINE

Dorothy Jackson
Home Economist
Pacific Vegetable
Oil Corporation

New Saffola brand margarine owes its delicious taste and high poly-unsaturation to the fact that it contains liquid safflower oil—the most highly poly-unsaturated vegetable oil available.

With poly-unsaturates so important in the diet, it makes good sense to use products which give you the most poly-unsaturates, doesn't it?

Saffola margarine gives you more poly-unsaturates, ounce for ounce, than any other table spread you can buy. The rest don't even come close. Check the chart to the right and compare Saffola margarine with all the others.

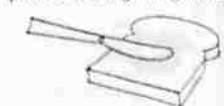

Safflower oil makes that big difference in Saffola's poly-unsaturation. And it's the reason for the good difference in flavor, too. Saffola margarine has a country-fresh, delicate flavor that no other margarine can duplicate.

WHAT IS SAFFLOWER OIL?

The first record of the safflower plant comes down to us from 4,000 years ago—when the plant was grown by the Egyptians. Today, hundreds of thousands of acres of safflower grow in the United States. Our company, PVO, pioneered the crop in America to become, by far, the world's largest grower of safflower and the leader in safflower oil. Good reasons why we know so much about blending safflower oil into the perfect-tasting margarine.

Even if you're not particularly interested in health right now, just try Saffola margarine for its flavor. Look for Saffola at your grocers.

Saffola margarine

The safflower margarine with the delicate, natural flavor

Better switch your family to delicious, delightful Saffola brand safflower oil margarine. It's far higher in natural poly-unsaturates than even corn oil margarine. That's because it's made with golden, light, liquid safflower oil, nature's rich source of poly-unsaturates.

The American Heart Association reports: "...reasonable substitution of poly unsaturated for saturated fats is recommended as a possible means of preventing atherosclerosis and decreasing the risks of heart attack and strokes."
